A Misplaced Judgment.

Some one living on the second floor of the double tenement on Nelson street placed a pan of baked beans in a window to cool. A few minutes later the horse attached to a coal cart backed in front of the place and refused to go.

The driver laid on the tash, but the animal would not move on. It winced and president next year is now being blows, but it would not advance. A portly gentleman possion portly gentleman passing on the walls in sympathy with the animal and indignant with the man. He expostulated with him, told him to use mild means, to try sunsion, that he ought to be ashamed of himself for treating a dumb beast in that manner; that if he did not relent and coass his brutal conduct a fearful judgment would overtake him.

At this juncture a little girl came to the window to see what was the matter, and she must have hit against the pan of beans, for almost immediately it slid from the window, and while the benevolent gentleman was telling the coal man of the judgment to come the pan de-scended bottom upward on his own de-voted head, deluging him with its contents, taking his breath and knocking him down on his hands and knees. The shock was so great and so unexpected that the unfortunate man was complete-ly bewildered, and crawled away as fast as he could, knowing not where he was going, but instinctively seeking to get out of danger. He was a dreadful look-ing spectacle when he got up. He was beans the entire length of his person. They streamed down his back and legs, and the oily substance dripped from the brim of his bat, while riding securely on the crown was a pound piece of pork, clotted with beaus.

The driver silently watched him until he got on his rest, and then should at

A singularly painful circumstance attends the death of a Mouroe gentleman, which occurred last week. Last winter he made an agreement with his wife to the effect that should she kindle the fire mornings for six months, he would do it for the same length of time. She had just completed her part of the contract when he died. It is a very sad affair.
