CONVENTION CALL.

To the Republican Electors of Pennsylvania:
After consultation and correspondence with the members of the Republican State Committee, and by their direction, I hereby give notice that the Republicans of Pennsylvania, by their duty-shown representatives, will meet in State Convention at Harrisburg, Wednesday, August 19, 1891, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the offices of State Treasurer and Auditor General, for the nomination of eighteen candidates for Delegates-at-Large to the Constitutional Convention provided for in the Act of Assembly approved June 29, 1891, and for the transaction of such other business as may be presented.

Notice is especially directed to the fact that, in accordance with the provisions of the last mentioned act, each Senatorial district is entitled to a representation of three delegates to said Constitutional Convention, two of whom only can be members of the majority party in said district. The electors of each district are therefore requested to make proper nominations for delegates to said convention, the rules governing the nomination of candidates for State Senator to be applicable.

In this connection the Chairman desires to call the attention of Republican voters to the recommendation of the State Convention of 1882; that "they enjoy the greatest freedom in the general participation in the primaries consistent with the preservation of the party organization."

WM. H. ANDREWS, Chairman.

Among the laws passed by the New Jersey Democratic Legislature last winter was one authorizing the Board of Pardons to indiscriminately release from the State Prison murderers and professional criminals under the parole or English ticket-of-leave system. Already a number of murderers and other criminals have secured their release under the new order of things. The board this week met at Sea Girt, where the First Regiment is in camp, and while a batch of convicts were being pardoned the regimental band near by was playing such appropriate airs as "Sweet Land of Liberty" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

The average reader would scarcely be aware of the fact if he were not told of it that there is not an ex-Vice President of the United States now living. Hannibal Hamlin was the last survivor of the men, who held the second official position under the government previous to the present term. Johnson, Colfax, Wilson, Wheeler, Arthur and Hendricks have, in succession, filled the Vice Presidency since the close of the war, but all of them were dead years before Hamlin, who preceded them in office. Dead, too, are all the defeated candidates of the two great parties for this post except English and Thurman. Blair, Brown, Hendricks (who was unsuccessful in 1876) and Logan, nominees for this office, beginning in 1893, are gone. Of the ex-President only two—Hayes and Cleveland—a-e left us.

The Ohio Democratic State Convention has laid down the gauge of battle which the Democratic party would have read: "The closing of American factory doors or the reduction of American wages to the British standard." It remains to be seen what the answer of the people of Ohio will be to this infamous proposition, but we have faith to believe that Democracy and British Free Trade will be so overwhelmingly snowed under next November that neither one nor the other will ever again be a factor in Ohio politics.

Give the republic more carefully guarded immigration laws. This has been a necessity of the civilization called American for some time, and attitude of a foreign nation and of citizens residents of the United States claiming nativity in that nation simply accentuates this necessity. The most tolerant and broad-minded of all the nations of history respecting the right of immigration, this republic has now reached the utmost limit of safety in the pursuance of her policy. Henceforth it is the dictate of sound statesmanship to regulate the immigration in accordance with the interests of the existing population, the welfare of the land and the future of republican government on this continent.

Another Interesting Sermon Delivered in the Methodist Episcopal Church Last Evening, by Rev. William Powick.

"The Voyage of Life" is the topic selected for a series of sermons on Sunday evenings by Rev. William Powick, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church on East Oak street. The sermons are creating considerable interest and attracting large congregations. Some point in the navigation of a ship is taken up and explained each evening and then moral lessons are drawn and enforced.

Last night the subject was "The Log." A ship's log was exhibited and the process of "heaving the log" was described. "The method by which the navigator finds his way across the sea by dead reckoning was explained. From the skill and care required in keeping the log-book was drawn the lesson of thoughtful solicitude for the welfare of the soul. What the log is to the mariner, experience is to the Christian. It tells him of his progress in grace and virtue. Men ought to be as careful of the soul as they are of the body, but experience proves that they are not. The paradox of the age is that while it demands scientific precision and mathematical demonstration in material things it puts a premium on indefiniteness of doctrine, uncertainty of experience and looseness of morals. This solicitude should be constant, not spasmodic. Men move too often by fits and starts, being governed by impulses rather than principles. As the sailor never relaxes his effort nor ceases his vigilance, so the Christian should constantly watch and pray." The series will be continued for several weeks.

McGUINNESS'S GUEST.

An Interesting Story of the West and East.

Several years ago B. J. McGuinness, who now keeps a hotel in town, worked in a Colorado mine with one Owen McGinley. One day there was an explosion in the mine. McGuinness was so badly injured that he was disabled for life. McGinley escaped injury, heard that McGuinness was so badly burned that his life hung by a thread, and struck out for more congenial employment in Mexico. In due time McGuinness recovered and returned to town. He had never heard of McGinley after the explosion and supposed him to be dead. This morning a stranger arrived in town in search of work. He stepped into the Watson House and called for a drink. As the beverage was handed, the customer looked at the bartender and the bartender looked at the customer.

