HALIFAX, N. S., Sep. 18 .- Prof Lee chief of the Bowdoin College Labrator expedition, expresses himself as being more than satisfied with the result of the expedition. He had solved the quation of the existence and size of th Grand Falls of Labrador, and found a race of Montagnais Indians never being known to white men. Their characteristics were noted and they were measured as to height, breadth and shoulders, height of head, form of nose, nature a ears and distance between the eres. These measurements will be shown upon charts at the World's Fair, and will demon-strate how this tribe differs from all other Indian races.

Royal Gifts.

The finest sables in the world are owned by the exarina of Russia and the duchess of Edinburgh, who inherited those belonging to her mother, the mother of the exar. The favorite bridal gift of the Russian empress is one of furs, and fortunate, indeed, are the reciplents of the splendid specimens she stows. When the Princess Alexandra of Greece wedded the Grand Duke Paul of Russia, the czarina sent three dressing gowns of fur to prevent the fragile bride experiencing ill effects from the change of climate. One robe was of sable fastened down the front with six clasps of real pearl, another of silver fox trimmed with bullion-gold cords, and the third of blue fox, the rarest fur in the world, confined with a girdle of diamonds.
