JOHN L. TO RETIRE

But He Will Fight One More Battle.

FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED.

Willing to Fight in New Orleans, But Insists on Dictating His Own Terms.

Says He Will Not Allow Any Set of Horseshoers to Draw Up Articles for Him—Has Received No Word from the New Orleans Olympic Club—He Will Remain on the Stage Two Years Longer.

CHICAGO, March 14.—John L. Sullivan has issued another ultimatum. After his next fight for the championship he will retire from the roped arena, in which he has enjoyed an unbroken reign of ten years, and devote all of his time to the stage, with which he appears to be infatuated.

"I mean business," said Sullivan, "and my ultimatum, first come, first served, will be strictly lived up to. Corbett has posted $1,000 of the $2,500, and I give him till next Wednesday to post the remaining $1,500. My $2,500 is already up. If Mitchell really wants to fight, as he loudly proclaims, he has a chance to get in ahead of Corbett, whose forfeit is only partly up. Let him post his $2,500, as the conditions imposed by me require, at once, and I will be bound to give him the preference.

"I am willing to fight before the Olympic Club, but I am Sullivan"—and here the champion smote his brawny chest with his hand—"the champion of the world, and I will not allow any set of horseshoers to draw up my articles for me. As champion, I have the power to dictate my own terms, and no man nor set of men can alter my purpose. Of course, if the Olympic Club's articles suit me I will sign and stand by them, but no one outside of Johnson, who is my backer and knows exactly what I want, and myself, has any power to say I shall do this or that. And that reminds me that the stories printed in the papers to the effect that President Noel had forwarded articles for my approval are not true. At least I have not received them, nor have I been officially notified that they have been forwarded.

"This will be my last fight. After it is settled I will retire from the ring. I am meeting with a share of success in my new business and am satisfied to remain where I am for two years or so, when I will retire from the stage and settle down."

ENGLAND AT THE FAIR.

Her Appropriation is Smaller Than Less Important Countries.

LONDON, March, 14.—The "St. James's Gazette," referring to the meeting held at the Mansion House, at which Lord Mayor Evans presided, to promote English interest in the Chicago Columbian Exhibition, says that Englishmen with a national conscience will feel a touch of shame at the announcement that the World's Fair is receiving cordial support from all parts of the world, when the english grants amount to only £25,000, which is a smaller sum than other less important countries have appropriated to provide a proper representation. It is not pleasant to think that England will have only a comparatively poor show.

Drawing the Colored Line.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—The School Board Saturday night adopted a resolution calling on the principals of all public schools to notify children of colored extraction in white schools to leave them at once, otherwise they would be expelled. The Board gave no reasons for passing the resolution. The city is well provided with schools, both public and private, for the education of colored youth, and the resolution is aimed to exclude those children in whom the taint is so slight that they sometimes pass for whites.

She was walking along a lonely road with a young man named Nick Veneman when they met the tramp. Veneman did not try to protect her, and when she resisted the tramp caught up a stone, struck her on the head with it and ran away. Veneman was arrested.

An Old Debt Nullified.

GALENA, Ill., March 14.—The statute of limitations has nullified a debt of $7,200 with interest for 20 years, and taxpayers are jubilant. In 1872 G. H. Abbott of Philadelphia, who held the bonds of the city for that amount, secured judgement in the United States Courts. On one pretext or another the tax levy to realize the amount has been postponed until now, when the statute of limitations has intervened.

Floating Elevator Burned.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The floating grain elevator America caught fire at her pier last night and in a moment was enveloped in flames from stem to stern. She was cut loose from the pier and towed out into the river, where she drifted with the tide until just off the Battery, where she sank. WASHINGTON LIFE.

A One-Time Mayor and an Army General in Reduced Circumstances.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The dull routine of Washington official life is often followed by some amusing incident, which, for the moment, drives away care and toil. Again, some pathetic scene is enacted which stirs all the gentler feelings of those who witness it. An occurrence of the latter kind happened some days since in the Treasury Department.

Secretary Blaine was walking through the building when he saw a familiar figure engaged in performing the services of a messenger. He could scarcely credit the evidence of his own senses at first, but when he was convinced he went up to the man and, in his brisk peremptory way, when deeply interested in a subject, said: "Why, Mr. Bowen, you mustn't be doing this kind of work. I can't allow it. I'll find something better for you."

The gentlemad to whom he spoke was Mr. Sayles J. Bowen, at one time mayor of Washington, at another its postmaster and for years one of its most prominent citizens. His experience had been one which is common, and so far as known contained no extraordinary features. Mr. Blaine was as good as his word and found Mr. Bowen a congenial place in the State Department.

It is not generally known that Major-General Alfred Pleasanton, one of the most distinguished cavalry leaders during the war, is spending the last years of his life in a small room of a poor hotel in this city. But such is the fact. He is not in want, but suffers greatly from disease and cannot wear his clothes. He declines to see anyone but his old colored nurse and his physician. It is said that he is greatly emaciated and that those who knew the dashing fighter in the days of the Rebellion would not recognize him in the figure now cooped up in a small room here in Washington.

BENEFIT OFFICERS INDICTED.

Alleged Embezzlement of the Order of Rising Sun Funds.

BOSTON, March 14.—The Suffolk County grand jury to-day reported indictments against William Hamilton, Isaac W. Cammons, Charles A. Barney, James Morrison and James A. Fraser for the alleged embezzlement of $50,000 of the funds of the Order of the Rising Sun. There is one count for receiving stolen goods and another for being accessories before and after an alleged embezzlement.

Another important indictment is one for alleged larceny and embezzlement of $15,000 by Alvan L. Greenwood, ex-treasurer of the Mutual One-Year Benefit Order. Greenwood failed to respond and was defaulted.

