THE SUREST ROAD TO WEALTH IS THROUGH LIBERAL ADVERTISING!

ACCORDING to the Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette, Senator Quay will not be a candidate for re-election as chairman of the Republican National committee. It would surely be a mistake to allow Mr. Quay to step aside, but as a matter of fact no one can blame him if he should insist upon retiring to the ranks. He has been abused and vilified as but few men have been and the strongest part of the matter is so-called Republican leaders have been in the background urging on the mud-slinging and fighting him openly or secretly to the best of their ability. The senator won a great battle in 1889—a victory largely due to his courage, his persistency and his generosity, he can therefore well afford to retire and rest upon his laurels. But while he can afford to retire, the question which is uppermost in the minds of many Republicans is: "Can the Republican party of the Nation afford to let him retire?" He is their ablest and most energetic leader and it looks like a big mistake to let him step down and out; not but that there are other good men and true which would unquestionably bring to the place skill and sagacity. As a matter of fact Matthew Stanley Quay is scarce and when one is found he should be retained in chief command so long as he can be induced to serve. This would be the source of wisdom and the revelations of the future will sustain our judgment.

Case Ignored.
The Grand Jury yesterday heard evidence in the case of Martin C. Hoffman, of Pottsville, superintendent of the United States Industrial Insurance Company, and L. J. Bennett, of town, Hoffman's assistant, who were charged with fraud by E. G. Maylan, general superintendent of the Pottsville Assessment Life Insurance Company. The case was ignored and the costs were put on the complainant.

CYCLONE'S WORK!

A NEW JERSEY VILLAGE VISITED BY A TORNADO.

MANY BUILDINGS BLOWN DOWN.

Scores of Domestic Animals Killed by Tremendous Hailstones—Almost Every House in the Village Windowless.

By National Press Association.

PATERSON, N. J., June 19.—A cyclone swept over Hawthorne, a town a few miles from here, leaving great destruction in its path.

A black, funnel-shaped cloud appeared on the northeastern horizon and rapidly approached the little hamlet. At the same time a heavy black cloud, from which the lightning shot and darted in vivid streaks, approached from the southwest. The two clouds met directly over Hawthorne. For a few moments that ominous storm which precedes the coming of such a storm prevailed, the darkness grew and soon shot down like white, while the terrified people crowded to the houses in mortal dread.

Soon the meaning of the wind denoted that the storm was upon them. As it swept over the place it was accompanied by vivid lightning, heavy thunder and a terrific downpour of rain and hailstones. Almost all of them were windowless today.

Trees were uprooted and those which withstood the fury of the storm were stripped of their foliage. Birds and poultry were killed outright. One tree was entirely stripped of bark by the falling pellets of ice. For a time the air was filled with lumber, trees and debris of all descriptions, and every second seemed to bring the destruction of the town nearer and nearer.

When the storm had spent its fury not an acre in Hawthorne was left standing. The majority were torn from their foundations and carried hundreds of feet away. The house owned by Arthur Berlin, and occupied by his family, was unroofed, and the large sheets of tin and heavy joists were deposited in a swamp more than 600 feet away. The inmates were not seriously hurt.

A large barn owned by Berlin was cut in twain and one-half was turned half way around. Henry Outwater's barn was leveled to the ground and several head of cattle killed. A peach orchard covering six acres and owned by Richard Warren, a New York custom merchant, was entirely destroyed, as were all the crops in the path of the cyclone a quarter of a mile in width. Sidetracks belonging to the Susquehanna Railroad were washed out by the heavy rain which followed the hail.

A large number of animals were killed by the lightning. The cyclone seems to have formed directly over the hamlet and to have spent its full force there. Its path is plainly marked by the fallen trees and the uprooted shrubs and crops which were the ground. No estimate can be made of the damage but it will undoubtedly amount to thousands of dollars.

LABOR AT THE FAIR.

Chicago Trades Union Appeal to President Harrison.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The joint committee of the trades unions of this city have decided to send a letter to President Harrison asking that in all work done by the Federal government in accordance with the World's Fair the eight-hour day be recognized, and not less than the recognized minimum scales of wages for the various trades recognized in this city be paid.

