Such remedy, aside from its objection on the score of descency, savors too much of by-gone days, when live eels were sent on an errand down horse's throats to unravel their intestines. If any benefit belongs to such an objectionable application, it is due to the property it posesses of retaining moisture; therefore cold poultices and water are far superior. Clay and moist earth, placed in the stall for the horse to stand on, are far inferior to a stuffing of wet oakum, which can be removed at pleasure. In order to keep it in contact with the sole, we have only to insinuate two strips of wood between the sole and shoe one running lengthwise and the other crosswise of the foot. It affords considerable pressure to the foot, is cooling and cleanly, as far superior to the above articles.'-Farm Journal.

Horse Shoes Without Nails.

A Yankee by the name of Short has invented a horse shoe which requires no nails. He makes the whole two pieces, employing in addition, two small screws to aid in screwing the parts together. But are made of mallable iron-the lower portion, or 'sole' being very similar to the horse shoe ordinarily employed, but with a groove around its exterior, and without nail holes. The upper portion or, 'vamp,' is thin, and has a flange projecting inward from its lower edge to match the groove in the sole. The parts are so arranged as to secure a tight and firm connection, and the whole is made additionally secure by the aid of the set screws before mentioned at the heel. A shoe of this kind once fitted the vamp may be made to wear out a great number of soles. The exterior may be highly finished and plated with silver. which gives a very flashy appearance to a team of lively horses, or the shoes may be enamelled jet black when in-

The following is the rediculous conclusion of a recent "circular letter" put forth by

"his Reverence, the Bishop of Newark." "We appoint the month of December as the time during which the Triduum granted granted by our Holy Father Pope pius IX by his rescription of the 21st of January. 1855, shall be celebrated in this diocese .-We allow the several pastors to choose, at their discretion, any three successive days during that month, for their respective congregations-arranging the time with the neighboring clergy, in order that they may

The credit of these " exorcises" to be aplied to helping along the souls in Purgatory! In other words, says the New York Mirror, ubey the priesthood-do just as the Holy Humbug commands, and HE will assume the prerogative of God, and grant the sinner all sorts of "indulgences" here and absolute absolution hereafter. If this fool's logic is not blasphemous nonsense, we don't know how else to characterize it. It is passing strange that any HONEST mind can be Watermelon Molasses.

An article has been going the rounds of papers about the practicability of making molasses from watermelons. We felt incredulous on the subject, but have recently credulous on the subject, but have recettly been presented with a bottle of it by our friend PHILIP A. MASON, of Woodbury, New Jersey, who is well known in this mar-ket as a successful grower of the mountain sweet watermelon. It was really a nice article, clear sweet, and of very pleasant favor. He informed us the only process was to boil down the pulp to about one-half. The boiling was continued for several hours. Whether it will pay to manufacture moiasses in this way is another question, and a matter of very great doubt .- Farm Journal.

A FUNERAL SERMON .- Parson Sa rather eccentric character was called upon to "preach the funeral" of a hard case named Rann, which he did, in the following unique style:

"My beloved brethren and sisters, if eur beloved Brother Rann would a wanted somebody to come here and teil lies about him out a better Man than he was, he wouldn't have chose me to preach his funeral.

"No, my bretheren, he wanted to be held up as a 'burning and a shining light,' to warn you from the error of your ways. He kept horses, and he run'd 'em; he kep chickens, and he fou't 'em. The COACH AND WAGON FACTORS. first warnin' was when he broke his leg, but he still went on in the error of his ways.— The second warnin' was when his son Pete hung himself in jail; and the last and greatest warnin' of all was when he died himself

The preacher ealarged on these topics, until he sunk Rann so low that his hearers began to doubt whether he would ever succeed in getting him up again, and, as is usual in 'funerals,' landing him safe in Abraham's bosom. This was the object of the second part of the sermon, which started
