HARRISON'S POLICY PRAISED.

The New York Sun, one of the most violent Democratic papers in the country, has this to say on the Chilian question:

"Chili has exercised her option, and she has chosen peace. Our sister republic has learned a lesson which she is not likely to forget for years.

"The event justifies every measure of preparation for war that has been taken by the Navy Department under Secretary Tracy's energetic and far-seeing management. It is solely because we were ready for war that it was averted.

"Of the patriotism, wisdom and firmness of Gen. Harrison's policy throughout the affair there is no more doubt than of the patriotic readiness of the Democratic House to support the Administration. The President, his distinguished Secretary of State, and the Democratic Congressmen who have looked first to the honor of the flag, deserve the gratitude of the nation.

"It is worth a hundred million dollars to this country to have the world understand that there is a country, and a united country, behind the flag.

For Cleveland to withdraw his name as a Democratic candidate for the Presidential nomination would be a direct acknowledgement that he had been a candidate, which he has most persistently denied. For that reason we doubt his taking such action. Besides, it would be entirely unnecessary, as he was knocked out of the ring some time ago.

The Borough Council seems to be the objective point of many of our citizens.

MURDERED FOR MONEY.

An Old Candy Store Woman Brutally Slain at Millburn, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 1.—One of the most atrocious murders ever committed in Essex county occurred some time after midnight Saturday night, at Millburn, a small village nine miles from here. The victim is Mrs. Teresa Senior, an old lady 65 years of age, who kept a small candy and notion store on Millburn avenue, the main street of the place.

Early Saturday evening her husband, who is employed as a night watchman at Fourat's hat factory at South Orange, left for his work, leaving his wife alone to attend to the few customers who came to the store. It was very late when she closed for the night.

At 7 o'clock Sunday morning Joseph Senior, the husband returned from work. He went into the house, which is at the rear of the store, and was nearly prostrated at the sight which met his gaze.

Stretched on the floor in the middle of the store lay the lifeless body of Mrs. Senior. The floor was covered with blood and the contents of the store were strewn in every direction. A small shawl covered the face of the woman and when it was removed it was seen that her throat was cut from ear to ear. Besides these terrible injuries there were eleven stab wounds on various parts of the body, most of them being in the side and breast.

The cutting had been done with an old, blunt case knife. This weapon lay on the counter, nearby, and was covered with blood.

Robbery was plainly the incentive of the crime, for the entire store had been ransacked and $45 that had been placed in a secret place was gone.

It is thought that the terrible deed was committed by Gus Leutz, a German who worked in a hat factory near the town and who has been in prison for stealing some gold watches from persons in the neighborhood. He was seen in the town Saturday and told some men that if he could get enough money he would go to Germany.

On the other hand, it is thought that some one well acquainted with the house and who had been a visitor there, did the act. This theory is strengthened by the fact that a vicious dog that guards the place made no outcry at any time during the night.

Malignant Diphtheria Epidemic.
 PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 1.—Malignant diphtheria is epidemic at Kelley's Station, a little hamlet of 100 families, forty miles from Pittsburgh on the Allegheny River. Nearly a dozen deaths have already occurred among children, and others are down with the disease.

FRANCIS HUTCHISON'S BIG DROP

Sudden Death of Mrs. Coffee Saturday Evening—Mrs. Maher's Mishap—An Exciting Runaway Yesterday.

Francis Hutchison, the bright little three-year-old son of the proprietor of the Ferguson House, had a remarkable escape from very serious injury, or, perhaps, death, yesterday afternoon.

While leaning out one of the rear second story windows of the hotel he lost his balance and fell to the stone pavement in the yard, twenty feet below. Employees of the hotel hastened to the spot breathlessly, expecting to find the child dead, or nearly so; but to their great surprise they found he had been only slightly dazed by the shock accompanying the fall. No sign of injury could be found upon the little fellow.

A physician was summoned and, after a careful examination, he said that he could not see that the child had suffered anything more than the shock. He promised to call again this morning and did so. His second examination disclosed no indication of injury. When a HERALD reporter called at the hotel this morning Francis was romping about his play room as lively as a cricket, to the delight of his parents, who were very much shocked by the accident and who have the congratulations of the community on the result.

Mrs. Coffee's Death.