Another letter has been ordered sent to Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, asking him not to take any action on a request from the Labor Congress branch of the World's Fair auxiliary for assistance in organizing a World's Fair Labor Congress until the committee can furnish him a report of labor's successful efforts to win the local directory in behalf of a minimum scale of wages.

A circular has been issued to the workmen of America and Europe, warning them not to come to Chicago in the expectation of getting plenty of work and higher wages in connection with construction of World's Fair buildings. It points out that the buildings are all to be constructed within 18 months, and that wages are likely to be lower, instead of higher, because of the surplus labor already here.

Another Passenger Immigrant Boat Sunk.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Assistant Secretary Nettleton has directed the return to Regas, Bavaria, of John Brance, a passenger immigrant, who arrived in this country on the steamer Rider Jan. 18, 1891. It is shown that Brance was not apprehended on his arrival, but made his way to Milwaukee, Wis., where he became a public charge. It is further shown that Brance was a public charge in the city of Regas for five years prior to his departure for this country, and that his passage was paid by the local authorities of Regas.

Have you been to Lakeside? Kilrain's defeat and Lakeside's success are the leading local topics.

It is generally believed that the female base ball players will win the game to-day. The members of the home club are too gallant to scoop them in.

The boy who stole Dr. Stein's horse yesterday will stand a poor show should he ever fall sick and call upon the doctor.

The town is worked hard by lottery agents. Their schemes to evade the law are many. There is going to be a big sensation here in a very short time and it will all be about the lottery. Every day the express companies take away piles of money for the lottery companies. Of course, they are not to blame. When a man comes in with a package addressed to a party in New Orleans they are not supposed to ask questions. It isn't their place.

Owen Sweeney, brakeman, had his spine so injured in an accident, so called, that he will be a cripple for life. He got a verdict against a New York railroad company for $10,000, from which the company appealed and which it got set aside. On a second trial he gets a verdict for $27,500. Of course, he will never get the whole of this money, but that result is part of a question that stands quite aside from the principle that affords a measure of damages in cases of crippling. Had the $10,000 verdict been paid, we may suppose Sweeney to receive $5,000 of it, a supposition favorable to him. This sum should have produced him an average income of $300 a year, or $30 per month, during the shortened term of his life and have remained intact for his dependents. The greater verdict, $27,500, if paid, might give him say $30,000, producing an income as above of $75 per month and remaining intact at his disposal for his dependents. So far as the damages represent a cash valuation nothing more than earnings and savings lost, this sum may be more than the probable equivalent; but it is difficult to see on what ground the former verdict was resisted as excessive. The fact that payment of that earlier moderate compensation was resisted may have influenced the second jury in making some mustard in the second plaster they spread for the company's back. Human nature is built that way.

The letter appended below is offered as an instance of the ingenuities of which a person who has a genius for misspelling is capable. The spelling reformers might learn a lesson by studying it:

LAKESIDE LOCALS.

Excellent Attendance Notwithstanding the Weather.

The weather yesterday was anything but favorable for an excursion, picnic and open-air exhibition, but it had no effect upon Lakeside.

The excursion of Washington Camp, No. 236, P. O. S. of A., was a splendid success, being patronized by five hundred people. The attendance was not limited to these excursionists, however, and had the weather been favorable there would have been several thousand people at the park. To-morrow will be the big day of the week and there will be a rousing attendance to witness Pawnee Bill's final exhibition.

The dancing pavilion was opened for the first time yesterday and it was crowded all day by merry dancers. A good business was also done on the lakes and "Jim" Smith's shooting gallery coined money.

Pawnee Bill's performance was of the usual excellent order and the grand stand was packed with delighted spectators. Col. Ed. Gibbons stood at the entrance to the exhibition grounds during the afternoon and announced the features of the show in his usual grandiloquent style. Pawnee Bill and his Indians gazed upon the gallant Colonel in wonderment and it will not be surprising to see the spokesman an athlete of the show before long.

To-morrow will be the day of the week and Lansford, Summit Hill, Schuylkill Valley, Delano, Hazleton, Anderson, Lefly, Jeannette and other places will send large delegations to the grounds. There will be a programme of extra attractions.

WILD WEST WINKERS.

May Little, whose maiden name was Manning, is a second cousin to the late Daniel Manning, who was secretary of the Treasury in President Cleveland's Cabinet.

