The Matrimonial Experience of Ezra Park Foot.

HE IS SEEKING A DIVORCE.

How He Was Forced to Marry Miss Blood, of Camden, N. J.

She Represented to Him that She Was Enchanting, and Believing Her, Young Foot Made Her His Wife—He Has Since Discovered that His Story Was False, and He Now Asks to Have the Marriage Set Aside.

REDWING, Minn., Jan. 28.—A sensation which almost equals that of the Robert Ray Hamilton case in New York three years ago was caused here yesterday when Ezra Park Foot, the son of wealthy parents, brought suit against his wife, Florence Miami Blood, asking that their pretended marriage be declared null and void. Young Foot, who gives his age as 25 years, makes the remarkable allegation in his complaint that his wife forced him to marry her by deception.

Foot alleges that he was wedded to Miss Blood in the usual manner, she then being a girl of 22, on December 12, 1889, at Camden, N. J., and lived with her as his wife until July 28, 1891.

He says he first met Miss Blood at Philadelphia in the fall of 1887, and that they met often thereafter in Philadelphia and New York. He asserts that in August, 1889, she pretended that she was about to become a mother for the purpose of forcing him to marry her. At a later period she represented that the child had been born and that it was sick in New York. He says he was then living at Lancaster, Pa., and that Miss Blood visited him there several times, at each visit representing that the child was too sick to be brought to Lancaster.

Continuing, his complaint alleges that relying on her faith and statements he married Miss Blood at Camden, N. J., as stated. About December 20, 1890, Miss Mrs. Foot came to Minnesota with the child, and continued to live with young Foot at Redwing until July 28, 1891, at which time, she, with the child, returned to Philadelphia with the avowed intention of visiting her parents.

About August 15, 1891, Foot says he first learned that all representations and statements made to him by his wife were untrue; that the child was the child of one Mrs. Theresa Campbell, that he was born of said Mrs. Theresa Campbell on May 10, 1889, in the city of New York, and that Mrs. Foot secured the child on or about December 5, 1890, for the purpose of deceiving him, knowing that all her statements in reference thereto were wholly false and untrue, and made to Foot for the fraudulent intent of inducing him to marry her.

Since discovering this Foot says he has never lived with his wife, and as he alleges he was induced to marry her by reason of false claims, he asks that the pretended marriage be adjudged null and void.

Gone to Canada This Time.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Miss Mollie Wheatley, who on December 16 last was discovered nearly 1400 short in her accounts at the postoffice sub-station No. 2, New York city, and who, upon being released on her own recognizance, disappeared from that city, was discovered two days ago by Postoffice Inspectors Hartshorn and James at the house of George Clark, president of the Asbestos Specialty Manufacturing Company, in this city. Before steps could be taken for her arrest, however, she again disappeared. The inspectors say that Miss Clark has committed at her escape and will likely be prosecuted for her action. Miss Wheatley is supposed to have gone to Canada this time.

Murderer Trezza Must Die.

SING SING, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Warden Brown of Sing Sing prison, has been notified by Governor Flower that unless further action be taken by the State Department at Washington in the case of Trezza, the murderer, he will be executed with McIlvaine during the week beginning Feb. 8. Some time ago the Italian government asked Secretary Blaine to stay the proceedings in Trezza's case until they could investigate the case.

Esher and Bowman Win.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—In the great Evangelical Church fight Judge Shepard in the Circuit Court has rendered a decision in favor of the Esher and Bowman faction, as against the Dubbs faction, holding that the Indianapolis conference, presided over by the former, was a lawful one, and that they committed no acts that tended toward taking their rights away. The decision involves church property valued at $1,000,000.

Hungarian Train Wrecker Convicted.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 28.—Mike Horvick, a Hungarian, who was arrested for attempting to wreck a passenger train of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, and who was tried for the third time, was yesterday convicted and given the full penalty. Had Horvick succeeded in his criminal design, the train and 300 passengers would have been hurled down a fifty foot embankment.

Connecticut's Legislature.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 28.—Pursuant to adjournment of a week ago, the House of Representatives met at 1 o'clock. The Democratic side of the House was well filled, but only five Republicans were present. The roll call showed eighty-three members present, less than a quorum, and the Speaker, under the special House rule, declared an adjournment for a week.

