

ALBERT'S SOBQUIES

They Will be the Most Imposing Known for Years.

ROYAL ORDERS FOR MOURNING.

The Nobility, Gentry and Tradesmen Nearly All Complying.

Prince George, However, Will Not Postpone His Vacation Trip Abroad, and the Queen Will Visit the Continent as Intended--Question as to What is to be Done With the Funds and Presents Received for the Marriage of the Duke and Princess May.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The funeral of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale is now the absorbing topic of conversation.

There is no family tomb at Sandringham, but near the east end of the parish church is the grave of the baby Prince Alexander John Charles Albert, the third son of the Prince and Princess of Wales, who was born April 6, 1871, and died the next day.

His brief span of life is commemorated by a memorial window and a white marble cross, surrounded by a gilt railing. The baby brother of the Prince is still spoken of as Prince John in the district about Sandringham.

It is the Queen's wish that her dead grandson should be interred in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, the ceremony to take place toward the end of next week and to be of a military character.

In this case the body would be placed in the catacombs under the chapel, by the side of the remains of the Duke of Albany.

Not the least of consideration regarding the Prince's death is the fact that the metropolis, which had been discussing how best it could honor his triumphal passage from one railway terminus to another on the day of his wedding will now have to consider how best it can honor his remains when they are transferred from St. Pancras to Paddington station.

The body will be conveyed from Sandringham House to London over the Great Eastern Railway and at once taken to Windsor over the Great Western road. This will necessitate a funeral procession through the streets from St. Pancras to Paddington, a little over two miles.

Every engagement, public and private, of members of the royal family, made previous to the melancholy event, has been cancelled for the next six months.

Her Majesty, however, will not postpone her visit to the Continent, and Prince George of Wales will go abroad to recruit his health, as originally intended.

The visit of Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to Ulster has been indefinitely postponed, and the proposed United States Exhibition has been abandoned, as also the festival of the city.

All Cabinet and political engagements, together with a large number of dinners, concerts and balls, have also been deferred.

The "Royal Gazette" issues a special mourning supplement, giving full directions as to official mourning for the death of the Duke of Clarence. The Court has gone into full mourning, which will continue until the fifth of February. Then half-mourning attire will succeed, to be worn until February 23. The command of the Queen the Earl Marshall gives notice that persons are expected to go into mourning for three weeks, and officers of the army and navy to wear crepe on the left arm for six weeks. The nobility and gentry are also very generally complying with the notice, as well as nearly all tradesmen.

King Leopold, of Belgium, will not, it is stated, attend the funeral. His physicians have advised him to this course, on account of the condition of his health, which is far from strong; but the King would probably have attended, nevertheless, had not his ministers sustained the advice of his physicians, and urged upon him not to incur any risk at this time.

It is already apparent that the obsequies will be the most imposing known in England for many years.

Every nation will be officially represented, and such another gathering of eminent men has not been known for a generation.

The death of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale leaves an awkward question open concerning the disposal of the funds subscribed for wedding gifts to him and Princess May of Teck. The Lord Mayor has cancelled the call for a meeting of the Welch subscribers, and most of the other funds already paid in in money will be returned to the subscribers; but in some cases the gifts have already been purchased, or the orders for them have been partly executed and cannot be cancelled.

The Elington, goldsmiths, have partly finished a superb dinner service, which was to have been the present from the corporation of London, besides many valuable gifts from other quarters; and no one knows what can be done with them.

Think 12 Hours a Day Long Enough.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Two hundred and twenty-five motor men and conductors employed by the Pittsburg, Allegheny & Manchester Traction company are on a strike, completely tying up the four divisions of the road. The strikers have been working twelve hours per day and claim that the schedule will require sixteen hours without a corresponding increase in wages.

New York Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The Court of Appeals (both divisions) will adjourn on Monday to Tuesday, Jan. 19, on which day no business will be done. Foul Play Suspected.

PHILADELPHIA, N. J., Jan. 16.—A suitable reward has been offered for any information regarding the whereabouts of Mrs. Mary Souders, of Steedmansville, by her father, who claims she went to the residence of Washington R. Adams on December 30, and has not been seen since. Foul play is suspected.

RUSSIAN RELIEF.

Embarrassment that is Caused by the Shelving of the Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Many members of the House are embarrassed by the Russian relief resolution, which is still in the air, or at least indefinitely postponed. They are very anxious that the action of the House be the other day in refusing an appropriation shall not be construed by the Russian Government as an indication of the lack of friendly feeling and sympathy.

Still, there are enough members who are opposed to the appropriations of public money for such purposes to prevent a reconsideration of the action taken several days ago. It is asserted that had no such resolution been introduced, the people by private contribution would have before this time contributed, and the desired relief would have been secured through the Red Cross Society; but the doubt in which the public are left by the situation of the matter in Congress interferes with the work, and the fact that Congress has touched the matter at all, without accomplishing anything, is felt to have subjected the country to the suspicion of a lack of generosity.

