There is, save the Albany Evening Jourial, no more shameful and sorrowful fact in the history of our politics, than that Mr Buchanan, a son of a free State, and a pupil of a good school of free industry and of social equality, should be the voluntary exponent of a policy which requires Irish and American and German table waiters, to submit peaceably to insult and wrong, and to confess by humility of manner and excess of endurance that they are not MEN free men in the capitol of the Republicbut are brutes and chattels.