Jeanette, wife of Philip Coffee, the South Main street merchant, died at the family residence on that street Saturday in child birth. Mrs. Coffee was 39 years of age and leaves six children, the oldest being 13 years and the youngest 17 months. She was the daughter of M. Bass, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning. The remains will be placed on the 7:40 a. m. Lehigh Valley train for Jersey City and from that place the funeral will proceed by carriages to Cypress Hill cemetery, Brooklyn, where interment will be made.

Exciting Runaway.

Two Polish young men of town left a horse and buggy standing in front of "The Bindman's" in Brownsville yesterday and while they were in a hucse the horse ran away. The animal followed the borough road over the new bridge and over to Coal street, and along that street to near Chestnut, where Watchman Conroy, of the electric road, made a fine capture. Fortunately no one was hurt by the runaway. The buggy was considerably damaged.

FASCINATION.

Why so Many Ladies Who Should be Attractive Fail to Please. A Brilliant Woman Reveals the Secret.

[Ladies' Home.]
 "Dress is everything."
 "Is it? Some beautiful women cannot be improved by a dress, no matter how artistic it may be made."

The speakers were two lady reporters for society papers. They had attended balls, receptions and parties for years. They had studied the effects of costumes, the lines of beauty, and had faithfully written upon them in the papers they represented. They were masters in their art and yet they differed.

"You cannot prove your assertion by any lady of high standing and authority."
 "I can," replied her companion. "With in two days I will show you an interview with the leading woman on dress of America." And the two friends parted.

Last Wednesday they met at the same place, when, producing a neatly-written manuscript, the lady read the following remarkable interview:

"Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller is the acknowledged authority in America upon the subject of dress. An attractive woman herself, she knows how to render other women attractive in the highest degree. I sought an interview; it was granted, and I give you the results."

"Do you think, Mrs. Miller that women are made more attractive by their dress?"
 "That depends upon what you mean by attractive."

"Pleasing, fascinating if you choose—more charming to men and other women."
 "A simply beautiful woman is seldom attractive; a stupid one never. It is the soul, the life, the brilliancy, which render women attractive."

"I'll admit that, but what makes women brilliant?"

"Vivacity, brightness and good health. Did you ever see a sickly woman able to entertain a dinner party of bright people? On the other hand, did you ever know a cultivated and refined woman, overflowing with animal life and spirits, who was not fascinating?"

"So you believe perfect health is the secret of fascination, do you?"

"Most certainly. Artistic dressing is proper, fine curves attractive, but life such as comes from healthy throbbing blood is alone fascinating. It is a great mistake, however, to think that health is preserved by dress alone. Women must have proper food, freedom from care, and a good friend in need."

"What do you mean by that?"
 "Some assistance, physically. All women feel depressed at times, and all pleasure seems gone out of life. On all such occasions, and indeed whenever blue or worn out, she needs help. I know, because I have been in that condition myself."

"And what do you do when in that condition?"
 "One thing, and one thing only, I am assisted by the best friend that any woman ever had. It is Warner's Safe Cure. I mean it, and I have good reason to speak as I do. You think I am a perfectly healthy woman; so I am, but I take several bottles of this great cure every season just as I take additional care in the selection of tonic-giving food. As you know, there are certain times when every woman needs assistance. At such times, and before such times, there is, so far as I know, but one thing that can help, and that is the great cure I have named."

"I had Mrs. Miller a reluctant goody, for I felt that I had met a woman who knew women, what their trials and troubles were, and what they required."

An Insurance Case.

On December 23d, last, Michael Moskier, father of Councilman Moskier, of the First ward, died. A few days after the widow made claim for the amount of insurance due her under a certificate of insurance issued upon the life of the deceased by the Home Friendly Insurance Company, of Baltimore, Md., of which William T. Evans is the local superintendent. Payment was refused under the certificate, the company claiming that when deceased was insured he was entered at an age far below his actual years, and that therefore there was a misrepresentation. The widow then caused a summons to be issued and Squire Monaghan gave judgment for the amount claimed ($40) upon the company failing to put in an appearance. To-day the company filed a bond to take the case on appeal to court. Mr. Evans, the superintendent, says that the deceased was insured at the age of 45 years and the company claims that he was several years older. He also says that the reason the company did not put in appearance before Squire Monaghan is that the summons was served on only four days' notice, when the law requires five. Mr. Evans says that the company contests the claim to make a test case on misrepresentations, and nothing else.

GLEANINGS BY THE LOCAL CORPS OF REPORTERS.

