FREE SILVER WINS

Consideration of the Bill Fixed for March 22.

FILIBUSTERING MOST ALL DAY.

The Vote on Congressman Bland's Bill Was 189 Yeas, 85 Nays.

The Result Was Reached Only After Four Hours of Roll Calls—The Most Exciting Day of the Session—The Invalid Pension Appropriation Bill Passed—Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads Report a Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—When the House assembled yesterday, Mr. Catehings moved, before the reading of the Journal, that the report from the Committee on Rules for the consideration of the Silver bill on March 22, be taken up, which motion the Chair held to be in order. To this, Mr. Tracey (New York), strenuously objected, saying it was an unparalleled decision of the Speaker, that the House should proceed to business without first approving the Journal. He appealed from the decision of the Chair, and after a long wrangle and parliamentary sarcasm between the Speaker, Mr. Reed, of Maine, and Mr. Tracey, the appeal was laid on the table by a yeas and nays vote of 202 to 70.

The anti-silver men, headed by Mr. Williams of Massachusetts and Tracey, consumed most of the day in filibustering against the motion to adopt the report of the Committee, and the final vote did not occur until 5 o'clock, when the resolution was passed—189 to 85—many Eastern Republicans voting with the Democratic silver advocates.

The Invalid Pension Appropriation bill was then passed, and the House adjourned.

In the Senate a bill was reported from the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, to extend the free delivery system to towns of 5,000 inhabitants. Mr. Sawyer, Chairman of that Committee, introduced a postal telegraph bill. The rest of the session was taken up by Mr. Call's personal explanation in regard to the influence brought to bear upon the Florida Legislature to prevent his re-election, and a discussion of the Pure Food bill.

WASHINGTON MURDERER.

The Dead Artist Had Many Friends in Lynn, Mass.

LYNN, Mass., March 8.—Ferneigh L. Montague, the English artist who shot himself and wife at Washington Sunday was a resident of Lynn during the three years preceding the great fire of 1889. He had many friends and patrons here and both moved in the most fashionable circles of the city. They came here from Melbourne, Australia in 1886. Mrs. Montague being the daughter of a prominent government officer in that country.

Mr. Montague was born, reared and educated in London, and on being apprenticed to a barrister, ran away to America. Shortly after a decomposed body was found floating in the Tamesis and buried as his. Twelve years after he learned that legacies that should have come into his possession by right of descent had passed to distant relatives. He was looked upon as dead and failed to prove his identity in the courts. Since then his life has been a continual struggle for existence. He was an able artist and musician.

Judgment Against Gen. Butler.

BOSTON, Mass., March 8.—Judgment for over $16,000 has been awarded the Prescott National Bank of Lowell in its suit against General Benjamin F. Butler, tried in the Superior Court by Judge Bradley. The suit was brought against the General for a note for $16,000, dated June 18, 1888, and made by A. S. Woodworth and Harry H. Hale, payable in four months to General Butler. The note went to protest when due and the General set up the defense that the bank had no title, not having discounted it directly, but through F. R. F. Moseley & Co., brokers and, further, that it was made on Sunday, and was consequently void.

Law and Order Agent Arrested.

PRINCETON, March 8.—Robert McClure, agent of the Law and Order Society, has been arrested charged with perjury. The information was made before Alderman Reddy by James W. Scott, a news-dealer on the South Side. Scott was recently arrested and fined at the instance of McClure, who testified that he had personally purchased a paper from Scott on the Sabbath day. Scott has numerous witnesses to prove the contrary. The penalty for perjury in Pennsylvania is very severe.

It Contained Laudanum.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The chemical analysis made of the suspected wine sent to P. D. Armour's last Friday, shows that it contains laudanum, although not in sufficient quantity to cause serious results. Mr. Armour's friends think somebody was working a scheme to extort money from him. Detectives have been put on the case, and it is thought the man Fitzgerald, who is suspected, will be placed under arrest.

Without His Name from the Bond.

ROSDALE, N. Y., March 8.—Nathaniel Tompkins of Middleburg, Schoharie county, uncle of Mrs. Matthew Trumpbour, who was on defaulting Treasurer Trumpbour's bond, has withdrawn his name. The reason assigned is that the matter would worry his family. Trumpbour will now have to remain in jail until his case is called in Oyster and Terhimer next month.

Went to Work as Non-Union Man.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—All the shoe factories in this city were closed yesterday, the firm having locked the employees out because of the latter's refusal to raise a boycott on some of their number. Later in the day the men decided to go to work as non-union men, and the factories resumed operations.

