smaller child by its mother, when Mrs. Cregg, who lived in another portion of the house, took the opportunity and entered the apartment, and proceeded to the execution of the deed, which she had previously threatened. With horrid imprecations the child was held on the fire by its tormentor, until its leg and bowels were burned to a cinder, then, with satanic revenge, the body of the child was reversed by the madress, until its back was roasted to a crisp. It died in a few hours after, and the woman is now in jail.

PREPARING FOR HER BRIDAL.—A London paper says:

The bridal arrangements, the magnificent tresson of the bride, &c., in view of the approaching marriage of the princess royal of England at Berlin, attract so much attention, that hundreds are actually going from London to witness them. There are six rooms filled with silks, satins, ribbons, velvets, costly lace, artificial flowers, exquisite embroideries in gold and silver, bonnets, capes, gowns, gloves, body and table linen, diamonds and jewelry, shawls, mantles, and toilet requirements of every description, color and material. Thirty persons have been engaged during several months on the embroidery, and 120 needle women have worked on the different articles.

A BUNDLE OF EMBROIDERIES.—The Buffalo Express gives the following chapter on domestic difficulties. Mrs. King, near Kingston, was recently taken sick, and her husband seized the opportunity to elope with a handsome servant girl, named Martin. On their arrival in Albany, Miss Martin eloped with a young man named Cornelius, taking Mr. King's money. King, being penitent, returned home, and found that his wife had eloped with a dry goods clerk, named Jeffers, with all the moveable articles in the house. Whereupon King started off in pursuit, considering himself a deeply injured man.

In one of our courts lately, a man who was called on to appear as a witness could not be found. On the Judge asking where he was a grave elderly gentleman rose up and, with much emphasis, said, "Your honor, he's gone." "Gone gone!" said the Judge, "where is he gone?" "That I cannot inform you," replied the communicative gentleman, "but he is dead."

This is considered the most guarded answer on record.
