A Persistent Sultor. Scranton, July 17.—An interesting case has arisen under the marriage laws of this state. Antonio Atteregi and Rosa Argento, Italians, the former aged 39 and the latter, desire to wed. The girls' suitor for age, not appearing to be over 12, when they asked for a marriage license Clerk Thomas refused to give him one, saying that it would be an insult for him to do so under the circumstances. Lettered, he retained L. F. Sando, who will ask for a manumission compelling Clerk Thomas to grant the license. Mr. Sando says that where the proper consent is obtained the Clerk of the Courts must give a license, even if the girl be not over 18 years of age.

DRIPSY THE GREAT REMEDY FOR ALL THE URINARY AFFECTIONS...

HIPPOLYTE, OF HAYTI.

HE IS HOLDING HIS OWN WITH GREAT ODDS.

The Black Republic No Place for Diplomats of Civilized Governments — The Representatives of all Countries Recently Insulted by the President.

It has been reported that the serious political troubles on the island of Hayti had culminated in the assassination of Gen. Hippolyte by one of the insurgents, but this has been denied by those in a position to know. The latest reliable information received is to the effect that the revolution is still going on, however. This uprising had its origin in Port-au-Prince on Corpus Christi Day, and only about 300 men and boys, principally unarmed, are said to have lost their lives. Gen. Hippolyte is said to have acted with great moderation. In suppressing the little revolution of Gen. Sully-Carrier he leaves a presidential possibility the less in the country. The Haytian press characterizes the present president as a mild-mannered, genial gentleman, and one who owing to great benevolence of temperament, is hardly fitted to play a role in the stern political drama of that republic.

PRESIDENT HIPPOLYTE. has ruled over the black republic for over a year, and though his sway has been disputed in three revolutions and four sporadic riots he seems still quite firm in the presidential chair.

Of course, General Hippolyte does not expect to complete his presidential term of six years; an ordeal so severe and so long drawn out would snap even the hard fiber of a Haytian politician, seasoned though he may have been in a hundred revolutions. General Hippolyte has very nearly completed the average term of eighteen months which, by some unwritten law is allotted to the Haytian presidents to rule in, and doubtless he will soon see him following in the wake of his predecessors, Salomon and Legitime, sail away to Paris to join with them in the pursuit of ex-presidential pleasures, and assume his proper position as an interesting figure in that circle of South and Central American ex-potestates who help to make a certain section of society life in Paris picturesque, and who are quite as worthy of the biting wit of Daudet as the exiled royals.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS, THE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UNITED STATES, with a scene of bloody resolutions, with a certain grotesque parody of civilized government. The latest outrage perpetrated by Hippolyte that has been reported took place the last of May, when he sought to violate the right of asylum by taking four political prisoners from the Mexican consulate in Port-au-Prince. The entire diplomatic corps called on the president to protest against this violation. Mr. Tweedy, who acts in Port-au-Prince as British consul temporarily, spoke first and in a rather aggressive way, which made Hippolyte angry. He jumped up from his chair, saying, "Is this the way to talk to me, the president of this great country?" and they went out, slamming the door after him.

In marked contrast to the conduct of the United States minister, Fred Douglass, who stood by trembling with fear while the black tyrant raved and insulted so many civilized nations, was the attitude of the German consul. The latter said he was there as a representative of the German empire and the German emperor, and he protested against the rude behavior of the president and would report the insult to his government. This frightened Hippolyte and he offered more explanations and apologies,

JOSEPH EWING McDONALD, sincerely mourned throughout the nation and state of which he had been a resident since 1826 and which he has served in many official capacities. He was attorney-general two terms, served as a state judge and was afterward a member of the national house of representatives and of the United States senate. He had a high reputation as a constitutional lawyer and commanded large fees in his practice.

Judgement should be displayed in buying medicine above all things. In selecting a remedy for any disease, you should be positive that it contains nothing injurious to the health. Many remedies on the market leave the patient in a much worse condition, than before taking them.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and perfectly harmless; the most delicate child can take it with absolute safety. It contains no mercury or minerals of any kind, and yet it never fails to cure the diseases it is recommended for.

MRS. BURTON HARRISON.

A Talented Lady Where Literary Efforts Have Been Rewarded.

The friends of Mrs. Burton Harrison are fond of saying that success has not spoiled her. No one who has read her books needs telling any is witty and it may be suspected that she lives long and comfortably. She enjoys the amenities of social life, is a mistress of the art of entertaining as of the rarer art of making real friends.

Constance Cary and is a Virginian of the Virginians. Her mother was a Fairfax, her father closely related to Thomas Jefferson. She grew up at Vancluse, the Fairfax place, was thoroughly educated, visited Europe with her mother immediately after the war, was married on her return and has since lived in the midst of the metropolitan society she has so cleverly satirized in "The Angelinas." Mrs. Harrison has written much of southern life "Woman's Handwork in Modern Homes" and "The Old-Fashioned Fairy Book" are among her earlier successful volumes. Then she has the skill to conquer the difficulties of play-writing.