WHAT THE SCRIBES SEE AND HEAR

Rev. Powick Preaches a Sermon on "How to Reach the Masses" in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The sermon on Sunday morning in the Methodist Episcopal church dealt vigorously with the important question of "How to Reach the Masses." The text was from Psalm 135-6: "He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing bringing his sheaves with him." In order to render farm life in our day more attractive somebody has suggested the building of farm houses in groups while the fields surround them in the outlying regions. Like many other modern notions it is a very old one and is borrowed from the agricultural life in the east. Hence the sower of Christ's parable went forth to sow—as does the sower of the text. The need of the world is for the church to go forth with the incorruptible seed which is the word of God. There is no other way to solve the problem of how to reach the masses. We need to crawl out of our shell and go after them. We need to get off our stiffs and with earnest personal work to bridge the gulf that separates the church and the unevangelized masses. There is no other secret of success and we need no other. It is to be feared that the bulk of professing christians are drones in the master's vineyard and not laborers. We often hear the text interpreted as though there was some mysterious connection between the "weeping" of the sower and the germination of the seed—as though it taught the necessity of steeping the seed in tears. But the text teaches, rather, that although the "going forth" may involve such sacrifices as to extort cries and tears we are to go anyhow. This is God's answer to man's "I don't feel like it." We are to "trample under foot the baseless doctrine that we are not to do good unless our hearts be free to it." Many a man has stood by the truth when it has been upon the scaffold and it has cost him ridicule, boycotts, etc., but he stood there all alone, but when it was transferred to the throne and the time serving multitudes stood around it he forgot his tears in the joy of its triumph. It is easy and pleasant to work for God when all is favorable. It requires very little grace and still less heroism and is worthy of very little credit. But when self-encircling doubts and fears and obstacles are added to the toil it is heroic to be true. But we have the assurance that though we go forth with weeping if we bear the seed of the kingdom and get it into the hearts of men, there is no doubt concerning our success. In worldly matters men may invest and toil and lose their all. But in work for God there is no such thing as failure. "My word," says God, "shall not return unto me void." The means of our success is commensurate with our effort. "He that sows sparingly shall reap also sparingly." We shall reap the same in kind as we sow. "For whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap."

Just Missed It.
 P. J. Ferguson and J. R. Coyle, Esq., was ked out of the former's private office in the Lehigh Valley depot, Saturday, where they had been in consultation. "Where are you going?" asked P. J.
 "I am going to Mahanoy City," the lawyer answered.
 "And I am going to Delano, so we can ride together as far as Mahanoy City."
 The two left the waiting room in time to see the train pull around the curve at the electric light house.
 "Well, that's nice," ejaculated P. J.
 "Is that our train?"
 "No; not now."
 The lawyer said something about depending upon railroad men and followed the other back into the private office in a disturbed state of mind.

 Chief of Police Amour, who has been ill or several weeks, was about on Saturday.

Joseph Townsend, formerly a resident of North Emrick street, has located in Small Point, Maine.

W. F. Sadler, Jr., who has been confined to his room for several days past on account of the grip, is convalescing.

W. A. Scott and C. E. Winters of Springfield, Ohio, capitalists, spent Saturday and Sunday in town, and went over the route of the electric railway and inspected the work done.

M. H. Keiler, who recently retired from business, does not seem to find leisure hanging heavily on his hands. After a brief respite from the close confinement of business, he will be ready to enter into more exciting and outdoor pursuits.

Little Locals.

The chu chus were all pretty well attended yesterday.

Saturday was pay day and the saloons, as usual, did the largest business.

They are all after it—that silk mill the Mt. Carmel people are reaching for.

Contractor McGovern, of Girardville, took charge of building the trestlings, etc., of the electric road this morning.

Lost, yesterday, a pocket book containing a small sum of money, a laundry check, &c. Leave at HERALD office.

Next Sunday evening Rev. Wm. McNally will preach the last of the series of sermons on the Second Coming of the Saviour. Last evening's discourse was a very interesting one and a large congregation listened to it.

Work on the Mahanoy City end, as well as the Ashland and Locust Dale ends of the electric railway, will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible in the spring, so that both ends will be completed, simultaneously, if possible.

"White Oil Man" Dead.
 Thomas Richards died on his farm near Fountain Springs, Thursday morning last, from miners' asthma. He had been confined to his bed for months. A wife and six children survive him. Richards was well known throughout the county as the manufacturer and peddler of British White Oil, an ointment of his own for cuts, bruises, etc., and he had many customers in this town.
