THE SUREST ROAD TO WEALTH IS THROUGH LIBERAL ADVERTISING!

DIRTY WORK AGAIN.

The annual crop of slanderous onslaughts upon Senator Quay is now upon the market. A gang of weak-minded scoundrels opened the market in Philadelphia yesterday by throwing broadcast a vile, vindictive document that is a disgrace to the signers.

The approach of the attack was heralded throughout the country for several days past and the people were notified to be prepared for "a political sensation of the first magnitude."

As sensation boomers the authors of that excellent sample of vituperative rhetoric are complete failures. The document is an insult to the intelligent voters of the country. It is a fraud built upon a combination of base lies and no intelligent man who reads it can hereafter entertain any respect for the men who have signed it.

"It is signed by one hundred and fifty Republicans" says a short-sighted contemporary. It is signed by one hundred and fifty political renegades who conspired months ago to hamper the Republican party, doing their dirty work under the guise of saviors of the party.

The men who signed that document are prompted by partisan malice. They are assaulting the Gibraltar of the Republican party with a view to destroying the whole and place victory in the hands of the Democrats. The document shows upon its face that there is a snake in the grass and when the signers say they have made the attack hoping to promote party harmony and success they show their utter disregard for the truth. These men are not in a position at this late day to demand that Mr. Quay resign from the leadership of the Republican party. Their hands are not clean. They are not Republicans. They have left undone those things which they ought to have done months ago, if the object they pretended to reach could have been secured by any possible means. They are men who are ever ready to assert and never ready to prove and their latest attack should be thrown aside until they make good their unfinished work. If Mr. Quay's answer to their old charges was not complete and sufficient to vindicate him let them step forward like men, if they are such, and present their proofs. If they are not capable of doing so let them put their charges and proofs in the hands of men who are and not resort to the childish tactics of trying to associate Mr. Quay with the failure of the Sectional Board bill and Bardsley's defalcations.

In their last splurge these out-throats make some very grave charges and it may happen that Mr. Quay will turn upon them and demand that they give their assertions the proper backing. In such an event, judging from past history, these hypocritical Mugwumps will find themselves in a nasty predicament.

Those who know Mr. Quay know that whatever he does follows calm and deliberate consideration, and when he acts his movements are subject to more than one construction. They are decisive and fearless, such as cause copperheads like the signers of that slanderous manifesto to crawl into their holes.

Mr. Quay could not have attained his undisputed leadership of the Republican party without deserving it and for him to reach that point without creating strong personal antagonisms could not be expected. Very naturally Mr. Quay has made alliances best calculated to advance his own plans and in dispensing his aid and influence has first served those who have served him. Among those who have been fortunate enough to get on the ground floor with Mr. Quay are the latest would-be sensation boomers. They have not been obliged to nurse their disappointments outside the gates, because there is no man in this country who despises a party traitor more than Mr. Quay does. Hence, the case of the manifesto issued by the "150 Republicans" is a very clear one. Quay hates the traitors to his party and the traitors hate Quay. Quay is on top of the heap inside the fence and the traitors are in the soup outside. The traitor has but one consolation—try to pull Quay down. This they are trying to do, but they will never succeed. The Mugwumps own paper, the Philadelphia Press, is forced to this admission:

"The strictures which the address makes upon Mr. Quay lose nearly all their force by being associated with matters irrelevant and disconnected. * * * The object which the address proposes to the Republican voters of Pennsylvania would have been much better promoted by a briefer, better considered and better reasoned appeal."

FIGHT FOR LIFE!

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE MAY CONVICT BEN ALL.

THE TRIAL GROWS VERY EXCITING.

A Platoon of Witnesses Testify in New York's "Jack the Ripper" Case—The Prisoner Displays No Excitement.

By National Press Association.

New York, July 1.—A platoon of witnesses marched into the General Sessions, fired upon Amner Ben All and fell back. They displayed the utmost precision and directness. None of them made any serious blunder. True, they came from the slums, and most of them admitted that they were old jailbirds. Will the jury believe their testimony? Perhaps. If a revolting crime is committed amid the most squalid surroundings, what witnesses can be brought forward other than the sordid creatures who frequent the scene of the crime?

It is too early to do any prophesying yet, but it is hard to believe that an intelligent jury will doom a man to death on the testimony of such degraded persons.

Frenchy Not Excited. Throughout the long drawn proceedings the prisoner never ceased to watch everything that was going on. He served each witness "fats" as earnestly and composedly as a man studies handwriting. He must have understood much of what the witnesses were saying, yet neither fear, nor hate, nor rage moved him as he gazed at the men and women whose words, if believed, will send him to awful death.

Circumstantial Evidence.

The chain of circumstantial evidence had another link riveted in it by Mrs. Sullivan's testimony. She unwittingly but vividly painted the life of poor old Shakespeare. The wretched old woman hadn't eaten anything for two or three days.

