RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION

Senator Chandler has introduced a bill in the United States senate which has for its object the restriction of immigration. The bill provides for the issuing of consular certificates to all foreigners before their departure from their native land to the United States. The bill requires that any alien who is about to immigrate to the United States shall make application to the United States consul, declaring his purpose to become a resident, and that the consul shall make due inquiry, and examine all the evidence as to their fitness to become citizens on this side of the water, it being far easier to prevent the immigration of the undesirable element by this method than by the present law. There is no more important measure before Congress than the one referred to, which aims to close the door of this country to that class of people who do not come here for the purpose of becoming citizens, and legislate in favor of those who would be a benefit to our country. Last year 560,000 aliens landed in this country, who have, many of them, no knowledge of our laws, and no desire to learn. Our census shows that the population of the United States increased during the last ten years over 12,000,000; more than one half of this increase consisted of foreigners. The policy of our government has been for years "Protection to labor." And while this has been going on, the pauper has entered into competition with the very labor which laws have been passed to benefit. Congress can do no better work for the people, at this season, than to place upon the statute books some measure which will

THERE are to-day more than 50,000 workmen employed in the silk industry of this country. The figures have more than doubled the past fifteen years, owing to Protection. More American women wear silk dresses and deck themselves with silk ribbons than ever before in the history of the country. More silk is sold annually, and it is sold at lower prices than ever. This accounts for the great increase in the demand for silk among those who formerly were unable to buy it, and, in turn, is accounted for by the Protective tariff imposed upon foreign manufacture by Republican lawmakers. And yet the Democrats would give us Free Trade, tear down the bulwarks which make such industries possible, and remove the conditions which enable all classes to buy their product.

CAPTAIN LINDEN, the superintendent of the police of Philadelphia, was sworn into office on Saturday. In addressing his lieutenants he told them that he was no speechmaker; that actions, and not talk are wanted. "The city expects us to do our whole duty as officers," and when presented with his new club he said, "I hope I may never have occasion to use it, especially on an officer." We predict that the police department, under our old, tried friend, Captain Linden, will be a success.

THE cold wave that arrived here Saturday night was most welcome to the host of sick people, and to those interested in the coal trade. If we are to believe the physicians, this kind of weather will loosen the grip.

THERE is no question that there is great revival in religion. The churches show large increase in attendance of late.

Physicians' prescriptions have failed to reach many cases of rheumatism known to have been subsequently cured by Salvation Oil. That is the reason why the popular voice is practically unanimous in its favor. One bottle is usually sufficient.

The best way for "get-rich-quick" victims to double their money is to fold it in the middle and put it in their pockets.

Be wise in time and procure Dr. Bell's Cough Syrup which always cures coughs and colds, and prevents consumption. Price 25 cents a bottle.

WHAT THE SCRIBES SEE AND HEAR

Rev. Powick's Admonition in an Interesting Sermon to His Congregation Sunday to "Prepare to Meet Thy God."

The sermon on Sunday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church was suited to the beginning of the new year. The text was from Amos IV-12: "Prepare to meet thy God." Great preparations are made to receive earth's great ones. When ex-President Grant returned from his tour around the world all Philadelphia and the surrounding territory turned out in honor of the occasion. But when the Blessed, and only Potentate, the King of Kings, and the Lord of lords appears for re-emption, the giddy multitudes are heedless. One of the strongest proofs of the Bible doctrine of moral depravity is found in the general religious indifference which characterizes society. Even among theoretical believers there is a startling amount of practical atheism. Men so often deny in their life what they hold in their creed. The beginning of a new year is a good time to begin the needful preparation to meet our God. As we stand upon its threshold and think of its unknown possibilities and contingencies, the admonition is doubly impressive. Many in the large congregation will be in eternity before the close of the year, hence all should be prepared. Two thoughts were dwelt upon with emphasis. First, meet Him, we must. It is appointed unto all men once to die and after this their judgment. We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, for there shall be a resurrection both of the just and the unjust. This truth is the moral balance-wheel of society. However men may ignore it in health, when sickness comes and death stares men in the face they are made to feel as never before, that they are accountable creatures and the gospel affords their only hope. Worldliness and infidelity may do for men when they are well and strong, but every minister receives calls for help from such cases when they come to die. The "age of reason" afforded no comfort to his author upon his death bed. The second thought was that some special preparation is necessary. Men are drifting along with the current and expecting some how or other to drift at last into heaven—but they will be disappointed. No man expects when pay day comes to fill his pockets if he has done no work, but many expect in the day of final account to get an everlasting fortune which have made no effort to win it. Men know that nothing worth having can be gotten in this world without effort and they ought to know that the same is true in spiritual things. Ask, seek, knock, strive, agonize, are the scriptural terms which represent the thought and intelligence and effort required on the part of man to prepare to meet his God. This work is commenced in repentance and conversion, but must be continued throughout life. "The work of faith will not be done, till thou obtain the crown." Jesus, the sinner's friend, will forgive the past and provide for the future if we will do our part. "Then prepare to meet thy God." At the close of the sermon a prayer meeting followed, at which one person bowed at the altar for prayer. Services will continue every night during the week.

