Life in the Country.

17 Life in the Country. There are hardships in the country; struggles are necessary to wrest a livelihood from the soil or from busi-ness in a small community. But every stroke can be made to count for permanence. The food and the air are better; man's independence is more real, where he can own the roof that shelters him and the ground upon which he can grow his provi-sions. Every cow or horse added to his holdings is an increase of his cap-tial. Little by little, year by year, he can, with industry and good judg-ment increase his store of worldly goods and give to his children a tan-sible inheritance, a foothold in their own land, an anchorage from which the shifting tides of trade cannot dis-lodge them. And while such a family is living its own life, solving its own problems, it may enjoy the same lit-erary and artistic pleasures, and the same general advantages that the city family has. ### Waste of Pine Timber.

Waste of Pine Timber. According to the best general esti-mate there has been cut and utilized in a very wasteful manner about 35 per cent of our conferous or pine for-ests. About 15 per cent more has been wasted, leaving about 50 per cent of the total original supply for future use and waste.

• Fine Steel.

* Fine Steel. Sheffield turns out the finest, hard-est and most perfect steel the world produces; but even Sheffield can not turn out a sword-blade to compare with those the Saracens made and used hundreds of years ago.

"I had read much about Postum, but never thought it would fit my case until one day I decided to quit coffee and give it a trial and make sure about it. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions

"Soon I began to get better and was able to eat carefully selected foods without the aid of pepsin or other digestants and it was not long before I was really a new woman physically.

"Now I am healthy and sound, can eat anything and everything that comes along and I know this wonderful change is all due to my having quit coffee and got the nourishment I needed through this delicious Postum. "My wonder is why everyone don't give up the old coffee and the trou-bles that go with it and build them-solutes up as I have done with
