DISCIPLINE IN MINES.

Evils of Disobedience and Carless ness of Workmen.

In many instances, the official in-Reduction in Rates.

Communiting October 1st the Providence and Stonington Steamship Co. will reduce the discount of the causes of accidents in the mines leads directly to a lack of discipline. More accidents occur from editor directly the direct discobelience of orders, or carelessness, than from any other

Mine laws alone will not bring about

Mine laws alone will not bring about immunity from accidents. If workmen will not use every precaution to ensure their own safety, the mere fact of certain laws being on the statute book will not help them.

Colliery efficials owe it to themselves, their employers, and humanity to enforce discipline in all cases. All violations of the mine haws, however slight, should be followed by a reprimand or suspension from work, and a repetition of the offence should mean instant di charge.

The peculiar circumstances and changes accompanied in many cases changes accompanied in many cases by sudden danger, which occur con-stantly in mines, indispensably require thorough discipline as essential to safety. Whenever the source of danger is understood and can be avoided neglect or lack of dicipline resulting in loss of life or property is inexcusable, whether it be displayed by manage-ment or the workman.

Discipline is just as essential in the force of a mine, as in the army. Where the carelessness of one man may result in the death or injury of a may result in the death or injury of a dozen or bundreds, it is of no avail that all are careful and well disciplined men but one. All must be subject to a rigid disciplinary system. A careful perusal of the reports of both the American and British Mine Inspectors, shows that the major portion of the mine accidents with their attending destruction of life and property are due to carelessness or disobedience of orders or, in other words, to lack of disrdemor, in other words, to lack of disthe duty of those in authority to apply the remedy.

It may be impossible to wholly remedy this evil, but a strong and continuous citort should be made. Spasmodic treatment will not cure the evil. To use a familiar expression, "Eternal vigitance is the price of safety,"—
