CAPTAIN CLARE'S VIVID TALE

The Tug's Guards Under Water When Aid Reached Them.

Sprung a Leak Soon After the Accident to the Propeller and the Woodwork Was Burned to Keep the Pumps Going—Frantic Efforts of the Half Frozen and Hungry Men to Keep the Tug From Going Down—Nothing but Praise for the Schooner Crew.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Feb. 1.—Capt. George Clark, who together with a crew of nine, was carried out to sea from New York on the disabled tug Edwin H. Webster, Tuesday during a snow storm, and rescued by the schooner Everet Webster, Captain Bower, of Philadelphia, vividly described to a reporter the terrible experience of himself and his men and their daring rescue by the officers and men of the schooner Webster when hope had almost been abandoned.

The captain, after saying that the trip to the dumping grounds of the tug and her two scows was without incident, continued as follows:

"About 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, after the scows had dumped their loads, we started to return. The wind, which had been very high all morning, attained at this time the velocity of a gale. Blinding snow squalls prevailed, and before we knew it we got into shoal water. While attempting to get out into deep water, the hawser fouled the propeller and the boat was rendered helpless.

"All our efforts to get the rope clear would not hold, and with the scows we gradually drifted out to sea.

"About an hour later the hawser holding the scows, which was entangled in the screw, cut or chafed itself loose and the scows drifted rapidly seaward.

"Those on board the scows dropped their anchors, but they did not appear to hold and the boats continued to drift to the northeast.

"All that day they were in sight of us, but next morning they had disappeared. The Webster, in the meantime, had continued dragging slowly but surely into rougher water, and was a complete mass of ice. She labored heavily and at length sprang a leak.

"The men were obliged to stand in the ice-cold water, working for their lives in the endeavor to keep the pumps in working order.

"In this way all hands were all more or less frost bitten.

"At midnight, Wednesday, the supply of coal became exhausted, and all available woodwork, such as berths, flooring, joinerwork, etc., was burned, furnishing fuel to work the pumps.

"About 3 o'clock Thursday morning, while in this precarious condition, the wind still heavy, fuel exhausted, the water up to the grate bars in the fire room and the crew totally exhausted from exposure, excessive labor, and hunger, they having scarcely tasted food for forty hours, a vessel's light was sighted, heading straight for the Webster.

"This was a most welcome sight and we frantically waved signal lights to attract her attention.

"The vessel, which proved to be the schooner Everet Webster, saw us, and she immediately bore down toward us.

"Upon learning our condition her captain ordered the stern boat lowered, and this was manned by Mate W. M. Leeds and three men.

"The sea was very high at the time and the work of transferring the men from the Webster was both dangerous and tedious, and their boat could take but one man at a time.

"By skillful management, however, Mate Leeds rescued us all from the sinking steamer, but it took ten trips and over an hour's time to do it.

"When the last man was taken from the tug her guards were level with the water and she could not have staid afloat much longer."

"Captain Clark is high in his praise of Captain Bowen and the officers and crew of the schooner. The schooner herself was a solid mass of ice and was almost unmanageable.

"The Captain is of the opinion that if a large tug had been sent to their assistance they and their boat could have been saved.

"Captain Clark has no knowledge of missing scow No. 5, but thinks that she could not sink as she had water tight compartments running nearly her whole length. He expressed, however, great anxiety for the two men aboard of her, as she was not abundantly supplied with food and fuel. The tug Webster was abandoned about twenty miles east of the Highlands of New York.

"The crew saved only what they stood in and are in a destitute condition.

"When they were landed aboard the schooner it was found that all of the rescued men had their hands and feet more or less frozen. They have, however, rapidly recruited since and they will be in a suitable condition to be forwarded to their homes to-day.

Lawyer Monaghan Starts for Home.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 1.—R. Jones Monaghan, the prominent lawyer and Democratic politician, who disappeared mysteriously last September, and was afterwards located in Sydney, N. S. W., sailed for home on the 31st instant. Letters received here show that Mr. Monaghan had been troubled with insomnia for months before he went away, and that he had completely recovered his health. Just how long it will take him to reach West Chester is not known.

TRAGEDY IN WASHINGTON.

A Dissolute Man Wounds His Wife and Kills Her Brother.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—A double tragedy occurred here last night in the neighborhood of Eighteenth and Q streets, a fashionable part of the city, in which Howard Schneider killed his brother-in-law, Frank Hamlink, aged 21 years, and fatally wounded his own wife.

Schneider is a young man of good family but of dissolute habits. Last June he took his wife, then Miss Hamlink, out riding to Hyattsville, Md., showed her a marriage license, and at the point of a pistol forced her to marry him.

Returning home, the woman kept the marriage a secret for some time, but it finally leaked out. The parents of both the young people then decided that it was best for them to live together and Schneider took up his residence with his wife's folks.

He became dissipated and kept late hours, and on last Wednesday night he was locked out of the house.

Last night he sent a note to his wife requesting her to leave home and go with him. Mrs. Schneider replied that she did not care to have anything to do with him. Mrs. Schneider, with her brother and sister then went to church.

Schneider laid in wait for her, and on the return of the party from church he fired five shots at them with the result stated above.

Schneider was arrested.

THE HOLBROOKE ESTATE.

Mrs. Maybrick's Mother After Money to Aid Her Daughter.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Judge Andrews of the Supreme Court has granted an order of reference for the accounting of the trustees of the estate of Darius B. Holbrooke, a wealthy New York merchant, who died in 1898.