It is proposed, therefore, to withdraw the original proposition, and to pass a resolution with a preamble reciting what is being done through the Red Cross society, and expressing sympathy for the Russian people, but declaring that it is against the principles of our constitution to appropriate money from the public for such purposes, and at the same time expressing confidence in the generosity of the people of this country being equal to the occasion. This, it is declared, would give encouragement to the efforts of the Red Cross society and make clear the attitude of this country.

SUES FOR $50,000.

The Sensational Case of Lawyer Bowman Against Dr. C. Ellsworth Hewitt.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Dr. C. Ellsworth Hewitt has been arrested here and imprisoned, pending the outcome of a suit brought against him by John O. Bowman, a Philadelphia lawyer, for the sum of $50,000. Bowman alleges that Hewitt, while attending his wife, formerly a Miss Nellie Bankus, of Holyoke, Mass., drugged and outraged her, and when she revived, so worked upon her fear that she did not dare divulge his brutal conduct.

Mr. Bowman further alleges that Dr. Hewitt not long thereafter administered an overdose of morphine with intent, and would administer no antidote until the woman promised to elope with him. They fled to Europe, where Hewitt's brutality compelled the woman to seek aid from the American consul, who sent her back to America again. Hewitt soon after returned and is now in prison.

National Game Matters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—President Young of the National League of Baseball Clubs, says that the salary of baseball players would be in accordance with contracts made by them with the League and the American Association before the present scheme was adopted. In regard to the complaints of a number of players who were not assigned to some of the clubs, Mr. Young says that there was not room for all, and that the selections were made in accordance with the preferences of the clubs. As each club chooses but fifteen players, thus making a total of 180 players required by the twelve clubs, it was necessary to leave out a large number of tried and trusty ball players.

Over a Million Dollars Involved.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The assignees in making an examination of the books of Joseph H. Coates & Co., the cotton firm which failed Thursday. No definite statement of assets and liabilities has been prepared, but it is understood the amount involved is over a million dollars. A protested note of $5,000 was the immediate cause of embarrassment, together with a call from their Liverpool brokers for several thousand pounds. The firm is selling agent for over forty mills in the South, but it is said none of them will be affected.

Cardinal Manning's Poverty.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Cardinal Manning's will has not yet been opened. It is said to contain detailed directions for his funeral. He left practically no estate, the whole of his property having long since been bestowed in charities. His death is deeply mourned by the labor party, to which he was the best and most influential friend. The Roman Catholic bishop of Salford, Herbert Vaughan, is regarded as most likely to succeed Cardinal Manning as Archbishop of Westminster.

Creditors Will Be Paid in Full.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The creditors of Messrs. Lee & Ferguson of the Brazos River enterprise in Texas, whose paper was placed through Potter-Lovell Co., and who suspended owing some $800,000 hereabouts, have held a meeting at which a committee was appointed, also trustees to represent the creditors, who it is believed will be paid in full as the company is now rapidly selling its lands.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—Two hundred and twenty-five motor men and conductors employed by the Pittsburg, Allegheny & Manchester Traction company are on a strike, completely tying up the four divisions of the road. SPAIN AND THE FAIR.

Little Co-operation Need be Expected From that Country.

MADRID, Jan. 16.—The energy and activity of Mr. Little, agent for the Chicago Fair to the government and people of Spain, have so far been powerless to move the Spanish Government to action in behalf of proper representation at the expositions. The nation seems paralyzed with financial troubles, added to natural inertia.

With army officers and soldiers, teachers and other public employes unpaid, the government is bewildered by any proposition for outside expenditure. Every penny that comes into the treasury is clamored for from a dozen sources. The popular feeling is about the same, and it is feared that much co-operation need not be looked for from traders and manufacturers.

The country seems affected by a dry rot, and pride seems to be all that has survived decay. As an excuse for inaction it is alleged that there is some pig in official circles over the non-arrival of the American Commission which was promised in November. This, however, is but a pretext. The truth is that officials, most of them with salaries long overdue, scowl at the idea of a single peseta going out of the treasury for any purpose abroad.

SUFFERING AT SEA.

Harrowing Tale of Captain Davis, of the Bark Arlington.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Captain Davis of the Nova Scotia bark Arlington, which arrived at Quarantine from Cork early in the evening, relates a story of suffering at sea. On Christmas day he experienced a severe northwest gale and on the night of the 29th he fell in with a wreck which showed evidences of persons on board. He stayed alongside the wreck all night and in the morning took of the Captain and ten of the crew.

