PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The tone of the President's message, published in full in yesterday's Herald, is both firm and calm and presents the subject in a light that cannot fail to carry conviction to every reasoning mind. The President has done his part, and with Congress rests the duty to see that Chili shall comply with the demand. We quote an extract, which shows the true American sentiment, and which all, both Republicans and Democrats, should support: "In submitting these papers to Congress for that grave and patriotic consideration which the questions involved demand, I desire to say that I am of the opinion that the demands made of Chili by this government should be adhered to and enforced. If the dignity as well as the prestige and influence of the United States are not to be wholly sacrificed, we must protect those who, in foreign ports, display the flag or wear the colors of this government against insult, brutality and death, inflicted in resentment of the acts of their government, and not for any fault of their own."

THIS is presidential election year, and according to precedent it should be a dull one for business, but let us hope that the people of this great country, instead of allowing a presidential election to interfere with their business affairs will read the papers, acquaint themselves with the great political issues that enter into the contest, and then go to the polls and cast their ballots in accordance with their honest convictions, leaving great and costly political demonstrations, such as have heretofore characterized presidential campaigns, to those who make politics a business, and who thrive by it at the expense of the rank and file. In such a campaign every citizen should do his own thinking and consult the daily papers, reading not simply the kind that favor his political views, but both sides, and make up his mind accordingly.

Pleasures of Memory.

What a blessed thing is memory! How it brings up the pleasures of the past, and hides its unpleasantness! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recall how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember those things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nerveless perhaps in pain, certainly unhappy. They tell of sleepless nights, restless days, untouched food, unstrung nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured and kept in health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, who is known universally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from mental care and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." Ah, now you remember. Now you recall how many people you have heard say this same. Now you recollect how much you have heard of this great cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually pleasing, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world.

To-morrow Evening.

The Irish drama now holding the boards at the Toronto opera house is not attracting the audiences which its absolute merits should command. It comes to us with the reputation of being as good, if not better, than any Irish drama produced since the famous "Shaughraun," and indeed it is only just to say that it is quite worthy the reputation of Boucicault himself. The play is novel in its construction, every curtain falling on a dramatic situation of powerful interest. The story is heroic and replete with refined sentiment in the pathetic passages, and in the humorous scenes it is full of a rich, sparkling Hibernian humor and wit that keep the audience in a continuous roar. The company is good and in instances excellent, while it is not too much to add for Mr. Shea, the star, a very young man full of fire and earnestness, that his future is prophetic of the highest possibilities.—Toronto Mail. Thos. E. Shea and company will open a three-night engagement in Ferguson's theatre to-morrow night, producing "E. Caped From Sing Sing."

He Will Resign.

At an inquest in Mahanoy City on Monday night in the case of John Webb, who met his death by a gas explosion at Glendon colliery, John G. Davis was one of the witnesses called to corroborate the testimony of mine foreman Palmer with reference to his instructions in regard to safety lamp working and additional price on that account. During the testimony of the latter he alluded to the accident happening to Venus Price in the same gassy way, who opened his safety lamp, igniting the gas, which led the Mine Inspector to ask whether the safety lamps were locked, and received a negative answer. Mine Inspector—"The law requires locked safety lamps?" Fire Boss Noakes—"Who shall fire the shots then?" Mine Inspector—"The fire boss?" Noakes—"Then I shall quit fire bossing. It would be impossible for me to fill that requirement."

The jury after deliberating upon the testimony agreed upon the following verdict: "That the said John Webb came to his death from injuries received by being burned by an explosion of gas at the Glendon colliery, said death was caused by the company officials not complying with the mine law by compelling all their employees working in gaseous places to work with locked safety lamps."

EGAN HEARD FROM

THE CONCILIATORY SANTIAGO DISPATCH CONFIRMED.

IS NOT FAVORABLY REGARDED

Expressions of Dissatisfaction Heard on Every Side—President Harrison's Position—The Cabinet Meeting Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The dispatch from Chili referred to in the Santiago dispatch, as published yesterday, was received at the State Department last evening.

The contents of the dispatch have not been officially given out by the State Department officials, but they are substantially as outlined in the Santiago cablegram.

The public incredulity regarding the Santiago dispatch was due to the fact that Monday Mr. Egan had notified the State Department that the Chilean government had asked for two or three days longer in which to make its answer, owing to the absence of President Montt at the springs above Santiago.

It was not until late last night that the fact of the reception of the message became known, and the sentiment among public men was one of doubt and uncertainty.

