FREYCINET RESIGNS

Associations Bill Defeated in the French Chamber.

DIPLOMACY OF THE POPE.

His Recent Letter Believed to Havo Produced the Result.

The Bill Was Said to Be Directed Against Catholics-The Vots Was Three Hundred and Four to Two Bundred and Twelve -Victory Over the Government Hafted With Enthusiasm By All But the Badtcals-Leon Say Spoken of as a Possible Successor to M. Freycinet.

Panis, Feb. 19.-A vote was taken in the Chamber of Deputies last right on the Associations bill, and resulted in its

M. Freycinet, Premier, at once offered his resignation.

The vote was 304 against the bill to 212 in favor of it. Great excitement prevails. The bill was said to be directed against Catholics.

that the right of association may be enjoyed without any previous authorization, but the second article begins by enumerating the conditions under which association will be tolerated.

A declaration must be made as to the name and object of the association, its list of members and headquarters, and a full statement must also be forthcoming as to its foreign members or corre

The points, however, which especially affect religious associations are these:
Every member of an association shall of March have the right to withdraw at any time and to demand that his contributions be paid back, and to this right the associasion shall not have the right to offer any opposition.

The law also enjoins that no real estate shall be owned, except such as is absolutely necessary; that hospitals shall not have a larger fund than is needed for their maintenance, and shall not be used to house the association. Foreigners are further probibited from acquiring any kind of property, and from receiving gifts and heritages.

For every infraction of the law the offender is to be punished by imprison-ment.

Liberty in France still maintains her old reputation, and it is therefore useless to add that the bill was coldly received: The victory over the government was builed with enthusiasm by the Catholics and all but the Radicals.

The Pope's recent utterance in favor of the Republic is believed to be largely re-sponsible for the triumph of the Church over its enemies.

The Pope spoke highly of France, and flattered the pride, both military and civil, of the nation.

These utterances were made public just at the time when the government was proceeding to introduce its bill to efface the independence of the religious communities. They made a profound impression and disarmed all who were not radically hostile to the Church and resolved to degrade it.

The government found too late that a mistake had been made, but resolved to persist, hoping to force the measure persis, hoping to force the measure through.

The defeat comes with stunning force, and is interpreted as a rebuke for the whole course of the Ministry in clerical matters, from the time that M. Fallieres, as Minister of Public Worship, prosecuted the archbishop of Aix for sentiments that were zealous and perhaps indiscreet, but were certainly not intended as any oftones to the State.

M. de Freycinet has held the place of Minister of War and Premier since March 1, 1890. He is about 64 years of age, and has been prominent in public life since 1870.

DISEASED HORSE FLESH AS FOOD

German Immigrants Seek Wealth and Find Worse Than Death.

Seventy-Year-Old William Kindermann and His Son Have but a Sorry Existence in the Land of Their Golden Hopes When the Horse Was Kitted They Toxted the First Meal They Rad Eaten in Months They Receive Three Bullars for the Mides, With Which They Will Buy Flour and Potatoes to Keep Them selves from Starving. JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 19. -Ridgefield. l'ownship's Board of Health has discov ered that two diseased horses have been slaughtered and eaten by Germans living near the little village of Palisades Park. It was reported first that the animals had been converted into Frankfurter sausages and sold in this city. An investigation revealed a story of destitution and misery such as is seldom encountered in a civilized community. The supposed sausage factory is a little shanty where two men, father and son, exist in the most abject squalor.

Inside there was but one room, about fifteen feet square, inclosed by walls of mud and mortar. In one corner stood a bunk of rough boards upon which lay au old man, shivering with the cold. Tue floor, which was of dirt, was shared by six dejected looking fowls and a goat, Across the middle of the room upon a hickory pole were hung parts of a horse. On the stove, in a tin pail, herse flesh was stewing.

The old man seemed to be very feeble and miserable. They at first resented the reporter's intrusion, but finally told their queer story. The old man was Wilhelm Kinderman, the young man his stepson, Jonan Wilhelm Schweier. They came to this country three years ago from Spremberg, Labau, Saxony. Young Schaefer had been in the Ger-man army, as his papers show, as clerk to the commander of an English ragi-ment. His step-father, who was 70 years old, persuades him to take advan-tage of a two years' furlough and come to America me try their fortunes in the

Their nogal were binsted. A few days in new tion, satisfied them that the field was too crowded. They, wandered up the husson river, through Berger county. The wild wooded hills reminded them of their name in the Bavarian Alps. and upon a steep hillside they built then wretched hut. Winter came and with it starvation.

"We had no food in the house and Johan brought the old horse from the woods and knocked it in the head. That night we eat the first meat we had tasted for months. "A few days afterward a man from Englewood brought a horse here and said we could have it. Johan killed that also and we now have enough meat to last us a year. We will smoke it and then chop it up and stuff those skins with it and it will keep many months." Young Schaefer produced three silver dollars he said he had received from a dealer in hides for the skins. He had carried them to this city in a bag and he thought that this is what gave rise to the report that he was selling the meat here. The money, he said, would buy a barrel of potatoes and they could live kery comfortably until warm weather when he expected to get work grading some of the new streets.