THE TOOMEY CASE

JURY SAYS THE CONSTABLE WAS NOT BLAMABLE

FOR SHOOTING MIKE BOBBIN.

The Inquest Held Saturday Afternoon After Toomey Was Put Under $2,000 Bail by the Pottsville Court.

After the court at Pottsville fired the amount of bail for Constable Jere Toomey, of town, to furnish for his appearance at the next term of court to answer the charge of fatally shooting Mike Bobbin, the Polo who died at the Miners' Hospital last Wednesday night, which amount was $2,000, Coroner Guildin came to town and held an inquest in the case with the assistance of Deputy Coroner Brennan and the following jury: William Derr, James McHugh, Michael Fadden, Thomas Toth, Fred V. Heisenberger and Thomas Mullahy.

Lawyer Seltzer was present and said he was in attendance upon request of the District Attorney.

The hearing was not an extended one and the jury did not require much time to frame a

VERDICT VERY FAVORABLE

to the constable. The verdict was:

"That the said Michael Bobbin came to his death by a pistol wound inflicted at the hands of officer J. Toomey while in the discharge of his official duties by trying to escape arrest, and we exonerate Toomey from all blame."

Policemen Edward Williams and D. J. Conners were examined. They were around the corner from the scene of the shooting and heard three, or perhaps four shots, but did not see the shooting. Upon hearing the shots, which made a muffled sound, they ran into Joe Wythe's saloon, at the corner of Oak street and Pear alley, but could learn nothing. The muffled report led them to believe the shooting had taken place in the saloon. They subsequently learned the wounded man was in the lockup. The officers swore they only that they heard the shots, saw the wounded man in the lockup and heard from street talk that Toomey shot the man.

Joe Pechulis, a friend of the deceased, was quite anxious to tell his story. He knew nothing of the case only what he had learned from Bobbin and Toomey. Bobbin, the deceased, said he was sure he would die. The witness had a talk with Toomey and the latter said

"I DIDN'T WANT TO SHOOT him in the back, I just wanted to shoot him in the leg, so he would fall down and I could catch him, but it was dark and I struck him in the back. Toomey also said, the witness testified, that Bobbin asked leave to step into the alley for a moment and he let him do so. "Then I saw him go off and I said 'stop' and he didn't, I fired once," and then he ran and I fired three times." When questioned as to the previous relations between Toomey and Bobbin, the witness said he knew of no feeling between them. He had seen them drinking together many times. The witness retained considerable mirth when telling of his own previous relations with Constable Toomey.

"AND I RAN AND FIRED"

"How long have you known Toomey?" he was asked.

"Since the strike,"

"Did Jerry ever arrest you?"

"O, ya."

"How many times?"

"I can't tell. He arrest me right away, as soon as he see me go drunk. Sometimes myself me in office and start to talk to 'Squire and he send me to lockup. Same all the time. I pay him all the time. I good customer here."

Dr. J. S. Callen was the next witness and told of his treatment of the deceased from December 8 to 21. He said he found the next day that the man coughed frequently and catarrhal pneumonia ultimately developed.

John Bobbin, brother of the deceased, swore he was 18 years of age; that the deceased was a single man 28 years of age. The witness said he saw his brother alive at the Miners' Hospital on Christmas Day. When asked by the Coroner what the deceased said the witness answered through the interpreter, "He said for he has gone out of his hands for nothing." The witness also testified that his brother told him Toomey shot him.

Coroner Guildin then testified to the post mortem and concluded by saying, "From the observations that I took I say the man came to his death from the gun shot wound."

The case was then given to the jury. The verdict delighted the friends of the officer and they look to his speedy acquittal in court.

ROUGHS TAKE POSSESSION.

Paul Summa's Exciting Time at Kingston.

Paul Summa who, until recently, kept a saloon on South Main street, in this town, had an exciting time at his new place in Kingston, Saturday morning. At an early hour two strangers entered the saloon and ordered drinks. Having been served the strangers drew revolvers and ordered Mr. Summa out of doors. Being unarmed, he went. The bartender was then ordered into the cellar and locked up there.

They then drove the occupants of the pool room into the street, locking themselves in the bar room, they called the wife of the proprietor from the living apartments back of the saloon, and compelled her at the point of a revolver to bring them liquor and cigars from the bar, they occupying seats at a table. They did not offer her any violence, but insisted on their demands being complied with promptly. When they had absorbed all the liquor they wanted they unlocked the front door and went out.

In the meantime the proprietor had secured a warrant and placed it in the hands of an officer, but when they came back for the men they had departed, leaving Mrs. Summa in a state of collapse. The ruffians were traced to a crowded ball room and an attempt made to arrest them but they pulled their guns, and, avoiding officers and spectators with threats of murder if they were interfered with, backed out of the room and into the darkness of the night where they were lost sight of. Officers have been looking for them, but unsuccessfully.

Not a Bad Idea.

Several members of the Columbus Hose Company are agitating a movement to have one of the company's old team of horses retained for use in the hose carriage when fire alarms are sounded. The serious difficulty in the way is the lack of stable accommodations. The company has a third stall in its stable, but it is situated at a means of entrance to the engine room cannot be made.
