To the Hon. DAVID B. HILL, United States

DEAR MR. HILL: Learning from the Dran Ma. HILL: Learning from the early action of the party in New York, as evidenced by its February convention, that you are a conditate for the great office of President, I am moved to ask you for your views publicly on a most important question. I am led to this because I think all the people are en-titled to them, and because having read your public, utterances on the general subject, I am unfortunate enought not to be able to grasp your convictions on your public utterances on the general subject. I am unfortunate enongish not to be able to grasp your convictions on it. At first I supposed this was due to a deficient understanding on my part, but since them I, have consulted with some friends of yours who are members of this House, and I find they are also at sea; one of them telling me you favor the free and un-limited conage of silver at the present ratio. This would give our legal tender dollar an inflated market value of 70 cents. Another tells me you are opposed to free colungs and In line with the re-cent platform of our party in New York, which declares for a dollar worth one hundred cents in gold, by demand-ing that every dollar shall be of equal intrinsic value with every dollar, which, as you know, is an exact definition of an henset Horewentin dollar. as you know, is an exact definition of an honest Democratic dollar.

Under the circumstances, believing you will be glad to put your views briefly, clearly, distinctly, and unmis-takeably before the American people, I ask you whether you favor or oppose the ask you whether you favor or oppose the outrageous measure of class legislation (usually called the "Bland bill"), which is now pending in the House, and which has the hearty support of all the bonance Senators of the silver ring, the lobby, and or Mr. Bland, of Missouri, and it would of an end of a start and it said, of a number of other Democrats.

I know you rviews of this question will have great weight with many able and worthy men, honest gentlemen and sound Denocrats who happen just now to be engaged in worshipping the silver calf. Aside from this, as a prominent candidate for our nomination at Chicago, all Democrats are entitled to your views on this vital question, and I feel I am doing you a service in thus enabling you to express them, and at an hour when such expression will be of great service to the party. The people love a frank, courageous man, and the opportunity to demonstrate that you are all this, is now before you. And in order that your proportions as statesman and citizen may be seen in a way to do you complete justice, I give this letter to the Associated Press and the United Press, trusting I shall have your permission to do the same with your reply. Your friends in the Home assure mir you are a bold, strong, cour-ageous, and above all, a straightforward, ageous, and above all, a straightforward, honest man, and I think I am safe in saying to the American people, who will read this, that at a very early data, they will know precisely, what are the views of one of the leading Democrats of the United States, upon a question so vital to every business and every individual man, woman and child in the Republic, a question which involves the good name and honorable reputation of our great government, and which to day overgovernment, and which to day over-shadows all other issues before the Yours truly, MICHAEL D. HARTER. country.

Shortly after Mr. Hood's departure, a man dressed as a plumber, came into the store and started towards the rear end, remarking to the clerk that he had to do some work. The clerk followed him. As he did so, the siranger who had taken Mr. Hood away returned, and went into the office, but left again al-most immediately. The clerk thought the man had forgotten something, and did not suspect a robbery. The man who represented himself as a plumber also represented himself as a plumber also-took his departure on some pretext. A few minutes later Mr. Hood return-ed. He said the stranger had left him on a street corner, saying that he was going to the bank. Upon learning that the stranger had returned to the office a search of the safe was made and resulted in the discovery that $76 in money had been, stolen. State Department Officiale Gratified at the Present View of Their Claims-

A Suggestion That the Shore Limit Be Fifteen Miles Instead of Three Miles, Which is Now the Recognized Limit of Jurisdiction-The Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs Will Await the Receipt of the Correspondence, Before Any Further Action is Taken.

WASHINGTON, March 10. - With the transmission of the recent correspondence on Behring Sea matters to Congress, and the publication of the treaty of arbitration yesterday, there is nothing now to do but wait for Lord Salisbury's reply to the note sent by President Harrison. It is awaited with considerable interest, not to say anxiety, and it is hoped that the document may be received in time for consideration at the Cabinet meeting to morrow.

The emphatic note of Minister Phelps to Secretary Bayard, which accompanied the correspondence yesterday, is con-sidered by the officials of the State Department as a most gratifying support partment as a most gratifying support of their claims, especially as it comes from one of the opposite political fails, and representing a different administra-tion. A suggestion was made that the President in enforcing protection, adopt a shore limit on the North Partice coast of fifteen miles, instead of three miles, which is non the protection. which is now the universally recognized limit of jurisdiction. This suggestion is based upon the principle that a country based upon the principle that a country may hold jurisdiction of so much of the surgounding ocean as it can defend. In earliest times, the helt was meas-ured by the distance to which an arrow could be shot, and last of all by the dis-tance which a cannon could propel a shot—then three miles. Now, inasmuch as the new guins will carry a projectile lifteen miles, it is argued that the belt of jurisdiction should be extended to meet the changed conditions. But it is meet the changed conditions. But it is not probable that the President will initiate any such innovation upon the established order of things. It will doubtless be found that the United States (1) is upon its claim of jurisdic tion many Petring Sea and go before upon that, uncomprothe aridh mised by a area of ocean not recognized by the pow ers of the world.

Discussed by the Foreign Affairs Committee-No Action Taken.

WASHINGTON, March 10 .- The Behr ing Sea arbitration treaty sent to the Senate yesterday by the President and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs was discussed by the Committee, but no ac tion was taken.

There was a general agreement that it would be well to wait the receipt of cor respondence in the matter before deciding what it should recommend. explained that the correspondence might contain some telegrams or other communications received as late as yester-day which would throw new light on the matter and decide the disposition of the treaty by the Senate. From the expressions of opinion at the meeting, it was apparent that an almost general belief existed that if England re-fused to a removal of the modus vivendi during the pending of the arbitration proceedings the Senate would refuse to
