Last Day.

People who have not visited the World's Museum should not fail to do so to-day, as the engagement closes with the close of the exhibition this evening. The museum has been thronged with people every afternoon and evening this week and all who have visited it have been well pleased. It is certainly the best show of the kind that has been in town for some time. All the attractions are of a novel and pleasing character. The gate receipts amounted to $178 and the admission fee was fifty cents, so at that rate over three hundred and fifty men got into the place before the doors were locked. The hundred or more men on the outside then tore out the side of the stable and forced themselves near the pit. Some of them scrambled into the hay loft and caused the hayseed to fail upon the spectators below. One of the victims drew a revolver and fired a shot into the hay loft, but no one was hit. A spectator leaning on the edge of the pit heard a man behind him make an unpleasant remark and forthwith punched the individual over the eye. Both men then pulled off their coats and fought a round or two in the cock pit. They were finally persuaded to give way to the "chickens." It is said that the money wagered on the battles amounted to about $1,000.
