A VERY EASY VICTIM

Maher Was a Chopping Block for Fitzsimmons.

STOPPED IN TWELVE ROUNDS. His Face Looked Like a Beefsteak After the Fight.

Fitz Did Not Receive a Mark—He Kissed Maher and Offered Him a Bottle of Whiskey—They Both Took a Drink—The Largest Crowd That Ever Witnessed a Fight in New Orleans Was Present. Large Sums of Money Change Hands.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Well, the agony is over. Bob Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher, "the Irish champion," by the grace of Billy Madden, have met in a twenty-four-foot ring for a twelve-thousand-dollar purse, and the challenger of John L. Sullivan, proved to be a rank counterfeiter. He did not even prove a dead game man, for he gave up after fighting twelve rounds in forty-seven minutes.

Never in the history of the Crescent City has such a throng made its way through the French section, what may be called the Latin quarter of New Orleans, as passed up Royal street to Montague last night.

Following closely upon the Ryan-Needham fiasco of Monday, and receiving the benefit of the overflow of the great influx of Mardi Gras visitors, it was natural enough that one of the greatest pugilistic encounters the country has seen should receive an unwonted amount of attention and demand an abnormal concentration of public interest.

The scenes which were made memorable on the occasion of the meeting of Sullivan and Kilrain were not only paralleled, but exceeded. The mob that surrounded the Great Eastern Depot on that occasion, when the heavyweight champion of the world and his opponent left for their battle ground in Mississippi, were more than equalled all day long.

At 9 o'clock, as had been promised by the club's officials, the ring was ready for the great event of the night—the fight to finish between Maher and Fitzsimmons.

At 9:05 the gloves were brought to the ring and weighed by the police. The men then entered the ring. Maher was the first in. He had for his seconds Billy Madden and Jack Fallon, and for both-holders Gus Tutill and Jack Lambert.

When Fitzsimmons entered the ring he was cheered to the echo. He had for his seconds Jimmy Fleming, Carroll and Joe Choyland. Alack O'Grady was his both-holder. The men were called to the center of the ring and instructed in the interpretation of the rules of the club.

Fitzsimmons weighed 165 pounds and Maher 175.

The Fight.
Round 1—Both men watched each other. Both exchanged blows. Maher the aggressor. He lead, Fitz countered heavy on ribs. Both displayed great science. Fitz knocked Maher down with right on jaw. Maher lunged at Fitz, but missed. Fitz hit him a stiff one on jaw.

Round 2—Both men sparred for wind. Both missed heavy face blows. Maher hit Fitz terrific blow on heart. Fitz landed heavy on Maher's neck. Fitz landed a second heavy blow on Maher's neck. Maher rushes, hits Fitz hard. Maher bleeding from mouth. Honors about even. Both weaker.

Round 3—Maher leads, misses, leads again. Fitz jumped away. Maher hit Fitz light on nose. Fitz leads, jabbs Peter in mouth. Peter counters on chest. Fitz jabbed him in mouth again hard. Both men cautious. Fitz ducks away, jabs Peter twice in mouth, hits him again. "Bob" had the best of this round.

Round 4—Both sparred for wind. Both cautious. Both exchanged light blows. Maher leads, falls short. Peter hits hard, Fitz dodged and landed heavily on Peter's neck. Maher runs after, Fitz hits both land blows on each other. Honors even.

Round 5—Both sparring for wind. Fitz led light on the chin. Maher countered heavily on the body. Both men landed lefts on face. Maher bleeding badly from mouth. His mouth looks like a beefsteak. Maher runs at, hits, but Fitz ducks cleverly, both fighting hard. Maher hits Fitz lightly on stomach. Maher lands left on neck. Fitz has best of round.

Round 6—Fitz leads light on neck. Fitz hits heavily on neck. Maher landed heavily on Fitz's jaw, both men tired, Fitz seems to be the fresher of the two. Fitz leads, hits him hard in neck he counters. Maher hits him hard, terrible fighting, both slugging, honors still even.