Comedist Laughs at Her Head.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Treasury Department is informed that Inspector D. G. Armstrong is charged with contract laborers imported into this country by E. Henry & Son of Zealand, N. H., to work in their lumber mills. All the Canadians have been returned within the last 30 days.

Steps Taken to Break Up the Deal by a New York Man.

WILLIAMSBURG, Pa., March 8.—A bill in equity against the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, the Lehigh Coal Company, the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey and the Port Reading Railroad Company was filed by Mathias H. Arnot of Elmira, N. Y., yesterday in the Prothonotary's office of Lycoming county.

The bill sets forth that Mr. Arnot, who is a banker of Elmira, is the owner of 100 shares of stock of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, and also owner of 100 shares of stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. The Reading deal is described, and it is alleged that the plaintiff is of the opinion that the agreement between the Reading Company and the Lehigh Valley Company is ultra vires, and if permitted to stand will work irreparable injury to him, and that the agreement between the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey and the Port Reading Company, so far as it relates to the said Lehigh road, is also ultra vires.

It is, therefore, prayed that the court will declare invalid, void and of no effect the agreement between the roads mentioned, and enjoin the defendants from acting under the agreement.

Superintendent Lawler of the Reading road was served with a copy of the bill in equity yesterday.

THE CZAR'S RETORT.

When He Heard What the German Emperor Had Said.

LONDON, March 8.—A St. Petersburg despatch to the "Standard" relates this story as an echo of Emperor William's famous Brandenburg speech. After the Emperor sat down at the close of his address, a guest said to him jokingly, that he apparently had forgotten that Russia was always behind him. The Emperor retorted: "Ich werde Russland zerstanben." (I will pulverize Russia.)

Shuvaloff upon this remark made close inquiries concerning it and then communicated the details of the scene and the dialogue in question to M. de Giers, who related them to the Czar. At a court reception four or five evenings ago the Czar is said to have addressed Gen. Von Schweinitz rather abruptly with the words: "Tell your Emperor that when he wants to begin pulverizing us we will throw half a million soldiers over his frontier with the greatest pleasure."

Gen. Von Schweinitz has communicated this message it is said to Emperor William.

The story, while doubtless exaggerated, is vouched for by the "Standard" correspondent, as containing a kernel of truth. Rumors of William's sympathy with the Poles has rendered the Czar especially bitter against him lately.

The Auburn Prison Stabbing Affair.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 8.—The particulars in regard to a stabbing affray which occurred in the prison ten days ago have just leaked out. The affair took place at night after the convicts had been locked in their cells. Wade Polard, a negro, made a disturbance in his cell and refused to keep quiet. A keeper was unsuccessful in his efforts to subdue the fractious prisoner and William Reuder, a little man, was called upon for assistance. In the scuffle which ensued Reuder was wounded in the face by Polard. The wound is not dangerous. Reuder was convicted of murder in Utica when his relatives, who are said to be wealthy, reside.

Threatened to Cut Her Throat.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 8.—While Lydia Thomsell, a servant in the house of Mr. Patterson Stewart, was on her way home last night, she was accosted by an unknown white man. The girl tried to run away, but was seized by the man, who drew a dirk knife and threatened to cut her throat, forced her to leave the thoroughfare and enter an alley, where he outraged her. The police are working on the case, but have but a meagre description of the villain.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

Chauncey M. Depew, Financier, Orator and Social Leader.

Due to the Few Men Who Can Combine Pleasure with Business—FIVE SIX Engagements in a Single Evening.

Chauncey M. Depew, writes a New York correspondent, is one of the few famous men of the country who can combine business with pleasure and do lots of both at the same time. Mrs. Depew, who does not care for society as much as her distinguished husband, once told a friend that her better half had taken but one holiday in two years. "That was when he attended only one banquet in a week," she said, in explaining the circumstance, but it was so long ago that it seemed to her more like a family tradition than a fact. People who are acquainted with the restless spirit of the best after-dinner talker in America say that there is not so much extravagance in Mrs. Depew's criticism as there would seem. It is rarely that Mr. Depew ever takes an hour to himself—not that he likes his own companionship less, but because he likes that of congenial spirits amid congenial surroundings more. From the time he leaves his home after breakfast until he goes back at dusk to climb into a dress suit and admonish his wife against waiting up for him—as he may be late, you know, after the manner of men who have told their wives the same thing since before the art of saying witty things on a full stomach was known to history—Mr. Depew is a very busy man and in a strictly business sense, too. His position as president of the New York Central railway, for which he is said to get as much salary as the president of the United States, entails many important duties in itself. Then he is president or director of a number of other railway and industrial enterprises, and has to receive as many people as a government official of high rank. His office at the Grand Central depot is besieged from early morning until Mr. Depew gets tired and slips out of a convenient private door at five in the afternoon, and sends his messenger to say that "Mr. Depew has been summoned away and you will have to come again in the morning."