New York Senate Rules.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—After discussion and objection by Republicans in the Senate the rules as amended by the majority were passed, all the Republicans voting against them. The rules allow bills to be passed on the same day they are ordered to a third reading; allow the Senate to declare in contempt a member refusing to vote, and allow confirmation of nominations by a majority of those present.

Part of the Electrical Law Repealed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The Assembly at 1:45 passed Mr. Steub's bill allowing representatives of newspapers to witness electrical executions. The vote was 104 yeas; no nays.

PREMEDITATED MURDER.

Two Colored Girls Who Heard Miss Mitchell Plot Her Friend's Death.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 28.—Two colored girls, Sarah Hulse and Clara Miller, make some damaging statements in the Freda Ward murder case, which, if true, establish Miss Mitchell's premeditation of the crime more than 24 hours before its perpetration.

The two colored girls state that they heard Miss Mitchell say to a strange man: "I am going to cut Freda's throat from ear to ear. I am going to kill her." Thinking the threats to be of no significance, they passed on and thought no more of it until the following morning, when they related the fragment of conversation to Mrs. McKenra and Mrs. Watson.

The funeral of the fair victim took place yesterday from Grace Episcopal Church amid impressive ceremonies, and thousands of people thronged the church. Miss Lill Johnson, who is held as an accessory, is making endeavors through her counsel to secure her release by means of a writ of habeas corpus.

Pleasures of Memory.

What a blessed thing is memory! How it rings up the pleasures of the past, and bids its unpleasantness! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It showed marks of sin lines of care. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recall how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember these things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nervous perhaps in pain, or sleepless nights, restless days, untended, untended nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured, and kept to health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jones Miller, who is known nationally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from a neuralgia and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." Ah now you remember. Now you recall how many people you have heard say this same. Now you recollect how much you have heard of this great cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually leading, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world.

The man who clings to success in politics generally gets there by means of a boost and a "pull."

ARE YOU READING

The Great Articles of Rowell G. Horr in The New York Tribune?

The flag which waved above the office of THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE on November 1884, and which kept on waving for Blaine, indeed for several days after the election, and then faded to a mere remnant, has never, as any one has been led to believe on one particular issue, namely, the Protection of American Agriculture and Industry. THE TRIBUNE has never yielded an inch on that question. Last year it engaged Rowell G. Horr, of Michigan, to devote himself to the columns of the paper to an entire, certain, and effective effort for the Protection of the Tariff, Reciprocity, and the Currency, and the new project of the Tariff and the Currency. He has made a brilliant and instructive light on the question, and it now announces that Mr. Horr will continue his work through the columns of the paper during 1892. His writings are great, entertaining, clear and perfectly unanswerable. There is no doubt that the Tariff and the Currency are the most valuable help to every Republican who wants to inform himself on the subject, and to Democrats and Unionists who want to be the best National book of reference for an understanding of the Tariff and the Currency.

Two pages a week on Farming and one for Union Veterans, are printed regularly. Great many other special articles are contributed by writers for THE TRIBUNE. A number of them will write an "How-to-do-it" in L. G. and send you a copy of the paper, and will send you a sample copy of THE TRIBUNE before deciding on the 1 cent rate for 1892.

Foreign letters, editorials, book reviews and illustrated features are admitted. Send for a copy of THE TRIBUNE, Daily, 10c. Single papers, separately from the daily, 5c.

TRIBUNE ALMANAC, 1892.

Absolutely Accurate, Non-Partisan, and the Standard.

Now that Spofford's American Almanac has been discontinued, The New York Tribune Almanac is left as the one reliable, great standard, official, and standard, used by men of all political parties.

The issue for 1892 will be widely needed during the coming year. It contains 1000 pages, 30 times as large as the Almanac of ten years ago, now having 350 pages. It is printed in the same, namely, 25 cents. Send for a copy at once, and get the contents in detail, or remit your 25 cents to:

GIVEN UP FOR LOST

No Tidings of the Men Blown Out to Sea.

HOPE OF RESCUE ABANDONED.