"McGuinness!"
"McGinley!"
"It is!"
"I'm sure!"
"How are you?"
"How is yourself?"
"I thought you were dead."
"I thought you were buried long ago."
"Shake."
"Take another?"
"I will."

And now McGinley is McGuinness's guest.

Popular Excursion.

One of the most popular and cheapest summer excursions is the annual Heller excursion over the famous and picturesque Lehigh Valley railroad, to Niagara Falls, which takes place this year on Saturday, July 25th. The fare is only $8.50. Tickets are limited to 10 days and good to return on any regular train. Stop off privileges are allowed at Buffalo and Elmira (returning) affording passengers an opportunity to take in Watkins Glen. ## SENSATIONAL RUMORS.

Distressing Reports Concerning Mahanoy City People.

At noon today a report reached this town that seven members of the Mahanoy City company of the National Guard now encamped at Mt. Gretna were captured while out rowing and drowned, and that Frank Kerns and David Thomas were among the number.

The HERALD communicated with a Mahanoy City representative and learned that the town was greatly excited by a report that there was a cloud burst at Mt. Gretna this morning and seventy-five members of the National Guard, including several Mahanoy City people, had been drowned.

David Thomas was mentioned in the Mahanoy City report. A woman who learned that her husband was among the victims was so completely prostrated that she has been unconscious since the report was circulated.

The HERALD wired several points for information concerning the rumors, but up to the time of going to press nothing confirming them could be learned. A dispatch from one reliable source says: "Have heard nothing from Mt. Gretna. The report is probably a hoax."

CIRCULAR TO THE FREEMEN

By the Secretary of the State Firemen's Association.

The following notice from the Secretary of the State Firemen's Association appears in the American Freeman for July:

"The twelfth annual convention of the firemen of Pennsylvania will be held in the city of Lock Haven, commencing Tuesday, September 15, 1891, and it is desirable that this be the largest held. There are several measures of the greatest importance to be presented to the firemen of the state, some of which interest all firemen individually, it is therefore especially important to have the full attendance of all fire departments and companies, as well as the chief engineers of the several departments and individual members of the association present.

The rates of transportation have been arranged for via trunk and lateral railroads, and ticket orders can be had September 1, on application, to the Recording Secretary, W. W. Wadler, Reading, Pa. Companies desirous of taking apparatus with them must make application to the freight agent at the station they start from not later than ten days before starting to secure free transportation for their apparatus, and give the agent time to provide cars for the transportation of same. Hotel accommodations are ample for all."

OUR LOCAL BANKS.

Both Institutions Make an Excellent Showing.

The reports of the condition of The First National Bank and The Merchants' National Bank of town at the close of business on July 9th, 1891, are published. They make a very gratifying showing and demonstrate that the town is well able, notwithstanding the predictions of the past, to support two national banks.

The First National's statement shows as a part of its resources $282,704.09 in loans and discounts. Its undivided profits amount to $9,900.23 and the individual deposits aggregate $195,459.01.

The Merchants' National Bank is four months old and makes its second report, showing loans and discounts amounting to $116,498.46; undivided profits, $2,765.25; and individual deposits, $51,644.01.

A LOVER'S GRIME.

HE FOULLY MURDERS A MISS WHO REJECTED HIM.

CRITICISING POWDERLY'S ACTIONS

A Scranton Paper Thinks He is Not Averse to Political Favors. Great Influx of Huns in the Luzerne Region.

Hanover, N. H., July 20.—Miss Christie Warden was shot to death about one mile from home late last Friday night by Frank Almy, a rejected suitor.

Few of the citizens of Hanover know until this morning of the murder. The high character and social position of the victim, together with the boldness and desperation of the deed have helped to raise excitement to a high pitch.

Telegrams giving a description of the murderer were sent out within one hour after the shooting to deputy sheriffs along the line of all the railroads in this section and to conductors on all the trains at White River Junction, Wells River and Woodsville.

That he could have escaped by train seems almost impossible, and he is thought to be hiding in, or making his way through the woods. Business is practically suspended, and large numbers of armed men, among them nearly all of the Dartmouth professors who are spending their vacations at home, are scouring the country.

One theory is that suicide was the second act in the tragedy, and that the body of the murderer will be found within a few hours not far from where his fiendish work was done. Another theory is that having long premeditated the act, he planned such speedy and effective means of escape that he is already a considerable distance away.

The victim, Miss Christie Warden, with her mother, her sister Fannie, and Louie Goodell, were going home on foot from a meeting of Graciosa Star Grange, in which Miss Warden has held for several years the office of "lecturer." At about eleven o'clock they had reached Poash Hollow, half a mile outside of the village, when Almy appeared from a side road and said:

"I am Frank Almy. I don't want anything of you, Mrs. Warden, or Fannie. Go right along. I want Christie."

At the same time he took hold and pushed her to an opening in the fence.

