The Victims His Wife and a Servant-After They Were Wounded They Jumped from Windows to Escape His Murderous Weapon-He Had Several Times Before Attempted to Murder His Wife, but on Each Occasion She Bad Wrested His Revolver from Him.

New York, Feb. 23 .- A ghastly tragedy was enacted last evening in the dive-story tenement house at No. 107 Allen street. Henry Stevens, rendered usane by jealousy, attempted to kill his entire household, and succeeded in dangerously wounding his wife and the servant girl, and then put an end to his own life. The weapon he used to com-mit the deed was a heavy buildog revol-Two of the bullets were fired at his wife, two at the servant girl, and the fifth and last was sent through his own

The suicide was a bartender. When Stevens returned from work last night it was plain to be seen that he had been drinking

The Stevens family occupied the first apartment on the second floor, consisting of three rooms. His wife, his daug ter Lillie, aged five years, his father-in-law and the servant were in the kitchen when he arrived. Shortly afterward the house keeper, Mrs. Schmidt, who lives in the rear tenement on the second floor, heard Stevens and his wife quarreling. A few minutes later five pistol shots rang out in quick succession. Then the two women, covered with blood, were seen by people on the street to rush to one of the front windows, climb out on the fire escape and plunge headlong to the side

Mrs. Stevens was caught by a man who was passing at the time, and was carried in a fainting condition to the Eldridge street station. Miss Smith fell on the sidewalk and was carried to a drug store nearby. Both were afterward removed to Gouveneur Hospital.

Immediately after the shooting the neighbors entered the Stevens' apart-ments. One of the first to enter was Detective Mooney of the Eldridge station. He found Stevens' little daughter sitting in the klicken crying. "Papa just chased mamma in there," she said, pointing to the front room, 'and shot her.'

Detective Mooney pushed open the door and found Stavens lying dead across the bed, with a revolver clutched in his right hand. Blood was pouring from his right ear. The furniture of the room was overturned, the window curtains pulled from their fastenings and the mirror of the dressing case shattered by one of the lubble. one of the builets.

In the rear bedroom, the door of which was locked, Detective Mooney found Mrs. Stevens' father. He was too frightened to tell much about the occurrences that led up the shooting. He simply knew that Stevens had come home in a quarrel-some mood and had threatened to kill everyone in the house, at the same time drawing a revolver from his pocket.

The two women ran into the front room while he went in the rear bedroom, locked the door and crawled under the locked the door and crawled under the bed. The old man and the little girl were taken to the house of his other daughter at No. 2145 Second avenue. At Gouverneur Hospital the physicians last night said that the two women were in a very critical condition. Mrs. Stevens was shot in the right shoulder and in the neck, the latter bullet narrowly missing the jugular vein. The servant was wounded in the mouth and the left arm. To a reporter Mrs Stevens said that her husband had always been jealous of her without any cause, and had fre-quently threatened to kill her. He had drawn a revolver to shoot her four times before, but in every instance she had succeeded in wrestling the weapon away from him.

Novelty in the Divorce Line.

FITCHED BATTLE.

A Sheriff's Posse and Alabama Despera does Exchange Shots.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 23.-In Blout a band of regulators ordered Mary McMurray and her daughter, bad characters, to leave the county, at the same time sending letters written in blood to several prominent citizens suspected of being intimate with the women, threatening to burn their dwellings and kill them unless they left the county

William Farrington's barn and stables were burned, as was also the house of the McMurray women, who narrowly escaped.

Sheriff Morris started after the regulators, who were led by Bob McMurray, a desperado, and drove them into a cave, where a pitched battle took place between the sheriff's posse and outlaws.

Two of the latter were wounded, but all got away. Lynching is threatened if causely.

FRIGHTFUL STORY.

One Negro Lynched, Another's Fate Unknown, and Another Being Tracked. SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 23.-A frightful

atory has been brought to this city.
In the vicinity of Modoc, S. C., on the Port Royal railroad, a white woman, whose name is not given, gave birth to a mulatto child. The neighbors were indignant, and, feeling disgraced, the community demanded of her the name of the father of the child.

The woman gave the name of three negroes, and many men were soon on their track.

One of them is known to have been lynched, another is said to have been taken into custody and his fate is unknown, and the other is at large and has signified his intention of dying with his
