RUSSIAN DIPLOMACY.

How a Clever Ambassador Obtained Audience With the Sultan.

The late sultan of Turkey, Abdul Aziz, was, if not absolutely mad, sufficient eccentric to cause constant trouble, not only among his own ministers, but also where the foreign ambassadors were concerned.

At one time the sultan absolutely refused to grant an audience to any member of the diplomatic body, and spent the greater part of his time in cock-fighting, an amusement which he greatly relished.

Ignatieff learned that his imperial majesty was in need of fresh birds to supply the place of those killed in flight.

The ruse was successful, but the sultan, at first delighted with the gift, soon sent for the ambassador to present himself at the palace, and explain, if he could, why the bird had no inclination to fight.

A conference followed on the subject of gamecocks in general, and this one in particular, and when the diplomatist had succeeded in drawing the sultan into a conversational mood, he adroitly introduced the political matter he had so long awaited to discuss.