All three tried to resist him, when he drew a revolver, threatening their lives. Mrs. Warden cried for help and ran back to meet some neighbors who were returning from the Grange meeting. After Christie had been forced into the field she called to Fannie.

"Oh, Fannie, come and help me. He is tearing my clothes all off!"

In the meantime the brute was drawing his victim nearer to a clump of willows. In response to her sister's renewed cry for help, Fannie rushed forward, when Almy said:

"Fannie, I hate you and will kill you for interfering!"

At the same time he fired. The bullet passed so near her face that she felt its whizz. The wind then dragged the girl, whom he had professed to love, under the willows, and mercilessly shot her through the head and body.

The revolver used was of 44 calibre. One of the bullets passed through the head of the victim, tearing the left eye out, and death must have been instantaneous.

Help arrived in a few minutes, but the murderer had fled. Almy appeared here about a year ago, claimed to have come from the employ of the Brown Lumber Company of Wentworth, and that Savannah, Ga., was his home. He engaged as a farm laborer with Mr. Warden; was gentlemanly in appearance and deportment and well educated.

He soon began paying marked attention to Miss Christie, who discouraged his advances and plainly told him that his suit could not be considered. Her parents, who were of the same mind, had been investigating at Wentworth, and had found that Almy had worked there, he had been known by another name, Mr. Warden discharged him last April. Since then his whereabouts have been unknown.

Salvationists in Trouble.

Reading, July 20.—Captain Duffin and five other members of the Salvation Army had a hearing last night before Alderman Kershman on the charge of disorderly conduct and creating a nuisance. A large number of neighbors testified that the noise was so great in the neighborhood of the barracks up to 11 and 12 o'clock at night they could not sleep. The witnesses said that they yelled and beat drums and tambourines and sang blasphemous songs, such as "Pat on the Gospel Skate." The Alderman held the captain in $500 bail and his associates in $250.

THE MCKINLEY BILL.

Some Very Interesting Facts Concerning Tin Plate.

The British iron and steel market is dull. The recovery which usually comes after the mid-summer depression has got a setback this year, more especially in the steel trade, by the withdrawal of the tinplate makers' demand for soft steel billets. This depression is all the more palpable owing to the extraordinary demand in the first half of the year, due to the immense tonnage of tin plate ordered by American importers to anticipate the increase of duty, which went into effect on July 1. The shut-down of the tin-plate plants for a month, beginning on the 1st instant, left a hole in the steel trade market that is not only severely felt in billets, but in other lines, inasmuch as the mills which had been supplying material for sheets for tin and terno plate are seeking other markets for their output, and of course affect these markets.

With so close connection of blood with the locality which must be so hard hit by the birth and bringing up of America's infant industry, American citizens, native and British born, must feel sympathy with those who are hurt, while at the same time congratulating themselves that so important addition is being made to the demand for home workmen. Mr. Joseph D. Weeks, editor of the American Manufacturer and former secretary of the Western Iron Association, has made a calculation of this demand based on the importation of tin plate during the twelve months ending April 30, last, which was 422,234 tons. To make this would require 1,100,000 tons of iron ore, melted into 550,000 tons of pig, requiring 600,000 tons of coke. In the sheet mills there would be 400,000 tons of sheet iron or steel to be rolled, with the equivalent of 1,600,000 tons of coal consumed in the mills. Mr. Weeks sums up as follows:

Now, taking no account of the men engaged in the transportation of materials to their point of consumption, nor of the men engaged in producing the lumber or making the boxes to box this amount of tin plate, of which some 8,000,000 boxes would be required, we would have the following as the number of men working 300 days in the year that would be required to produce the materials named above necessary to make 422,234 net tons of tin plate:

1872	1,872
1873	1,872
1874	1,872
1875	1,872
1876	1,872
1877	1,872
1878	1,872
1879	1,872
1880	1,872
1881	1,872
1882	1,872
1883	1,872
1884	1,872
1885	1,872
1886	1,872
1887	1,872
1888	1,872
1889	1,872
1890	1,872
1891	1,872
Total	18,872

This is equivalent to 5,648,000 days' labor. This, at an average of $2.50 per day, would be equivalent to $14,120,000 paid out in wages. The fact that the declared value of the amount of tin plate above named was $28,225,235 will show that my estimate is probably far below the mark. I think it would be fair to assume that fully 30,000 people would be given employment directly if the amount of tin plate named were made in this country, and more than four times this number of people given employment indirectly.

Great Influx of Huns.

Wilkes Barre, July 20.—Within the last two weeks it is estimated that no less than 700 to 800 Poles and Hungarians have arrived in this vicinity. Of these fully 500 have come to this city and the rest chiefly to Plymouth. It is believed they were brought here by the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company. It is known that this company has decided not to comply with the provisions of the two weeks' pay bill. Superintendent Lawall, the head of this division, stated yesterday that so long as he had the direction of the company's affairs here, the men would only be paid every month, as they have been in the past.
