AGAINST RACING.

Illegality of Horse Raning and Pool

THENTON, N. J., Nov. 18 .- Chancellor McGill, in the Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday decided the appeal in the case of Haring against the State, and has affirmed the judgment of the Supreme Court against the legality of pool selling on the race tracks.

pool seiling on the race tracks.

This was a test case, and the final decision by the highest court has been awaited with much anxiety by all the sporting men in the State of New Jorsey, and, indeed, in the country.

The case has gore against them.

The Moumouth Park track was not opened during the past season, the officers announcing that without the exciting adjunct of the batting ring horseracing could not be made to pay, even at Long Branch

The Monmouth held off pending this decision.

The case against Haring was prosecuted in the Supreme Court, where he was indicted under the law forbidding the keeping of disorderly houses, the prosecution contending that pool-selling and bookmaking came within the meaning of that law.

The Court found against Haring, and the Coart of Errors and Appeals now affirm that finding. The sporting fraternity will now appeal to the Legislature in an effort to get the law repealed or amended. The Linden Park Racing Association officials were punished, and their trank is now closed. So are most of the others, and they will not attempt to open again unless the law is amended

An Enormous Crowd Present at the Proecedings-Statement of Christic Waras Abbott by Jaifer Newell - Efforts in the Murderer's Behalf. PLYMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 18. - The Im mense amount of interest taken in the atrocious murder of Christie Warden, and the fate of her murderer, was shown about the court house long before the calling for Helen Blazes when discovine fixed for its opening. When the ered J M BAILEY doors were finally opened all the available space, except that reserved for the judges, counsel, prisoner and witnesses, was quickly filled. Even the hallways were packed, while those who failed to get in the building at all lingered around outside in groups and discussed the matter from their various points of County Solicitor Mitchell, who has the night of the murder, opened for the prosecution. He said he proposed to prove deliberate murder on the part of the prisoner. Many of his statements of alleged facts were ruled out by the

At the conclusion of Mr. Mitchell's argument Mrs. Warden took the stand and was sworn. Her testimony of what happened on the night of the shooting was substantially the same as that al-was substantially the same as that already published.

She went on to tell of the home life at the farm of Almy and Christie. The prisoner, who hitherte had maintained that wonderful nerve for which he has become noted, broke down completely during Mrs. Warden's recital of these facts, covered his face with his hands and sobied quite audibly.

As Mrs. Warden continued, Almy leaned forward and cried out in a voice staken by emotion: "Oh, Mrs. Warden, please tell it all!"

gether. Some member of the family was always present during their meetings. Mrs. Warden said she did not believe that Almy was forming an attachment for Christie.

At this point Almy held a conversation with his counsel, evidently in relation to the testimony of Mrs. Warden. Mrs. Warden, continuing her testimony, said that when Christie was at Manchester, she had sent two letters mony, said that when Christie was at Manchesjer, she had sent two letters there. One of these contained a message to Almy. Mrs. Warden said she had seen nothing in Almy's attentions to her daughter indicating a desire to make the latter his wife. The family, she concluded, would not have approved of any attempt at courtship. Fanny Warden, sister of the dead girl, then took the stand. In relating the then took the stand. In relating the story of the murder, she said that Almy had fixed three gabots at her and finally dragged Christle away from her, pulling the latter through the fence bars by her skirts.

When Christie's body was found, she was lying on her back with her legs crossed. Miss Warden said she found crossed. Miss Warden said she found him. Christie, she said, did not wan t to provoke the prisoner, because she was afraid of him. She then told of Almy's attention to Christie and said he worked in every decettful way possible to gain her affections. The witness said the prisoner had a revolver when he first came to the Warden house. He showed it freely and said he came from the South where everybody carried a simi-lar weapon. Miss Warden remembered only one occasion when Almy and Chrisouly one occasion when Aimy and Christle were alone. This was when they walked home from Hewett's together. The family never knew that Aimy had Christle's picture. He rtol ethat, Miss Warden said.

Emmett Marshall, who came to the assistance of the Wardens on the night of the murder and was fired at by Aimy, testified to the circumstances of the murder and the finding of the body.

The prosecution then introduced some medical evidence to show the nature of the wounds inflicted upon alles Warden.

the wounds inflicted upon Miss Warden. Witnesses also identified Almy's handwriting and the revolver and car-tridges taken from him. The State then rested its case and testimony for the defense began.

Andrew Warten, Christie's father, was the first called. He testified to Almy's attachment for Christie, but said no member of the family had ever en-souraged it.

Myra A. Warden, a sister of the de-ceased, testified practically to the same effect as her father.

Several neighbors of the Wardens were then called and testified as to Almy and Christie being together at parties and driving together.

Jailor Newell, of Haverhill, who had Abbott in charge when he was committed for burglary, saw Ainy last night and is positive that Almy and Abbott are one and the same person.