Round 7—Both led. Fitz landed on stomach, both exchanged lefts on head. Maher goes to Fitz's corner Fitz ducks away. They both exchange hard blows on neck. Fitz gives him the "pivot" and lands a terrific blow on his neck. Both hit hard on neck, with right. Fitz jabs him again. Fitz lands heavily with his right on call of time. Fitz had best of round.

Round 8—Fitz jabs him in the neck, both men sparring for wind, they both exchange blows and chuck. Fitz jabs him again, Fitz hits him in the mouth, he counters on neck. Fitz jabs him twice, he retaliates on neck. Fitz lands with left on wind. Fitz has far and best of round.

Round 9—Fitz seems to be freshest; they both land on face, they both hit each other hard on neck. Fitz jabs him again, he lands light on shoulder. Fitz jabs him twice in the mouth. Maher seems to be getting weak, his blows lack force. Both men tired, the round was somewhat lame, honors slightly in favor of Fitz.

Round 10—Fitz jabbed Maher in neck. Maher hit Fitz on neck; both men very cautious. Fitz jabs him in mouth, both men on defensive. Fitz landed on Maher's jaw. Maher leads hits Fitz hard in stomach swings two vicious blows and missed. They both land heavy, honors even.

Round 11—Both men cautious. Fitz jabs him in the mouth, lands again, both exchanging blows. Fitz jabs again, Maher leads, hits him on arm. Fitz jabs in returning the mouth. Maher lands on breast, they both land in mouth, repeats dose. Fitz jabs him all best of 11th.

Round 12—Both sparring, wind, Maher leads Fitz jabs him hard on neck. Maher lands on back of neck. Fitz cross-coun-

Mrs. Alice B. Crane Seeking Divorce From a Man She Has Never Lived With.

MILLER, S. D., March 3.—The divorce case of Alice B. Crane vs. Walter Crane, will come up for trial here soon. Mrs. Crane charges that her husband procured her consent to the marriage by drugging her into a state of stupidity; also by using force, and further, that he threatened to kill himself in her presence if she refused an immediate marriage.

The parties are residents of London, Eng., and were married there July 8, 1888. They are contending since their marriage they have never lived together as man and wife. The plaintiff has tried to have the case disposed of by simply advertising the summons in a local newspaper, but Judge Fuller wanted all the parties interested to secure a fair hearing, and so the case will be tried in court openly.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

States and Nations Must Begin Building By May 1.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 3.—District-General Davis and Chief of Construction Burnham, at a conference held yesterday afternoon, decided that States and nations desiring to build buildings on the World's Fair grounds must begin work by May 1.

This action is taken because if completed by the beginning of the fair the work of construction must be commenced soon. Another reason for the step is that if the space assigned to States and foreign nations is not going to be utilized by them, the directors will allot it for other purposes. So far Illinois is the only State to begin construction of its building.

Pennsylvania Insists.
HARRISBURG, Pa., March 3.—At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Pennsylvania World's Fair Commission a resolution was adopted requesting the National Commission from this State to insist on a proper consideration by the National management of the Chicago Exposition of the great natural interest of Pennsylvania, the Fair authorities having refused to permit an exhibit of machinery appliances, etc., in connection with the production of petroleum, and coal and other ores, and natural gas.

New York's Supervisors.
ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—The "Evening Journal" has completed the results on Supervisors in the elections of Tuesday and thus far held throughout interior New York. Thirty-nine counties have chosen new boards. Including Monroe County, except the city of Rochester, and estimating the result in Essex County to be the same as last year, the results are as follows: Republican Supervisors 324; Democratic Supervisors 292. In 1891 the same counties elected 426 Republicans and 352 Democrats.

A Sausage Maker Commits Two Murders.
VIENNA, March 3.—Anton Winner, a sausage maker, being separated from his wife, and destitute of means of support, committed two murders, and killed himself yesterday. It appears that Anton attributed his domestic misfortunes to his wife's sister with whom the wife was living. Anton in vain solicited his wife to return to him. She refused. Anton thereupon drew a revolver and shot his wife fatally. Then Anton pursued the sister, who was trying to escape, and shot her. Then he turned the revolver against himself and committed suicide.

FOR MEN ONLY!

AFTER MANY YEARS

A Mystery Cleared Up by a Dying Confession.

