NEW YORK, January 20, 1869.

Alva's Remedy. January 20, 1869. Having suffered for the past two years with rheumatism, indigestion, sore throat, and a complete breaking down of my whole system, I was induced after consulting with several physicians to try the "Shiloh's Consumption Cure," which I contrived to use for about thirty days, since which time I have been entirely free from the above-mentioned troubles, and have more ambition to day than any time in the past four years. I can heartily recommend the same to any one who has the same trouble.

Now an American Citizen.

St. Louis, June 26.—A San Antonio spec I says: "J. J. Copinger, son-in-law of Secretary Blaine has become an American citizen by making his final statement before the District Court, renouncing his allegiance to Great Britain. Col. Copinger took out his first 'papers' some years ago, but neglected to complete the necessary steps to become a full-fledged citizen until his attention was called to the matter a few days since."

A Well Known Journalist Dead.

BOSTON, June 26.—Albert Gallatin Brown, Jr., formerly connected with the New York Herald and Evening Telegram, died here last evening. He was born in Salem, Mass., 35 years ago. He was a lawyer by profession. Mr. Brown married Miss Matilda Griffiths, a Kentucky lady, who emancipated her slaves from Southern society and institutions by coming North, where she has published several works.

Sullivan Will Fight.

NEW YORK, June 26.—A despatch to Richard K. Fox from San Francisco says: "John L. Sullivan said to-day that he will fight Frank P. Slavin for $10,000 a side and a purse of $30,000, either in the Olympia Club of New Orleans or the Granite Club of Hoboken, the fight to be decided any time between September and February, and Richard K. Fox, Al Gridge or Dick Boeck can hold the stakes."

The Doctor and Postmaster.

were talking about a case of serious illness to a negro, old and rapidly going into decay, when the doctor said, "I can't cure him." The postmaster said, "I can't afford to pay for his cure."

McMahon and Lafontaine.

Detlevs McMahons and Lafontaines were notified and went to the hold to secure the man, who was armed with a heavy iron bar and was in a corner. Creaching at his feet was a huge mastiff, which sprang at Lafontaine as soon as it saw him, while the Dutchman attacked McMahon with the iron bar.

McMahon knocked the iron bar from his hand, when the dog sprang at his throat, but only succeeded in catching hold of the club, out of which he tore a big piece of flesh with his nails. McMahon then clinched with the sailor, and the two rolled on the floor, McMahon at last getting the best of the fight, but not before he was covered with blood. The five sailors then locked up.

PARNELL FINALLY MARRIED.

His Wedding With Mrs. O'Shea Occurred at an Early Hour.

LONDON, June 26.—There was very little excitement over the marriage of Mr. Parnell and Mrs. Sheas.

Shortly after 8 o'clock a closed carriage left Parnell's home at Brighton and was driven by a coachman who displayed a white favor, to Steyning, a small town in Sussex, where the wedding ceremony was performed by the Registrar. There were no witnesses but the two clerks.

Mrs. O'Shea wore dark attire and a pink-trimmed hat and looked very happy. Parnell was in a neat dark suit and cheerful in manner, but glanced nervously around during the ceremony.

Immediately after the knot had been tied bride and groom started off to their destination not known, but conjectured to be Paris, where it is believed the honeymoon will be spent.

The parish registrar, together with his books of record, vanished after the wedding ceremony had been performed, and it is believed that his disappearance was the result of a bribe, judiciously administered by the wily Irish leader.

When the news of the marriage was brought to Mrs. Parnell's brother, Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood, he expressed his entire pleasure at the termination of the scandal, having keenly felt the injury done to the family by his sister's particular relations with Parnell.

In order to satisfy Catholic sentiment there will be a second marriage, this time by a clergyman in London, as soon as possible, if not immediately.

The Parnellites say that the marriage will restore their leader to his old position.

Gladstone's Friends Alarmed.

LONDON, June 26.—The St. James' Gazette says that Mr. Gladstone's friends are seriously alarmed at the state of his health. The influenza seems to have left him with all his powers enfeebled. He has yielded to the advice of his physicians, and will go without delay to the coast in search of health and absolute rest. His visit is to be strictly private, and he will be accompanied only by his wife. Sir Andrew Clarke insists that he shall see nobody, speak with no one, and transact no public business during his sojourn.

Rushing the Exiled Jews Through.

BERLIN, June 26.—The German authorities are taking extraordinary precautions to prevent the spread of infectious diseases from the Russian Jews, who are flocking through the country. Visitors are no longer permitted to enter the vaults at Charlottenburg, where the exiles rest, while the fugitives are hurried forward as rapidly as possible to their ports of departure for New York.
