MR. COVILLE AS A SPIGOT

SELECTIONS FROM THE WRITINGS OF THE DANBURY NEWS MAN.

Coville Has a Hard Time with a Loaded Keg and Gets the Worst of It, Also His Son and Heir.

[Copyrighted by Lee & Shepard, Boston, and published by special arrangement with them.]

Mrs. Coville has been ailing ever since last summer. She was not down sick so as to demand the attention of the doctor, but she was debilitated. A general weakness seemed to envelop her like a cloud, holding her muscles in abeyance, making her feel to a degree helpless, but giving her no pain. She did her household work without help, but there was no love for the work, and she carried no spirit into it. A week ago a German friend of Mr. Coville told him that if his wife drank a glass of lager beer before each meal she would soon derive a decided benefit. Mr. Coville lost no time in getting a keg of the article, and in forty-eight hours after had it in his cellar. The German told him how to tap it, viz., drive the spigot against the cork in the bung, and thus force the cork inside while the spigot filled the bunghole.

After dinner Mr. Coville attended to this matter. He put the spigot against the cork, hit two smart raps with a hammer and the cork was driven in, but unfortunately he let go of the spigot before it was well settled, and there being a very heavy pressure to the beer it was thrown from the barrel and carried to the other end of the cellar, while the liquor shot vehemently forth. The first thought of Mr. Coville was to save the beer, and with that object he thrust his thumb into the opening, after getting his sleeve to the armpit and his bosom, face and hair deluged with the fluid. This was a success, and for a moment Mr. Coville plumed himself upon it. Then came the realization that while the beer was safe it was only at his personal inconvenience in the character of a spigot, a light he had never before considered himself in, and which did not now bring him the most elevating of emotions.

On the contrary, Mr. Coville was inclined to resent his situation as something forced upon him against his will, and as being entirely foreign to his hopes and plans in this life. He was down in the cellar alone—at one end of the cellar, while the spigot was at the other, in sight, but as far removed from him as if it floated in the middle of the Caspian sea. He could hear some movement up stairs and a sort of rumbling sound like the movement of a body over the floor, and he shouted aloud for aid.

Now it is a singular fact that while one can hear a voice ordinarily delivered in another room, the loudest scream from him will not reach the owner of the voice. If Mr. Coville was not before aware of this fact, he was made to realize it now. Shout after shout ascended from the cellar, while the pain in his thumb crept up his arm, and the beer oozed from his hair and dripped silently from his face. It was a time to think, and Mr. Coville tried to think calmly and dispassionately, but as the sounds from above assumed a more definite shape, and gradually communicated to his mind that his son and heir was making a rapid circuit of the dining room astraddle of a chair or some other object, which improvised animal he was stimulating to the highest possible speed by sundry cries of an encouraging nature, his mind lost its power of concentration, and the atmosphere of the cellar became sensible of being disturbed by other sounds than those directly appealing for help.

In fact, Mr. Coville was mad; stark, staring, raving mad. In so far as the role of a spigot would permit, Mr. Coville jumped up and down, and wiggled his body and contorted his face. Finally the strength of purpose, hitherto nourished by the contemplative cost of the beer, exhausted the nourishment, and thus exhausted itself, and wrenching his thumb from the barrel the unhappy man started for the stairs, being materially aided therein by the force of the escaping beer, which caught him fairly in the back of the legs as he turned to go.

Mr. Coville may not have had any definite purpose in view when he clawed his way up the stairs, but on reaching the dining room and discovering the hope of his life prancing about on the back of a prostrate chair, with a face shining with wholesome delight, his struggling and tortured mind fastened on this circumstance with electric speed.

The flavor of camphor which is distilled from young Coville as he moves about since then would lead a stranger to infer that a ferocious attack from an army of moths was momentarily threatening the unfortunate youth, and was averted only through the united efforts of fifteen alert and uncompromising druggists.

No Harry.

A Hartford subscriber writes that he is just recovering from the smallpox and will be on in a few days to renew his subscription. We hope he won't mind a little thing like that. We will send the paper and wait for the money. We will wait cheerfully. We ain't of that avaricious kind of people who will grab for money as if for very life. We despise such things. There's no earthly reason for his coming on; we will wait.

Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The general election in all the wards, townships, districts and boroughs of the county is to be opened between the hours of six and seven o'clock in the forenoon, and shall continue without interruption or adjournment until seven o'clock in the evening, when all the polls shall be closed.

Every person, excepting justices of the peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the government of the United States, or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise, a subordinate officer or agent, who is or shall be employed under the legislative, executive or judiciary department of the State, or of the United States, or of any city, or incorporated district, and also every member of Congress, or of the State legislature, and of the select and common councils of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district, is by law incapable of holding or exercising at the same time the office of judge, inspector or clerk of any election of this Commonwealth, and an inspector, judge, or any officer of any such election shall be ineligible there to be voted for.

The inspectors and judge of the elections shall meet at the respective places appointed for holding the election in the district in which they respectively belong before seven o'clock in the morning, and each of said inspectors shall appoint one clerk, who shall be a qualified voter of such district.

In case the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend on the day of any election, then the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for judge at the next preceding election shall act as inspector in his place. And in case the person who shall have received the highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend, the person elected judge shall appoint an inspector in his place; and in case the person elected judge shall not attend, then the inspector who received the highest number of votes shall appoint a judge in his place, or if any vacancy shall continue in the board for the space of one hour after the time fixed by law for opening of the election, the qualified voters of the township, ward or district for which such officers shall have been elected, present at such election, shall elect one of their number to fill such vacancy.

It shall be the duty of the several assessors of each district to attend at the place of holding every general, special or township election during the whole time said election is kept open, for the purpose of giving information to the inspectors and judges when called on, in relation to the right of any person assessed by them to vote at such an election or such other matter in relation to the assessment of voters as the said inspectors, or either of them, shall from time to time require.

SUFFRAGE QUALIFICATIONS.

"Every male citizen, twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections:

First—He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

Second—He shall have resided in the State one year (or if having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the State he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.

Third—He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

Fourth—If twenty-two years of age or upward he shall have paid within two years a State or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months, and paid one month before the election."

No person shall be permitted to vote whose name is not contained in the list of taxable inhabitants, furnished by the Commissioners, unless, First, he produces a receipt for the payment within two years, of a State or county tax assessed agreeably to the constitution and gives satisfactory evidence either upon his oath or affirmation of another, that he has paid such a tax at least one month before the election, or on failure to produce a receipt, shall make oath to the payment thereof at least one month before election. Second, if he claims his right to vote by being an elector between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-two years, he shall depose on oath or affirmation that he has resided in the State at least one year next before his application, and make such proof of residence in the district as is required by this act, and that he does verily believe from the account given him that he is of the age aforesaid, and such other evidence as is required by this act, whereupon the name of the person thus admitted to vote shall be inserted in the alphabetical list by the inspectors and a note made opposite thereto by writing the word "tax," if he shall be permitted to vote by reason of having paid tax; or the word "age," if he shall be admitted to vote by reason of such age, shall be called out to the clerk, who shall make the like notes on the list of voters kept by them.