The Scudder Murder Case.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Frank Parker, a brother of Mrs. Dunston, alleged to have been murdered by Dr. Scudder, who has just returned from Janesville says that the autopsy of the body of Mrs. Dunston reveals unmistakable evidences of foul play. He adds: "Had Scudder been in Janesville last week there would need be no trial, as the citizens there were thoroughly aroused regarding the case. The wounds on my dead sister's head are thought to have been made with a gas-pipe."

Grand Duke Ludwig Dead.

DARMSTADT, March 14.—Grand Duke Ludwing IV. died yesterday morning. He was unconscious throughout the preceding part of the night. Three of his daughters and Prince Ernst Ludwig, his heir, were at his bedside at the time of his death. The city is in mourning. In the English quarter, where the Grand Duke was especially popular, many houses are draped.

TRAMP IN THE OVEN

The Reception a Knight of the Road Got in Jersey.

A FARMER'S WIFE JAILED HIM.

But the Oven Did Not Prove to be Strong Enough to Hold Him.

While the Woman Was Away Alarming the Neighbors the Tramp Kicked the Back Out of His Prison and Made Good His Escape—He Wanted What Money There Was in the House, but Did Not Get Anything.

DECKERTOWN, N. J., March 14.—Mrs. Sarah Baker, wife of a farmer in Wantage Township, had an experience with a tramp the other day. Mrs. Baker is a small woman, but strong and plucky. She was all alone at the time, her husband being away on business. Her eyes had troubled her for several weeks, and she was wearing a pair of green glasses. She was sitting in the dining room early in the afternoon and had fallen into a doze.

Suddenly the door opened and a tramp entered. He wasn't very large, but he had an ugly look and carried a club. He did not see Mrs. Baker at first, and she kept very quiet. Finally she exclaimed: "Who is there?"

The tramp looked around and at once made up his mind that the woman was blind. That is just what she wanted him to believe, for she had already formed a plan of action.

"I want something to eat and I want it quick, see?" said the tramp.

"No, I don't see," said Mrs. Baker, "but I hear very well, and I guess you are a thief come to rob the house."

"Never mind what you guess. You hustle and get me some grub. I hain't had anything to eat since yesterday morning."

Mrs. Baker got up and pretended to stumble around in search of food. She found some bread and butter and some cold pork, and put them on the table. Then she fumbled around until she found the chair and sat down again. The vagabond ate everything up, and then shouted:

"Now I want what money you have in the house."

"Haven't any money," replied Mrs. Baker.

"You're a liar," yelled the impolite visitor, "and if you don't tell me where it is I will cut your heart out."

The little woman was badly frightened, but stuck to her story that she had no money until the tramp grabbed her by the hair and threatened to cut her throat. Then she apparently weakened and said that the money was hidden where she couldn't get at it.

"Where is it?" asked the tramp.

"In the big oven," was the reply, and, without turning her head, Mrs. Baker pointed toward the kitchen. The man went in the kitchen and looked into the old oven. There was no fire in it and it seemed empty. Then he came back and, taking her by the throat, said that she was lying and that he would kill her. She cried and begged him to spare her life and, amid her sobs, informed him that the money was in a wad behind a loose brick at the rear of the oven.

She looked so innocent and truthful that the man believed her and went back into the kitchen. Mrs. Baker waited until she heard him crawling into the big oven. Then she ran into the kitchen, and, grabbing the tea-kettle from the stove, poured the boiling water on his legs. He yelled with pain, and involuntarily drew his legs inside the oven. The woman at once shut the oven door and fastened it by putting a knife through the latch.

Then she slipped on her bonnet and ran down the road for a mile until she reached a blacksmith's shop. There were three men in the shop and, after resting a minute, she managed to tell them what had occurred. They grabbed some hickory spokes and all hurried back with her. They were rather timid when they first entered the kitchen, but regained their courage when they saw that the oven door was still securely fastened.

They decided that Mrs. Baker should open the door and that they should grab the tramp and take him to the justice of the peace at Wantage. When Mrs. Baker opened the oven door she gave a cry of astonishment. As she looked in she saw clear across the kitchen garden and out into the orchard. The tramp had kicked the entire back out of the old oven and escaped.

Death of a Noted Express Man.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—George W. Knox, the founder of Knox's Express and a prominent citizen of Washington, died here yesterday afternoon in the 63d year of his age. Mr. Knox was at one time engaged in railroading, and as conductor in 1863 he had charge of the train that President Lincoln made his hazardous trip from Philadelphia to the Capitol before taking the oath of office. In physique Mr. Knox bore a striking resemblance to President Lincoln, and was selected as the model for Vinnie Reams statue of Lincoln which stands in the Capitol.

Damaged by Fire.

READING, March 14.—The wholesale grocery of Kurtz & Mayers, who occupy part of the first floor under the Academy of Music building, was damaged by fire and water yesterday to the extent of $12,000; fully insured. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the crossing of electric light wires. The Academy of Music and other apartments escaped with slight loss.

Dynamite in the Mail Bag.

DUBLIN, March 14.—A large package of dynamite was found in the mail bag from Limerick to Tipperary. It was intended evidently to wreck the express, and there was enough of the explosive to dash the whole train to pieces. A farmer's son named Harrigan, living near Limerick, has been arrested, but he protests his innocence.

Warden Brown's Orders.

SING SING, N. Y., March 14.—Warden Brown of Sing Sing prison has caused dissatisfaction among the keepers and guards of that institution by issuing orders to the effect that no one connected with the prison shall hereafter be allowed to enter a saloon or any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold.
