SO SAYS THE DOMINION PRESS.

Report That Three Commissioner Will Go to Washington Next Week.

The Canadian Government, Knowing the Important Factor the Reciprocity Question is in Dominion Elections, Has Lost No Opportunity of Heralding That the United States Still Wishes to Negotiats.

OTTAWA, Out., Feb. 4.-From one end of the Dominion to the other the Government press, on evidently inspired information sent out from Ottawa, intimate that, at the request of the United States Government, three representatives of the Dominion Cabinet will proceed to Washington next week to reopen negotiations with Secretary Blaine for reciprocity between Cauada and the United States.

Knowing the important factor the reciprocity question is sure to be in the pending Laminion election, the Government have lost no opportunity to herald it abroad that Socretary Blaine has shown a disposition at last to negotiate.

Speaking with a member of the Cab-inet, the latter said that no official an-nouncement had been made, sithough admitting that there was a striking significance to the uniformity with which the information had gone abroad through the Government press.

The Ottawa "Free Prees" says it is an election take on the part of Fremier Abbott, and that Secretary Elaine's confirmation of having invited the Canadian ministers to Washington to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity will have to be received before the will believe it.

ceived before they will believe it.

Leading Liberals deprecate the government's action in attempting to use Secretary Blaine by false representations to assist them in fighting their elections if he has held out no further inducements for the Canadian delegates to visit Washington.

STORIES OF HARRIS

The Murderer's First Wife Said to Have Been Found.

SHE WAS ALSO A SCHOOLGIRL.

New York, Feb. 4.—The alleged first wife of Carlyle W. Harris, who on Tuesday night was declared guilty of deliberately murdering his second wife, Helen Potts, has at last been discovered. At least so thinks Assistant District Attorney Wellman. Search had been made far and wide for such a person, but without avail.

One day, about the mildle of the trial, a man living in Connecticut wrote to Mr. Wellman, telling him of a case of a secret marriage in which he believed Carlyle W. Harris to be one of the principals. This man, whose name is withheld, was telegraphed for and came to New York.

He told Mr. Wellman that about seven years ago he was acquainted with a young girl, Lulu Van Zandt, who had been married at the age of 14 to one Charles Harris, who was then 16, and that the marriage took place at the house of the pastor of the old Asbury Church on Washington square. Within two on Washington square. Within two weeks the girl discovered that her husband's name was Carlyle. He took her to Brooklyn to live. Her parents were residents of Plainfield, N. J.

The pair left Brooklyn soon afterward and went to Connecticut to live, where the young wife soon detected her has-band in an intrigue with another girl.

In disgust she left him and returned to New York, where afterward a criminal operation was performed on her at her husband's instigation.

It was discovered that she had been living with her mother for three years in East Ninety-second street, but had left there about a year ago. It was also found that other parties had been looking for the girl a few days previously. These are supposed to have been emissarles of the defendant on trial.

Mr. Wellman and the Connecticut gen-tleman then called on Inspector Byrnes, who detailed several detectives on the search for the girl, who was finally found at South Amboy, N. J. She was there visited by the gentleman from Connecticut, who found that she had become a physical wrock as the result of the al-leged operation. Nothing, however, could induce her to come to New-York an inquiry made by the Commissioner of to testify against Harris, who had threat ened her so that she lived in perfec-

She, however, examined pictures of Harris, and declared it was the face of her husband, grown more mature. Her uncle, who is wealthy and has a great deal of inguence over her, positively forbade her to attend the trial on pain of his lasting displeasure. This was on Sunday last, and there was no time to make further efforts to get her to appear on the witness stand before the close of

There is also positive proof that Harris wronged a servant in Brooklyn, who, in 1890, gave birth to a child in one of the hospitals in this city. When she got well enough to leave the institution she was penniless and appealed to Harris, who was now secretly married to Helen Potts. Harris gave her a trifle and told her to "get rid of the brat" by leaving it on some doorsten.
