The State Bank Examiners Discovered the Shortage in a Recent Research of the Books--He WHI Not be Prosecuted --Depositors Threaten a Run on the Bank MATHEMATICAL COVILLE -The Money Lost in Luckless Speeniations.

TARAYPOWN, N. Y., Jan. 14 .- It was made public yesterday that Joseph W. Mabee, a trusted clerk of the Westchester County Savings Bank of Tarrytown, was a defaulter.

Mabee was one of the most prominent citizens of Tarrytown, a village trustee, and oue of the trustees of the Asbury M. E. Church. He had been in the employ of the bank a great many years, and had the implicit confidence of all the trustees.

A week ago the State Board of Bank Examiners visited the bank and examined the books. They found a number of discrepancies in the ledger, showing a defaication.

When President Ferris ordered Mabee to assist the examiners he broke down and confessed that he was a defaulter, telling how he took the money and falsified the books.

He said that his peculations had been going on from 1876 to 1888 and he was willing to saurifice everything he had to the bank to make restitution and begged him not to expose him to the people of farrytown. President Ferris promised this and on Monday the directors of the bank, Mabee and some friends held a closeted meeting which resulted in Mabee deeding to the bank his home, while some of his friends made up the balance of the shortage made up the balance of the shortage which amounted during the twelve years to $9,451.37. When he paid the money over to the directors he handed over his resignation which was accepted. The board allowed him to go to his home without being arrested. Coville Doubts the Carpenter's Figures [Copyrighted by Lee & Shepard, Boston, and published by special arrangement with them.] There are men who dispute what they do non understand. Mr. Coville is such a man When he heard a carpenter say that there were so many shingles on the roof of his house, because the roof contained so many square feet. Colville doubted the figures, and when the carpenter went away he determined to test the matter by going up on the roof and counting them. And he went up there He squeezed through the scuttle-Colville weighs $30-and then sat down on the roof and worked his way carefully and deliberately toward the gutter. When he got part way down he heard a sound between him and the shingles, and became aware that there was an interference some way in his further loco motion He tried to turn over and craw! back, but the obstruction held him.

Then he tried to move along a little in

Then he tried to move along a little in hopes that the trouble would prove but temporary, but an increased sound con-vinced him that either a nail or a sliver bad hold of his cloth, and that if he would save any of ithe must use caution. His folks were in the house, but becould not make them hear, and besides, be didn't want to attract the attention of the neighbors. So he sat there unit after dark and thought. It would have after dark and thought. It would have been an excellent opportunity to have counted the shingles, but he neglected to use it. His mind appeared to run in-to other channels. He sat there an hour after dark, seeing no one he could notify of his position.

Then he saw two boys approach the stop. It was light enough for him to see that one of the two was his son, and al-boy know of his misfortune, yet he had grown tired of holding onto the roof, and concluded he could bribe the strange boy into silence. With this arrangement mapped out he took out his knife and threw it so that it would strike near to the boys and attract their attention It struck nearer than he anticipated; in fact it struck so close as to hit the strange boy on the head and nearly brain him As soon as the boy recovered his equi librium he turned on Coville's boy, who he was confident, had attempted to kill him, and introduced some astonishment and bruises into his face. Then he threw him down, and kicked him in the side and banged him on the head, and drew him over into the gutter, and pounded his legs, and then hauled him back to the walk again, and knocked his head against the gate. And all the while the elder Coville sat on the roof and acreamed for the police, but couldn't get And then Mrs. Coville dashed out with a broom and contributed a few novel features to the affair at the gate, and one of the boarders dashed out with a double barreled guin, and, hearing the earies from the roof, looked up there, and, espying a figure which was undoubtedly a burglar, drove a handful of shot intu-its lega. With a howl of agony Covilla made a plunge to dodge the missiles, freed himself from the nail, lost his hold. on the roof and went sailing down the shingles with swful velocity, both legs spread out, his hair on end and his hands making desperate but fruitless efforts to save himself. He tried to swear, but was so frightened that he lost his power of speech, and when he passed over the edge of the roof with twenty feet of tin gutter hitched to him. the boarder gave him the contents of the other barrel and then dove into the house to load up again. The unfortunate Coville struck into s cherry tree and thence bounded to the ground, where he was recognized, picked up by the assembled neighbors and carried into the house. A new doctor is making good day wages picking the shot out of his legs. The boarder has gone out of his lags. The boarder has gone into the country to spend the summer, and the junior Coville, having seques-tered a piece of brick in his handker chief, is lying low for that other boy. He says that before the calm of another Sabbath rests on New England there will be another boy in Danburg who can't wear a can. can't wear a can

Most of the People on Board Were Chiness, and When They Discovered That the Ship Was Sinking All Efforts on the Part of the European Officers to Restrain Them Were Fruitless-A Broken Shaft the Cause of the Trouble.

LONDON, Jan. 14 .- Dispatches from Hong Kong give particulars of the found ering of the steamship Namchow off Cut Hi Foint, in which 414 persons, including the European crew of the ship, were drowned. The steamship Melfoo brought the news of the wreck of the Nameliow to Hong Kong. It appears that the pro peller shaft of the Namehow snapped in two while that vessel was plunging in 2 heavy sea, the regulators not having power enough to control the shaft while the propeller was whirling out of water during a head plunge.

When the shaft was carried away the sea rushed into the shaft alley, which, with that part of the stern of the vessel from which the shaft protraded, was badly damaged by the accident. The water quickly made its way into the hold. The steam pumps were put to work but the fires of the engine room being extin-guished by the rising water, they were soon useless and the Namehow here to soon useless, and the Namehow began to settle down. When the first signs of danger became when the first agains of danger became known there was a terrible panic among the 300 or 400 Chinase passengers on board. Duke of Clarence's Conditions

LONDON, Jan. 14 .- The latest advices from Sandringham bring but little com-fort, although people are lingering around the newspaper offices, anx-iously waiting for news. The Prince and Princess of Wales are described as nearly prostrated by the serious illness of their son. The Princess May tries to bear up bravely, but she, too, is nearly broken down by the spectacle of her royal lover's condition. The intimate friends of the royal family are said to make no concealment of their apprehen-sion of an untavorable rasult.