They Had Been Bad Friends for a Long Time—George Confessed on His Deathbed to His Brother-in-Law that He Had Killed William, but that He Had Great Repentance, Which Justified the Act.

LEWIS, N. Y., March 3.—Twenty-seven years ago this month a young man named William R. Thayer was found dead at the roadside near the little North Pennsylvania lumbering village of Somerville.

There was a bullet hole in his temple and a pistol in his hand.

Young Thayer, who was a well-to-do lumberman, was engaged to be married to a Miss James, daughter of a leading citizen of Seftonville, and why he should have committed suicide was something so singular and unaccountable that many of his fellow townsmen scented the idea of suicide and declared their belief that he had been murdered.

He had a brother two years his senior, who had recently come to the village to live, and this brother was strong in the expression of the belief that his relative had been assassinated, and for weeks put forth evident strenuous efforts to discover and bring the murderer to justice. Nothing was developed, however, that gave any clue to the perpetrator of the crime.

The brother, George Thayer, was the only relative the dead man had, and as the latter died without a will George came into possession of his property, which amounted to $12,000. The business was continued by George, who, two years later, married the young woman William Thayer was engaged to. She has been dead ten years, and the five children she bore her husband all died in infancy.

The first week in January last Thayer, who had lived almost entirely alone since the death of his wife, fell sick. He was ill only a week when he died. The night before he died he summoned Sheldon James, his brother-in-law, and the latter was alone with the sick man for some time. What passed between the two was not revealed to any one until one day last week, when, unable, as he declared he was, to bear the burden of the secret longer, he made public the fact that George Thayer had on his deathbed confessed that he was himself the murderer of his brother William.

They never had been friends, he said, and an old quarrel, based on a great injury the brother had done him a few years before, was renewed soon after George Thayer came to Seftonville, and on the fatal night they had met, and during high words that followed he shot William dead. The strangest part of the patriarch's confession was that while he had feared the exposure of his crime he had never felt regret for it. His prevention, he said, was so great that it justified his act. What the provocation was he did not make known.

THE COMPANY CENSURED.

The Coroner's Inquest in the Cox and Welch Case Ended.
SEAFORD, N. Y., March 3.—The inquest in the case of William Cox and John B. Welch, who was killed on the tracks of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, was ended last night. The company was censured for its violation of the State law in not stopping trains before the crossing of the tracks of the I. W. & O. Railroad in this city.

Cox and Welch was killed in a tail-end freight collision at Meslin Springs, near here, Jan. 29. The jury found that Conductor Welch, Brakeman Cox and Martin, on the train that was wrecked, were asleep at the time, and Engineer Smith, of the collision, is censured for not keeping a lookout for trains ahead on the straight track. Five freight cars were totally wrecked in the collision.

will Certainly Be Inflicted.
BOSTON, March 3.—The "Herald" says: "Although the evidence in the Maverick Bank case is not quite all before the District Grand Jury, enough has been submitted to make it a practical certainty that indictments will be found against the three directors of the Maverick Bank, who were arrested the day the institution was closed, on order of the Comptroller of the Currency. The conclusion will be reached without any examination of the famous leather trunk which purports to contain President Asa P. Potter's private papers."

A Conciliatory Lawyer Missing.
MIDDLETOWN, March 3.—On last Thursday Lawyer J. J. Dempsey of this city went to New Britain to defend a resident of that place in a suit, and has not been home since. He expected to return home on an evening train, but it was thought that unexpected developments in the case had detained him. When he failed to return the following evening his relatives became anxious about him. Inquiry in New Britain and other places has failed to reveal the anxiety of his family.

County Judge Appointed.
HARRISBURG, Pa., March 3.—David McMillin, of Lancaster, has been appointed Associate Judge of Lancaster county, in place of Judge Patterson, deceased. Mr. McMillin, who is a Democrat, will serve until next January under his commission.

On Behalf of Quay's Libelers.
BRIDGEVILLE, Pa., March 3.—Petitions were circulated throughout Beaver County yesterday requesting the pardon of Editors Miller and Porter, of the Beaver "Star," who are now undergoing a six months' sentence in the county jail for libeling Quay.