HOW RATS STEAL EGGS.

Remarkable Intelligence of Wise Rodents. The town of Waco, Tex., is infested with rats in countless legions. They run through the streets, invade the stores and residences, devour grain, flour and groceries, and make of themselves unnumbered nuisances, which the application of ordinary and extraordinary remedies has failed to remove.

While they accept almost anything that comes in their way as edible, they have a penchant for eggs, and the way they envy them from the nests to their holes is thus related by Sam Whaley, the jailer, who has made their habits a study.

"I set an old black hen right up there," he said, pointing to the corner of the jail-yard where Sheriff Dan Ford's horses are stabled, "and they carried off every egg and broke the hen up. She went to laying again in two weeks and made her nest in another stall. Two eggs were in the nest, and these remained undisturbed, but when the third was laid it disappeared, two still remaining. I watched and saw the rats come—four of them.

"The smallest of the quartet straddled his four legs over the egg, hunched it tight, then rolled over on his back, holding the egg tightly pressed against his belly. One rat took the prostrate one by the ears, just like a boy holding the handles of a wheelbarrow, and kept him steady, while the other two took him by the tail, and away they went, pushing and pulling, until they got the egg to their hole under the brick wall."

A. Kirchner, one of the largest liquor dealers in Waco, has observed that there are sober rats, who never touch a drop; moderate drinkers, who take just enough, and regular soles who get drunk every day, and possibly go home and beat their families. The drip from the beer faucets is where the rats do their drinking. Tin pans are kept under the faucets to catch the waste beer and protect the floor and to these pass the rats' resort.

The moderate drinker takes a sip or two, then wipes his whiskers on his front leg and gallops off. The old toper drinks deep, reels off to the back yard, falls clumsily into his hole, and the squeaking heard after he gets into his cellar indicates either that he's whipping his wife or she him, or that he is making her run after remedies.

SHE WAS A COWGIRL.

This is the Way She Looked to Admiring Pleasemen. Miss Cynthia Westover, now private secretary to Commissioner Beattie, is a girl with a history. When she was a child she lived ponyback among the Rockies with Professor Westover, the geologist, who is her father. In those days she spent months without seeing a woman, and ready to scream at such a curiosity, for, as you observe, she had no reminder in her own person that there was a sex feminine, since she was dressed for convenience and perhaps also for picturesque and beauty, as a little cowgirl. She could say the least when she wore these garments and shorn squirrels. She could do, indeed, most things the Indian children do, which makes it all the stranger that she should be now in such a responsible metropolitan position.

Unsatisfactory Shopping Places. Daughter—"Here is Biggs, Stocks & Co's great store. Let's go in." Mother—"No, no. No matter what we ask for they will be sure to have it."

ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

The sexton is consequently in the dilemma of having a time-honored office without any salary. At the Easter vestry his re-election was mooted, and he thought it very hard, and naturally, too, that he should have to work for nothing. He inquired if in the event of his giving up the office the rector would have power to prevent him from carrying out his duties as sexton of the Curfew bell, but no one could inform him. We trust, says the Pall Mall Gazette, the rector will not allow this interesting custom to fall into desuetude, and perhaps, if he be anything of an antiquarian, he will see to its observance himself.

BEAU BRUMMEL.

Tale of the Man Who Was Once Known The World Over. The Beau Brummel of America died the other day at the age of 91. His name was Lawrence Gardiner. As a youth he was rich and a protégé of Aaron Burr. From 1833 until 1837 he was Gotham's "king of fashion" and set the style for all the young bucks of the period. Then he lost his fortune and with it his place as a society leader. He went into business and did well. His accumulations were swept away by a panic in 1875. For the remainder of his life the weary old gentleman found refuge in the Brooklyn Home for Aged Men. There he was discovered dead in bed one morning recently. Like Beau Brummel he reigned, retired and passed into the obscurity of mere existence.

DRUNKENNESS. It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will check a movement and speed up the system. It is a moderate draught of an alcoholic beverage, it has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never fails. The system can be impregnated with the spirit, and the patient will be able to resist the liquor appetite of spirits.

Macbeth's "pearl top" and "pearl glass" lamp-chimneys do not break from heat, not one in a hundred; they break from accidents.

They are made of clear glass as well as tough, as clear as crystal. They fit the lamps they are made for. Shape controls the draft; they are shaped right. Draft contributes to proper combustion; that makes light; they improve the light of a lamp.

But they cost a dealer three times as much as common chimneys, and, as they do not break, he is apt to be anxious lest they stop his trade. Diminished sales and less profit are not agreeable to him.

There are two sides to the question. Have a talk with him.
