INVADED A CONVENT

Midnight Assault of a Scoundrel on Nuns.

THEY SHRIEKED FOR HELP.

The Women Were Asleep When He Broke Into the House,

All the Sisters Attacked in Turn and Ruthlessly Insulted-Help Came After the Misercant Escaped-The Police Unable to Obtain a Clew to the Marauder-Excitement Over the Affair.

New York, Aug. 31.—"Help! Help! save me !" screamed one of the sisters in the little convent building on Harrison place, Williamsburg, early this morning. The shricks of the nineteen-year-old nun aroused the other five sisters and the Mother Superior, who, with eight orphans, were the occupants of the convent build-

At once all was confusion and terror. In the darkness no one could tell what the matter was, until the Mother Superior struck a match and lighted the hall gas, where by that time all the nuns had as-

Then it was seen that an intruder was attacking all the sisters in turn, smothering them with forced caresses. All shricked and as fast as they could escaped from the clutches of the monster and ran down to the lower floor, where the eight little waifs slept.

The children added their screams to those of the affrightment nums who had

PROVED A FAILURE.

Letter Boxes on Street Cars Will be Withdrawn.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. - It is now likely that the Postoffice Department will abandon Postmaster-General Wanamaker's plan of putting letter boxes on street cars in the large cities. The plan was tried in several cities, and was op-posed by the labor people and those who are running street cars on Sunday.

are running street cars on Sunday.

The labor people opposed the scheme because they thought it would reduce the number of letter carriers, and those opposed to Sunday railroad traffic made it an issue to prohibit the running of street cars, claiming that the charters of street railways give them the right to carry passengers only.

The matter has not been entirely abandoned by the Department, but in view of the opposition it has met with it is thought that it will soon be dropped.