The Sullivan woman had only 35 cents, but they went into a saloon and got a glass of beer. Here they ate the free lunch of corned beef and cold slaw, a pickle, bread, and finally, at Alice Sullivan's treat, a cheese sandwich each.

Science finds all these in the blood under Frenchy's finger nails.

The witness for the day was Eddie Fitzgerald, who can't write unless somebody spells for him. He rehearsed the letting of room No. 33 to Frenchy.

Samuel Ruess, the bartender, once an operative of a knitting machine, told how Frenchy had slept in the house the night previous to the one on which the murder occurred.

Dr. William R. Jenkins minutely described the wound seen by him at the autopsy on "Old Shakespeare," and declared that her death was by strangulation.

Detective George Alonci told how he discovered the life of "Frenchy's" circumstantial story about getting blood-stained in a saloon.

Mary Ann Lopez told how she identified Frenchy in the station house as the man who had bitten her arm in attempting to rob her of a dollar.

David Gilloway, Edward Smith and Theodore Miller swore to having seen a knife in French's hands similar to that held by the assistant district attorney.

Inspector Byrnes will probably be called to the stand this afternoon and may spring a surprise on the defence.

The Recorder ruled out all evidence regarding the knife found under the murdered woman.

MANAGER HILL IN TROUBLE.

Constituting Reports About His Failure—An Explanation of the Affair.

Boston, July 1.—J. M. Hill, the well known theatrical manager of New York and Boston, has failed. Several attachments have been placed upon his property here. Several enterprises which have not turned out as profitable as was hoped for is said to be the cause of the failure. There are many rumors in regard to the assets, but nothing definite can be learned. Several hundred the opinion that he will not be able to pay more than five cents on the dollar.

New York, July 1.—The report which came here from Boston that J. M. Hill, the well known theatrical manager, had failed, is said here to be untrue. An explanation of the affair in Boston was, however, given. It seems that Hill, in addition to his theatrical interests, has recently started a restaurant in Boston. This, it is said, did not pay, and a week since he was compelled to raise, by a mortgage of $50,000 on his two New York theatres, money to take an attachment of his Boston restaurant.

Hill's small creditors are now beginning to press him, but he is having no difficulty, it is said, in meeting their demands. His large creditors are not bothering him. In addition to his poor investment in Boston, Mr. Hill is said to have endorsed largely for a friend, who has now gone back on him, and he must meet the notes.

PERSONAL.

Malachi J. Cleary is on the sick list. Isaacar Robbins, of Pottsville, was in town to-day.

Rose Powell spent a part of to-day at Park Place.

Hon. Elias Davis, of Wadesville, was in town to-day.

Capt. Geo. W. Johnson, of St. Clair, was in town yesterday.

Assistant District Attorney Shay spent this afternoon in town.

Levi Kessler's family yesterday moved to Pottsville, where Mr. Kessler is now located as agent for a tea company.

W. H. Arns, of Allentown, Traveling Passenger Agent of the Erie Railway, was in town yesterday on important business.

Sadie Hassler, of North Jardin street, returned home yesterday after spending several weeks with Berks county friends and relatives.

Rev. William Shepp, son of Daniel Shepp, Tamaqua, was in town yesterday, and will probably preach in the Presbyterian church on Sunday.

John A. Praton, formerly of town, but now a resident of Delano, and who was injured in a railroad wreck at Glen Onoko on Sunday morning, was not injured as bad as first reported.

J. H. Kester left town this morning for Kingston, Luzerne county. He will be absent two weeks and in that time will visit all places of interest in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Local Base Ball Notes. The Shenandoah club will go to Delano on the Fourth, and cross bats with Captain Sanger's strong combination. Guise and Gibson will be the battery for the visitors and Reynolds and Griffin for Delano.

The Brownville club is anxious to meet the Lost Creek club. Manager Whelan takes notice.

Gibson has not struck out this season, and Hinkle but once. Gradwell surprised everybody at the last game by not making a safe hit.

Ryan, of the Brownville club, is a promising twirler.

Morris had nine hits in four games. He is also playing a great game at second.

The single members of the Rescue H. & C. Co. will play the married members on the Fourth.

McNealis is a regular stone wall at short.

BOROUGH BUDGET.

GLEANINGS BY THE LOCAL CORPS OF REPORTERS.

A PEDDLER ESCAPES THE PENALTY

A Councilman Causes His Arrest But the Suit is Withdrawn. Deaths From Paralysis and Dropsy.

Lewis Bender, a one-armed man who said he resided in Pittsburgh, was arrested by Chief of Police Amour last night on complaint of Councilman Wurm.

Bender stood in front of the Watson House, selling pe-ctis, pins and novelties and when ordered to desist by Wurm he smiled and continued making sales.

When arrested Bender said he had a state license to peddle, although he was not an old soldier, and furthermore, that Chief Burgess Leisig had authorized him to sell.