Mr. Sheppard, Pawnee Bill's advance agent, is an old showman, who traveled with the Cole and other big concerns at various times. He says that in an attack on the Cole show at Syracuse, N. Y., he shot and killed a man who persisted in cutting the harness of the horses pulling the lion cage. He was sentenced to 15 years, but got a second trial and was acquitted. He says he is a brother of Patsy Sheppard, the well known patron of sports, pugilist and trainer of prize-fighters.

Mr. Hoffman, the press agent for Pawnee Bill, is a genial and courteous gentleman, who looks after the interests of the show with a vigilant eye. Mr. Hoffman makes all the railroad contracts and looks after other important business for the concern. He is also an actor of considerable experience, and at various times appeared in Ferguson's theatre with theatrical companies. He is an old friend of Manager Ferguson. In Mr. Hoffman, Pawnee Bill has a man in whom he can have the utmost confidence for reliability and shrewd business management.

THE COAL MAGNATES.

A Brief Visit to Town Made To-day.

One hundred and thirty-three members of the Philadelphia Coal Exchange visited town this afternoon, but remained here less than one hour. The party left Philadelphia yesterday morning and traveled to Wilkes-Barre, making brief stops at Pottsville, Mores and Hazleton. This morning, at 8 o'clock, a start was made from Wilkes-Barre. Quakko Junction, Mahanoy City and Mahanoy Plains were visited and the train arrived here at 1:35 p. m. At 2:30 the party left for Sunbury and Harrisburg. To-morrow Gettysburg will be visited and the party will end the excursion at Philadelphia to-morrow night.

His Eye Sight Was Poor.

The following letter, the name of the author of which is withheld by request, was received by Queen & Co., the well-known firm of opticians, 234 Chestnut street, Philadelphia: "My eyes continue to cause me no trouble whatever. I used them almost constantly for reading and writing. Until you fitted me with my present pair of spectacles, I did not think I would ever find relief. I think you have the 'know how' in this business and you can always refer any one to me, and I will take great pleasure in recommending your work."

Queen's Specialist on the eye will be at the Ferguson Hotel to-morrow. Persons who think their eyes are set up to the park, should call upon him. He does not charge for examination, and Queen & Co. guarantee every pair of glasses ordered to be satisfactory.

I. O. O. F. Basket Picnic.

TO MAKE DENIAL.

THE EX-TREASURER TO PRESENT A STATEMENT.

HOW ALL THE MONEY WAS LOST?

Claims That He Did Not Take One Dollar for His Own Use. He Throws All the Blame on the Keystone Bank.

By National Press Association.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Ex-City Treasurer Bardeley is preparing a defence which he will present to the court next Tuesday, when he comes up for sentence.

He will stoutly deny any intentional dishonesty. He will admit, as he has admitted in court, that he violated the letter of the law in two particulars; first, by loaning the public money for profit, second, by depositing in the Keystone Bank and elsewhere money beyond the limit fixed by the City Council. This, he will assert, was the beginning and the end of his offending.

How the Money Was Lost.

As to the way the money was lost, Bardeley will throw the whole responsibility upon the Keystone Bank. He will take the position that the loss to the public funds through his transactions is only $1,945,000, and that part of this is recoverable.

He will say that he became aware a long time ago of the fact that the public money which he had deposited in the Keystone Bank had been lost there. As he had technically violated the law in making the deposit he could not say anything publicly about the matter. He therefore took money from other funds to meet the payments coming due from the funds which he had lost. Each payment thus taken has been added to the original loss until the alleged total of $2,500,000 is reached; but, as a matter of fact, the actual loss is only $845,000 for the original due bills and $100,000 for another matter.

Why He Speculated.

This other matter came about from his efforts to recover himself when he found that the bank had swallowed up the $945,000 and is represented by the $100,000 worth of Chicago street car stock, which was discovered the other day. He bought this stock with the public funds with the expectation that his rise in value would enable him to restore some of the missing money and meet some of the payments as they became due. This expectation was realized in part. He also had some reason to think that part at least of the $945,000 would be made good to him from other sources.

He will admit also other speculation with the public funds for a similar purpose, and will declare from first to last he did not take one dollar for his own use or profit.
