PERSONNEO, Brazil, Nov. 11.-The province of Grao Para has declared its independence and will resist President Fonseca. The province of Bahia is expected to do likewise.

Rio Janeino, Nov. 11.—There is no longer any doubt that the province of Grao Para has followed that of Rio Grande do Sui in a declaration of independence of the Fouseca government. Two other provinces are expected to revolt also. It is reported that General da Fonseca has been informed that he is suffering from a discose which must cause his death, and he has announced his willingness to resign.

Love e., Nov. 10.—Owing to the strict guard kept by the Brazilian government over the islegraph and cable lines it is almost impossible to obtain reliable news as to the exact state of the country. It is now generally scimitted, however, that the Province of the Grante de Sal that the Province of Rio Grante do Sal has declared its independence, and, as it includes 50,000 lighting Germans in its population, the revolution there is undoubtedly serious.

The formula population of this province is reputed to be organizing into armed bodies on the plan of the Dutch settlers of South Africa. The troops under the command of General de Ponceca are said to have been ordered to move on Rio Grands do Sul. This report, however, is not believed here, as it is undorstood that the dictator has been warned to do sverything possible to avoid bloodshed.

THE COTTON CROP.

It is Under the Average on Account of Rain and Front.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The cotton re-turns of the Department of Agricultura for November are not favorable for a high rate of yield. The lateness of the crop, the extremes of temperature, the eversal rainfall followed by drought, causing enfeebled vitality and loss of follogs and fruit, have been unfavorable for a large even. On the northern border of the bolt killing frosts occurred on the 23th; in some places as early as the 23d. West of the Mississippi there has been some improvement during the past picking. Quality is almost everywhere reported high and the fibre is of good color and unusually free from trash. The yield, as averaged from the county estimates, averages 179 pounds per acre, distributed by States as follows: Viscolia, 151: North Cardina, 171: Virginia, 151; North Carolina, 178; South Carolina, 160; Georgia, 155; Florida, 120; Alabama, 165; Mississippi, 190; Louisiana, 200; Texas, 195; Arkan-aas, 210; Tennessee, 170;

As killing frosts have not yet been general in the southern and western sections of the belt it is possible, with favorable weather following, that current expectations may be slightly exceeded.

THE CASE OF JONATHAN HUNT.

Scorned While He Lived, the Money He Loft Now Causes Contention-

He Had No Elight to a Father's Name-Descendants of Samuel R. Smith, His Reputed Father, Trying to Prove That the Relationship Existed-Jonathan's Eccentric Life and Mysterious Death.

MORRISVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 11 .- A short time prior to the war of 1812 a certain Widow Hunt, living on a farm near what is now the seat of Colgate University, in Hamilton, then a settlement, gave birth to a son, over whose paternity gossips wagged their tongues, but for whose being no man was ever held responsible. Living near Hamilton was Samuel R. Smith, a well-known business man. In 1820 Smith's wife died, and shortly afterward he married the Widow Hunt. Jonathan Hunt, the reputed illegitimate son, was never publicly acknowledged by Samuel R. Smith to be his son. From this marriage were born three children -Adon, Sidney and Charlotte, afterward Mrs. Adams—who were always spoken of as half-brothers and half-sister of Jensthan Hunt.

of Jenathan Hunt, while yet a boy, went to New York City and became a boot-black and newsboy. He prosperel, and at thirty-five was spoken of as a wild speculator. But as the money flowed in he invested it in land on Manhattan Island and in the South.

In the mean time Jeathan's mother had died and her husband had ma ried again, and by the third marriage other again, and by the third marriage other children were born. By 1845 Jonathan Hunt was reputed one of the wealthlest men in America. He possessed millions, but his eccentricity was the talk of New York. In tricity was the talk of New York. In January, 1847, Jonathau Hant was in Charleston, S.C. Early on the evening of the 17th of that month he left his hotel for a short walk, from which he never returned. None that knew him ever saw or heard of him again.

Lo-day the descendants of Samuel R. Smith are trying at the special term of the Supreme Court of New York, to prove that Jonathau Hunt was the son of Samuel R. Smith and that they are of the blood of Jonathau Hunt through son in his lifetime.

If these allegations shall be proved, about fifty descendants of Samuel R. Smith by his third marriage, will claim to be entitled as heirs at law of Sidaey Smith, lunatic, deceased, one of the devisees and heirs of Jonathan Hunt, to seven-initis of all of Sidney Smith's real and personal estate, now said to be valued at much over $1,500,000 and con-sisting of properties in New York City and in Alabama and other Southern States. The case is being argued before Judge Parker. Senator John E. Smith, of Morrisville; ex-Congressman Mason and S. W. White, of Hamilton, and Judge Countrymen, of Albany, appear for the plaintiffs, and W. Mana, John E. Parsons and ex-Judge Russoll for toe defendants. It is agreed that William Kernan, of Utica, brother of ex-Senator Kernan, shall act as referoe.

A Sore Trouble.

There is nothing flat and monotonous about a broken lining to a coat sleeve. It always comes up as fresh and vivaous as at the first. A man appears about as surprised when he runs his hand into the slit the tenth time as he did the first, and when he looks to see his hand appear at the end, and finds that it is doubled up in the middle of the sleeve, his countenance will assume as much interest as if the occurrence was something never before heard of. It is astonishing that a broken sleeve iming rarely happens in the right sleeve.
This is because, perhaps, the right arm is first inserted. A broken sleeve lining can only appear to advantage in one position, and that is when the man has one arm inserted correctly, the coat in a wad against the back of his head and his body bent over in the effort to shove the remaining arm through. It is at this, the most painful, juncture that his attention is called to the rent lining.

In a constrained voice he directs the notice of his wife to the same, with a partly stifled inquiry as to what on earth she has been doing that the trouble has not been remedied before. It is like a women on such an occasion to say that he won't leave his coat home so that it can be fixed. It takes a woman to think of exasperating things. The only resort now left to him is to declare that he knows better. Then she says if he will take the coat off now she will fix it, and makes a show of getting a thread and needle. She knows he won't take it off and wait. And he doesn't. A man may have a broken sleeve lining and a slit in his trousers as long as fifteen minutes at a railway station, but he knows the J M BAILEY copriety of things