Squire Shoemaker relied upon the borough ordinance adopted June 7, 1888, which provides: "That from and after the passage of this ordinance no person or persons shall be permitted to vend peddling, or any other articles of merchandise, in the public streets of said borough. All persons so offending shall be fined the sum of thirty dollars for each and every offence and in default of payment thereof shall be committed to the lockup for this period of forty-eight hours."

Inasmuch as Bender was a cripple and dependent upon his sales for a living the prosecution offered to withdraw the suit and save the imposition of the heavy fine, upon condition that he promised not to sell upon the streets of the town again. Bender agreed to this and the suit was withdrawn.

Booming Lakeside. The managers of Lakeside Park at East Mahanoy Junction are full of resources for providing entertainments for the visitors to that already famous resort. They are now considering the advisability of having a three-day exhibition for the benefit of the firemen of the county. There are 25 companies consisting of 5,000 men in the county. It is proposed to display not only fire engines and hose and ladder trucks, but all the mechanical and inventions in use anywhere in extinguishing fires. The Washington Hose boys had better begin to get the dust off the old hand engine; it would make an interesting exhibit.—Ashland Telegram.

Married. Last evening, at the residence of Deacon John Bann, and by the Rev. H. G. James, Mr. David W. Price and Miss Clara M. Jacobs, both of Shenandoah.

The sweetest rose will have its thorns. And passing clouds the brightest morn May shade with transient sadness; So of the life life weeds must bear You may, dear friends, have your share To make us to be gladness. But, be the future like the past: You both in my country's best Your cares on him, who cares For them whose firm trust and love, First see his blessing from above. Who all these burdens beareth.

H. G. JAMES, Pastor English Baptist Church, Shenandoah, Pa., July 1, 1891.

Gilberton's Big Day. The celebration of the Fourth of July in Gilberton this year will be the greatest in the history of the borough. Messrs. Alexander Jacobs, Fred Weeks, Asby Balliet, William P. Jones and John T. Davis are members of the committee of arrangements. There will be a parade at 9 a. m. and a grand masquerade carnival at 1 p. m. In the evening there will be a display of fireworks and a balloon ascension.

A grand ball will be held in Robbins' opera house on Friday evening, July 3rd. First class orchestra. 7-1-91.

Reckless Shooting. Young men of town are in the habit of going upon the mountain, near the Brandonville road, to shoot at mark and are frequently quite careless in the practice, sometimes shooting towards the houses on Line street and endangering the lives of the residents. The other day shots were fired towards the houses and two bullets were imbedded in the frame work of a house close to a woman who was washing clothes.

First Class in History. Teacher—"Why did Alexander weep?" Class—"Cos he couldn't find any more worlds to conquer."

Teacher—"Why could he find no more?" Class—"Cos he didn't advertise."

Obituary. Mrs. Daniel Hinkis, of North Chestnut street, died this morning from the effects of a third paralytic stroke.

Mrs. Peter Becker, residing in Leitzel's flat, on East Coal street, died this morning of dropsy.

THE MISSOURI FLOODS.

All Dangers Over but Farm Houses Are Still Surrounded by Water.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 1.—The flood in the Missouri River reached its highest stage at 8 o'clock, when it registered 95 feet and two inches above low water mark. The water is now falling at the rate of an inch an hour, and all apprehension of further danger is set at rest.

Parts of Kansas City, Kan., are still submerged by the back water, but only the houses of squatters in the low lands have been badly damaged. Various industries in the bottoms have been seriously inconvenienced.

Harlem, the village across the river, which was flooded yesterday, is still under water, but no further damage has been done.

A special from Atchison, Kan., says: The house of Pleasant Little of Doniphan Point went into the river with its contents yesterday afternoon. The house was occupied by John McGinnon and his family. Little boarded with them. They had vacated the house a few hours before it fell, taking refuge in the main land. Little escaped with McGinnon's family, but has not been seen since, and it is feared that he returned to the house and was lost with it.

Between Atchison and Rushville the Hannibal & St. Jo and Kansas City, St. Jo & Council Bluffs tracks are covered with water in several places. Between Rushville and the river not less than 25 farm houses are surrounded by water and the farmers are out in boats trying to rescue shocks of wheat that are yet above water.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A Young Weaver at Lawrence Kills His Sweetheart and Himself.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 1.—A terrible tragedy occurred in Union street at 7 a. m. John Rausch, aged 24, called Maria Burckett, aged 18 years, from the Everett Mills, where she was employed, and after a few words shot her through the heart, killing her instantly. Rausch then shot and killed himself, putting a bullet through his head.

Miss Burckett was Rausch's sweetheart. They have kept company for about two years, but Rausch became impressed with the idea that his affection was not fully reciprocated.

The bodies of both were taken to No. 3 Engine House, where they were viewed by the medical examiners.