A Possibility that Four of the Men May Have Been Saved.

How the Eighteen Poor Laborers of the New York Street Cleaning Department Were Carried Out to Sea—Widespread Interest and Sympathy Awakened by the Disaster—Heroic Rescue of Fifty-two Italians on Four Scows in Gravesend Bay.

New York, Jan. 28.—Only the vaguest news of the 18 men aboard the tug Webster and the four dumping scows which drifted out to sea in the terrific gale Tuesday morning has been received up to this morning.

Their fate is still in doubt, although it is possible that two of the scows have been rescued and will arrive in port today. This, however, would account for but four of the missing 18 men.

The steamship Stranton, Capt. Morrison, which arrived yesterday, brought the first news of the missing boats. The Stranton left West Hartlepool on Jan. 6, and arrived at the bar at 6 p. m. Tuesday. She remained outside, however, until yesterday.

Capt. Morrison reports that at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday, four miles south of Long Beach Hotel, he passed two patent dumping scows and three miles further south he saw a tugboat apparently anchored or unmanageable. He was unable to extend assistance on account of the storm.

At 5 p. m. yesterday a dispatch from Rockaway Beach stated that a large tug was visible off Rockaway, towing two of the missing scows. They were covered with ice, but apparently undamaged. It is the general belief that the two scows and tug are the ones seen by the Stranton on the previous afternoon.

On the other hand the Deasori, one of the tugboats out in search of the missing boats, came back last night. Her captain reported that he had been off Rockaway during the afternoon and had seen nothing of the tug and scows. He was sure he would have seen them had they been there, and believed that the tug referred to in the Rockaway Beach dispatch was his own. That theory, however, would not account for the statement that the tug sighted had two scows in tow.

The most widespread interest and sympathy were awakened yesterday by the news of the disaster. People forgot the cutting wind as they walked to their places of business in thinking about the poor fellows either dead or freezing and starving on an angry sea.

The boats swept out to sea were the tugboat Webster and Dumping scows 3, 5, 16 and 17 of the Barney Dumping Company. On these boats were eighteen men employed in loading and working the dumps in town. The Webster street cleaning department carries the city refuse to the open sea for dumping. Ten of the men were on the tugboat, and two were on each of the four scows.

The tug Webster has sufficient provision and water on board to last a week, but the men on the dumping boats had not more than a day's supplies on board.

The tugs Edwin Webster and the H. S. Nichols left the street-cleaning docks early Tuesday morning, each with two scows in tow. The Webster had boat No. 5, having on board two men.

The Nichols towed boat No. 3, two men, and boat No. 16, two men. A quick run was made to the dumping ground beyond Rockaway, and the self-dumpers were quickly unloaded, but when the tugs started to return to this city, the gale was so strong that slow progress was made.

Off Rockaway, about 9 a. m., the Webster suddenly stopped, and in a moment lay rolling in the trough of the sea with the ensign hoisted Union down as a signal of distress.

The hawser had parted between the tug and the dumping boats, and the tug's propeller had apparently become entangled with the hawser's end, which the waves washed under her stern.

The Nichols's captain put in as near the Rockaway Beach as possible, and, anchoring her scows inside the shoals, put out to the assistance of the Webster.

The high sea and wind, however, made it impossible for her to hold on to the hawser, which was gotten on board the Webster, and, getting short of water, the Nichols put back to the city.

Meanwhile the Webster and boats 5 and 17 had drifted out to sea.

The story of Captain Day of the tug Runyan, which rescued the fifty-two Italians on the tugs of the Street Cleaning Department around in Gravesend Bay, is as follows:

"When we got there we found the four scows aground, with all the Italians standing on dirt heaps watching us. They waved their arms when they saw us coming. We found we couldn't get near on account of the high sea, so we put out to a schooner that had anchored further down and borrowed a yawl. Five men were put in the yawl and they rowed out to the scows. We made thirteen trips, taking four of them every time, and some of them were so stiff that we had to lift them onto the tug. Our men got pretty stiff after rowing for half an hour, and it was awful work. The whole job took us three hours. Some of the Italians said they had been out on the refuse all night long. They looked it. You ought to have seen the way they felt when we passed around something to eat."