They proved to be Captain P. T. Doble and crew of the British bark Countess of Dufferin, which sailed from St. Johns, N. B., on December 8. The wrecked vessel had been in the same gale which Captain Davis had encountered on December 25. She had filled up and become a total wreck.

They had suffered severely from the cold and were without food or water, having only the clothing they stood in, and taken off by the Arlington's people.

Captain Doble and his crew were badly frost-bitten. On January 7 the shipwrecked men were transferred to the British steamship Yesso, bound from Sunderland for Baltimore.

President Hamilton Absented Himself.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The case pending against Joseph W. Hamilton, one of the officers of the defunct endowment order which was to have a hearing in the Municipal Court, did not materialize. Mr. Hamilton did not answer when his name was called and was declared defaulted. Hamilton was the supreme past president of the Royal Ark and was arrested recently charged with violating the laws relating to fraternal benefit corporations, by unlawfully using and devoting monies of the corporation to the amount of over $42,000.

Resolution to Investigate Census Office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Representative Alderson, of West Virginia, has introduced in the House a joint resolution providing for the investigation of the Census Office, its practices, methods and the correctness of the data furnished by it. The resolution recites that it has been charged through the public press that the Census Bureau has been wrongfully conducted by Superintendent Porter. It provides that a special committee of seven be appointed to investigate the charges.

Another will be paid at a later date.

Mercier's Men Must Move.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—The new Quebec Government has determined to dismiss a majority of the government employees appointed under Mercier's rule. Already the Crown prosecutors appointed by Mercier have been dismissed and L. Z. Archambault and Mr. Abwater, partners of the new government appointed in their places. The Chief of Provincial Police, Phaneuf, has been replaced by Louis Chevalier. Other changes will follow.

Death of a Centenarian.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 16.—Thomas Schofield died at his home in North Lyme yesterday of grip. He was 101 years and 3 months the old. Schofield was born in England but came to this State when a child and resided in the vicinity of North Lyme ever since. He enjoyed remarkable health during the greater part of his long life, and recently made a remark to some friends that he had no need of a doctor in sixty years.

He became a victim to the grip in the West, and gave his recent Philadelphia reading under pressure. He was obliged to go to bed and his physicians tell him that he is threatened with pneumonia.

NOBLESVILLE, Pa., Jan. 16.—In the inquest over the bodies of John Shaw, Benjamin Shaw, John L. Myers, killed by the boiler explosion at the Park Packing establishment of A. H. Marsh, Bridgeport, opposite Norrisstown on Monday last, the jury rendered a verdict that the deaths were accidental. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Mr. Coville Taps His Cider.

When Mr. Coville got home at tea time Saturday evening he found that an ordered barrel of cider had been delivered, and was now in the cellar. After supper he went down to tap it. His wife carried the light, and Master Coville added the attraction of his personal appearance to the procession. Mr. Coville, armed with a fanelet and a hammer, approached the barrel. Mrs. Coville held the light in the usual manner, that is, so as to shut out everybody's view but her own from the desired point. Master Coville stood by the side of his mother, hanging to her dress and greedily taking in the proceedings. It was a delicate operation.

As the head of the house proceeded in the task, the attention of the observers grew more and more intense. Gentle taps with the hammer, alternating on each side of the plug, loosened it gradually but surely. When it was sufficiently loosened to be drawn out by a sharp wrench of the hand, Mr. Coville proceeded to give it the wrench in question, but was somewhat anticipated by the plug itself, which, suddenly leaving the barrel and plunging into Mr. Coville's waistband, was immediately followed by a tremendous burst of cider. As the plug struck him Mr. Coville was inclined to double forward, but was at once diverted from this purpose by the cider, and went over on his back instead, throwing the hammer impulsively and dragging down Mrs. Coville spasmodically.

The extinguishing of the light in the descent left the family in total darkness, relieved only by the gasping sounds of Mr. Coville, the moans of Mrs. Coville and the indignant cries of Master Coville.

The whole effect was most appallingly heightened by the hiss and splash of the escaping cider. In a moment the unhappy family were on their feet and dragging their dripping and somewhat ruffled plumage up the stairs and into the light. Another lamp was secured, and Mr. Coville hastened down stairs, when he not only discovered that the cider was entirely gone, but that the hammer in its flight had taken in the hanging shelf on which had reposed twenty-two glass jars of preserves, and rendered nineteen of them, with their contents, a heap of ruins.

The remarks Mr. Coville designed delivering in a high key of voice on discovering the loss of his cider were utterly submerged in the horror of the subsequent discovery, and he hastily hurried up stairs and passed silently to bed. The next morning he did not wait for breakfast, but was earlier at the store than he had been in seven years, and remained there until night. He rightly conjectured that his wife's feelings on viewing the preserve wreck would be too sacred for observation.