The reply of Chili was the subject of a consultation between the President and Secretary Blaine last evening. The text of the message of Minister Egan, it is expected, will be sent to the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the two Houses of Congress for their information and to aid them in the consideration of the President's message and accompanying documents transmitted yesterday.

The Reply Not Satisfactory.

Inquiry this morning strengthens the impression that the reply of Chili is not satisfactory to the United States Government. Although the answer proposes, it is understood, to withdraw the Matta note, the tenor of the offer is not agreeable. And the proposition said to be contained in the reply to arbitrate the Baltimore affair is taken to mean the whole question, whether or not Chili shall apologize as well as pay indemnity.

The proposition made to Chili is a very simple one for an apology and reparation for the Baltimore outrage and the unconditional withdrawal of the Matta note.

The offer was made by Chili to withdraw this note, upon the grounds that it had been held that a foreign country could not take cognizance of a message from the President to Congress.

In dealing with a matter of international contention this was not acceptable.

This country wanted the note recalled because it was offensive; not because of any technical objection to it.

They propose now to recall the note not because it is offensive, but because the sending of it was an "error of judgment."

This country is not considering errors of judgment as causes of war, and will probably accept nothing but an unequivocal withdrawal of the note as offensive and improper.

Both the United States and Chili have contended that a question involving national honor cannot be settled by arbitration.

With relation to the suggestion that the matter be referred to the Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Blaine and the Attorney-General have but recently made a very strong contention that the Supreme Court could not deal with a matter which was the subject of diplomatic dispute.

This is the Behring Sea case—the Sayward case. The petition for a writ of prohibition in this case was taken under consideration by the Court upon the grounds that it was a legal question and not a diplomatic question that was directly presented.

Some Cabinet Officers Approve.

It is stated this morning on high authority that the proposition of Chili to submit the Valparaiso incident to the Supreme Court is acceptable to a certain section of the Cabinet, and that efforts will be made to close the incident in this way.

It is held that the withdrawal of the Matta note is a substantial victory for the administration, and that the United States cannot expect to dictate as to the sentiments of Chilean government.

"BOBBY" BURNS.

Lake-side Scenes of Song and Dancing.

The one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, the Scotch poet, was very fittingly observed by his countrymen at the Lakeside House, East Mahanoy Junction, Monday evening. Lovers of the man, in whose honor the celebration was being held, for miles round, were in attendance to pay a tribute to his memory with speech-making and song. The event was held at the hotel conducted by Nelson B. Co., and although their rooms were very large and spacious, they were nothing too great for the accommodation of the immense throng which assembled there that evening. The programme consisted of an entertainment in which many select songs were sung and many appropriate speeches made. An elegant supper was served after which dancing was in order. The dancing was continued until an early hour next morning.

NEW BOOK OF JOB.

Printing as Done in the Land of Hard Up and Started a Print Shop.

And Job went into the land of Hard Up and started a print shop. Over the outer door of his dwelling he hung a sign whereupon were inscribed these words: "Job Printing."

And he runneth in conjunction a newspaper for which he getteth many subscribers and little cash. And so it came to pass that at the end of six months Job was on his uppers. He could not raise even a boll. "Verily," said Job as he gazed at the fringe on the end of his trousers and thinketh of his debts, "Woe is me! I shall send forth my bills to my subscribers, hit 'em for the dust and beseech them to render unto Job that which is Job's."

"For, have I not become the cussed place. Have I not given my best efforts to bloated capitalists and got nothing in return? Have I not given large and magnificent pulls unto saloon keepers who giveth in exchange a stinker of a cigar? Have I not had a good word for each and every politician and got nothing but abuse? Verily I deserve the dust."

And lo and behold the next day the collector returneth saying, "Behold I went among these people and they sat upon me saying: 'Thinkest thou we are a race of dead beats to be dunned by this man Job? Let thy master wait! Is he not an editor while we are poor and most toil for what we eat while he liveth in luxury."

"If there be a convention he hath all the glory of recording secretary while another taketh the labor of a nomination. Is he not sought out by capitalists and real estate boomers and men of great wealth who wanteth their homely daughters called handsome? And wherefore doth this duffer Job kick? And when he heareth this Job busteth a suspender and saith, 'Woe is me! There are no shekels in the newspaper business and he that is wise leaveth it in haste.'"

So he buyeth the stock of an Israelite who selleth ready made garments and over the outer door he hangeth the sign "Job Lots" and lo and behold in a few years he prospered exceedingly, becoming director of sixty-four corporations.

Job was then the stuff for he had shown that he had the great head.