One-half of Holbrooke's estate was left for the benefit of his daughter, now Baroness Caroline E. von Roques, of Rouen, France, the mother of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who is serving a life sentence in England for the alleged murder of her husband.

The Baroness thinks she is entitled to about $4,000 from the trustees of the estate in addition to what she received. If she receives the money, she intends to pay the fees of Mrs. Maybrick's counsel in England.

John H. Gudge was named as the referee.

May Succeeded the Late Bishop Loughlin.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The "Sunday Tribune" says that it is more than likely that Right Rev. Bishop Ludden of the diocese of Syracuse will be chosen by Pope Leo as the successor of the late Bishop Loughlin of the Brooklyn diocese. It is understood that his name headed the list of three names of candidates for the position sent to Rome by the Bishops' Council. It is stated that the choice lies between Bishop Ludden and Dr. Mitchell of St. James Church, Brooklyn.

Mail Car and Contents Burned.

UTICA, Feb. 1.—A lamp explosion in the New England mail car of train No. 32 on the New York Central railroad, at De Witt, last evening, caused a fire which consumed the car and its contents. The mail destroyed was all gathered along the Central road.

Bartow on the Sound, White-Hooper Co., N. Y.

To Alva's Brazilian Specific Co.—Gentlemen:—Last spring I was troubled with what physicians told me was muscular rheumatism. I was unable to walk for nearly six weeks. All this time I was using the medicine prescribed by the attending doctor, and from which I got no relief.

A friend sent me a large bottle of "Actos Blood Cure," which I tried, and before two days of the rheumatism was entirely free from them. I walked without pain. It is now two months since the pains left me, and have not as yet returned, and I feel entirely free from them. I delayed writing to you, as I was anxious to know whether I was temporarily or permanently cured.

It is with pleasure that I now state that I am well, and I would judge that I am cured.

It is highly necessary for me to recommend this medicine as I am positive that a trial of it is all that is necessary, and I am fully convinced it will recommend itself.

A WIFE'S DOWNFALL

Prof. Gregory Sues for Divorce at Trenton, N. J.

SOCIETY CIRCLES AGITATED.

The Defendant is a Linguist, Elocutionist and a Fine Musician.

Her Shameful Career in New York City—A Long List of Co-Respondents Named. Showing That the Woman Has Repeatedly Broken Her Marriage Vows—Formerly an Active Worker in Church and Benevolent Matters.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 1.—Society circles here are much agitated over a divorce suit begun by Prof. B. C. Gregory, supervising principal of the public schools, against his wife, who was prominent in musical and social circles.

Professor Gregory came here three years ago from Newark, and he and his wife were at once socially recognized.

Last July Mrs. Gregory resigned as the accompanist of the Mendelssohn Choral Union and left the city. The separation was an amicable one, but her subsequent life in New York was so notoriously bad that the suit for divorce has been brought.

Mrs. Gregory took an active part in church and benevolent work, and from the facts set forth in the petition, she has been leading a double life.

A long list of co-respondents are named, showing that within nine months she has broken her marriage vows with eight different men.

She visited the notorious houses of Trenton and New York, where she made and kept questionable engagements.

The co-respondents are Walter G. E. Wood, Newark; J. H. Stoll, J. T. Sutton, John Baker, H. Adams, John Wood, H. Burns, all of Trenton, and Simon Shell, of New York.

The petition gives the dates of all the offenses, and states that her downfall began three years ago.

She is now, it is claimed, partially supported by Samuel Schell, of 240 Lexington avenue, New York.

She visited his house first for the purpose of giving literary readings. On January 3 of this year, however, she went with him to the Astor House, and during the month of January met him at a house on Lexington Avenue, New York.

Mrs. Gregory's maiden name was Leah Letson. She is a linguist, elocutionist and a fine musician.

THE CASE OF DR. GRAVES.

His Counsel of the Opinion that He May Be Admitted to Bail.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 1.—The granting of a supersedeas in the Graves case does not mean that Graves will be admitted to bail as has been claimed. He will be allowed all the time his attorneys consider necessary to further prepare his case. Attorneys for the defense are jubilant and are confident of ultimately securing their client's acquittal. It is the general belief that if a new trial be granted, it will be impossible to secure another conviction.

Judge Wells, one of the attorneys for Dr. Graves, says, however, that he thinks the action of supersedeas will make it possible for the doctor to be released on bail.

The judge says his firm will take immediate steps toward that end.

He says if the Supreme Court so elects it may release him, and that the circumstances fully warrant such an action.

When asked when it was likely the case would come before the court for investigation, Judge Wells said: "I do not believe it can be presented to the court under six months."

It Will Be a Novel Parade.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The arrival of Gen. Booth, Commander in Chief of the Salvation Army, at Southampton, Feb. 12, will be the signal for an imposing demonstration on the part of his forces. On his arrival at London there will be a monster parade. Among its chief features will be the corps of Eastbourne prisoners, the naval brigade of reformed sailors and the corps of saved drunks.

A Corpse By Parcel Post.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—An inquest was held on the new-born male child that was sent through the parcel post and found at the dead letter office addressed to Webb, No. 8 Hartborne road, Kettering, where no such person is to be found. The body was in a cardboard box and wrapped in cotton wool. This is the fourth body sent by parcel post with no trace of the sender.

Gov. McKinley in No Danger.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—Gov. McKinley's condition was so much improved to-day that serious results are no longer feared. Dr. Fullerton said that he had recommended rest for a few days, and this, with light treatment, he felt sure, would put the Governor in his usual condition of health early in the week.
