Quaint Piece of Correspondence Worthy Republication

The following is a clipping from yesterday's Miner's Journal. In republishing it the Herald makes an offer to publish anything proper that may throw light upon the matter. The fifth "reason" should not pass unnoticed and in justice to the town the correspondent should be more explicit. The Herald has heard rumors touching the subject matter in that part of the communication, but those who were expected to have knowledge of it have persisted in professing ignorance of facts. The Herald columns are open for evidence:

Editor MINKER'S JOURNAL:—Among the reasons urged for the granting of a few more liquor licenses in the borough of Shenandoah we name the following:

First. Rather less than one hundred have been granted, and when we remember that the place is spread over a territory a whole square mile in extent and that its population numbers nearly 16,000—or about one hundred and sixty persons, including infants and cranks, to a saloon—its needs must be apparent without either petition or remonstrance.

Second. There still remain a few places in the town where there are at least four or five business houses of other kinds between licensed saloons, while in some favored spots they are allowed to alternate either singly or in twos and triplets with other business of a far less profitable kind. The unreasonableness of this will be more apparent when we reflect upon the great danger we are in at present of the further spread of that terrible scourge, la grippe, through the exposure incident, in such extreme weather as we are now having, to the necessity of having to go a hundred feet, and in a few instances even farther, to get a drink.

Third. This borough greatly needs the license fees, with its monumental stone crusher lying idle, and a proposed new water works to cost $100,000 or more, and the $20,000 needed for streets and sewers, and an expense account last year of $5,000, more than in any previous year, the additional fees for additional licenses would be a great help.

Fourth. There are a few hapless drunkards who are trying to emancipate themselves from the manacles of Bacchus, and whose money is in danger of being perverted into other channels, and whose families may be better provided for to the detriment of those of the remaining applicants for license. All this might easily be prevented by a few more licenses.

Fifth. There are a few more broken-hearted Christian women who may be rash enough to prosecute other liquor dealers for selling to intemperate husbands on Sunday. Yes, even in the face of the melancholy fate of such a woman of this town who returned from such a prosecution at Potsville the other day only to lie down and die from the mortification and excitement resulting from the lawyer-like abuse heaped upon her in the court room pending trial. The repetition of such a tragedy might be prevented if we can only succeed in getting a few more licenses run through the mill.

SHENANDOAH, JAN. 27, 1892.

Do Not be Deceived

Persons with weak lungs—those who are constantly catching cold—should wear an Alcock's Porus Plasters over the chest and a sash over the shoulder blades during cold weather. Remember they always strengthen and never weaken the part to which they are applied. Do not be deceived by imagining any other plaster like them—they are not—may look it, but looks deceive. Insist always on having Alcock's, the only reliable plaster ever produced.

Henry Weiderhold Leaves

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiderhold left town this morning, via the Lehigh Valley railroad, for New York City, from whence they will sail to-morrow for Germany. Last evening Mr. Weiderhold was invited to the Grant Cornet Band room and was entertained by a large number of friends, including Prof. Zeitz, members of the band and the Board of Control. Mr. Weiderhold made an address and took occasion to present to the Board of Control a photograph of the original Grant Band members. A large number of friends were at the depot this morning to wish the tourists a safe and pleasant voyage. Mr. and Mrs. Weiderhold will remain in G. R. many for a year, when Mr. Weiderhold will return here to look after business interests. He will decide upon his return whether or not he will locate permanently in Germany. His residence has been closed up and will remain unoccupied until his return.