One recent afternoon, just as the much-wanted gentleman was getting ready to close up his desk and was signing some bonds preliminary to doing so, his private secretary remembered that Mr. Depew had six instead of five engagements for that night. "Indeed," asked Mr. Depew, "what are they?" Mr. Duval, the private secretary, ran over the list. There was the Columbia college dinner at the Brunswick, to be given with an invitation to meet some railway men at dinner at the Windsor; a reception at the house of a friend at which he must look in, the meeting of a committee at the Union League club, a call upon the relative who was ill, and two small political dinners. This array of engagements, each of which were important in a measure, would have prompted most men to send five letters of regret and attend upon the sixth. Mr. Depew did nothing of the sort. He merely inclined his head, thought a minute and wrote upon a slip of paper, which he neatly folded and slipped into his pocket, a list of the places in the order in which he desired to visit them. Then he listened to a request for an advance copy of a speech to be delivered a day or two later, said he wasn't going to make any, and slipping into his overcoat, went home. It was not difficult the next morning to find in the newspapers indisputable evidence of his presence at the places he had set out to visit the night before. On the next day he went over to Philadelphia and made a speech and came back at night in time to hear Marie Tempest sing the "Nightingale" song at the Casino.

Heard Music in Fire Bell.

When Brooke Herford first arrived in Boston he was the guest of Edward Everett Hale. One morning he came downstairs with a look of pleased surprise manifest on his face. "What a pleasing custom you have here," he said, "of chiming the bells at midnight." His host and hostess looked at him in amazement, wondering if he had taken leave of his senses. "Yes," continued the guest, "I got up and leaned out of the window to listen. It was a pretty air they played, although I did not recognize it." "This," said Dr. Hale, telling the story afterward, "was the first time that I ever heard of a fire alarm being taken for a symphony."

Classless Duels.

Italian papers tell of a Neapolitan nobleman who fought fourteen duels during his lifetime in defense of his assertion that Dante was a greater poet than Ariosto. As he lay on his deathbed a short time ago he took pleasure in acknowledging that he had never read the works of either writer.

Germany's Merchant Marine.

The German merchant marine stands next to that of England. In 1893, the latest year for which figures have been published, German vessels made 55,934 voyages, carrying 21,898,023 tons of cargo.

Did you ever count up how much you pay for lamp chimneys? There are about twelve million families of us. We average, maybe, a lamp a family; chimneys break, perhaps, at the rate of one a week a lamp. Six hundred million chimneys a year for the ash barrels.

Suppose they cost ten cents a piece on the average; that's enough to half pay the national debt. Nine-tenths of it waste.

If you get Macbeth's "Pearl-top" or "Pearl-glass" you will pay a trifle more a piece, but not one-tenth as much a year.

Disreputable chimney makers are trying to furnish the dealers with cheap imitations. They break from heat, ruin the temper of the household and fill the ash barrels; a plague and a nuisance.

A Fatal Mistake.

Physicians make no more fatal mistake than when they inform patients that nervous heart troubles come from the stomach and are of little consequence. Dr. Frank M. Miles, the noted Indiana specialist, has proven the contrary in his new book on "Nervous Heart Disease," which he sold for $1.00. It is a book that should be read by every man, woman and child who has any nervous or organic heart disease, short breath, fluttering, pain or tenderness in the side, arm or shoulder, irregular or fainting, smothering, drowsy, etc. His Restorative Nervine cures headache, fits, etc.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. It cures all forms of consumption, whether it be Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, or any other form of Consumption. It is a certain cure, and it is a cure that is permanent. It is a cure that is permanent. It is a cure that is permanent.

Every man must carry his own head, no matter how big it is.

How to Succeed.

This is the great problem of life which few satisfactorily solve. Some fail because of poor health, others want of luck, but the majority from deficient grit—want of nerve. They are nervous, irresolute, changeable, easily get the blues and take the wrong course down to keep the spirits up. They waste money, time, opportunity and nerve force. There is nothing like the Restorative Nervine, discovered by the great specialist, Dr. Miles, to cure all nervous diseases, as headache, the aches, it is nervous prostration, sleeplessness, neuritis, "St. Vitus' dance," fits, and hysteria. Trial bottles and full bottles of testimonials free at C. H. Hagenbuch's drug store.

Oh, What a Cough.

Will you heed the warning? The signal passages of the respiratory tract are the most vulnerable parts of the system. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving a few cents to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles are sold every year. It cures Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers do not be without it. For Lame Back, Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by C. H. Hagenbuch, N. E. corner Main and Third streets.
