THE joint committee has dickered long enough on the water question to know what the proposed works will cost. Let them act fair with the people and give the figures.

A GENTLEMAN who is well acquainted with the resources of the streams in the Catawissa Valley says that in the dry season the borough would only be able to secure water enough for six inch pipes and even in the wet season only ten inch pipes will be supplied.

THE argument that the town will eventually be controlled by the Polish and Huugarian people and the burden of looking after the debt for the new water works will fall upon them is in genuous.

ORIGINALLY $75,000 was to have covered the cost of everything in connection with the proposed water works. Now $95,000 is asked for. The question now arises, how much will be required to finish the works and put them in operation ?

THE joint committee should let the people know what the cost of the proposed public water works will be and crease the borough debt under any other circumstances.

IF the joint committee and certain members of Council had exercised inworks would have been voted upon at the last spring election and the borough would have been saved the heavy expense that a special election entails.

COLONISTS OF GREENLAND. It Is Believed Lieut. Feary May Have Found Their Descendants.

"There is good reason to believe, judging from the contents of papers transmitted privately to my hands some months ago-although I have never spoken of the matter hitherto-that Liout Peary, in whose behalf a rescu ing expedition is about to start for the Arctic, has actually met with the famous lost colonists of Greenland."

So said one of the most distinguished ethnologists in the government employ at Washington. He added: "You may

AND THEY SPOKE OUT HON-ESTLY WHAT THEY Believed-Some Most Remarkable Words from the Lips of Leading Professional Gentlemen in Europe and America.

Dr. Radcliff was the most celebrated physician of England in Queen Anne's time. He amassed a large fortune, and was for many years the physician to the Queen, as well as to most of the English nobility. For some reason the Queen took a dislike as court physician. In her last illness, however, she sent for him. He refused to obey the summons, declaring: "Since her Majesty's case is so desperate and her distemper incurable, I hardly think it proper to give her any disturbance in her last moments, so near at hand, but rather let her die as easily as possible." Dr. Badeliff observed a short time before his death : "When I was young and yet unskilled in medicine I possessed at least twenty remedies for every disease, but since I have grown old in the art of healing I know more than twenty diseases for which I have not even a single remedy." The late Dr. Holland, who was an educated physician, some years before he died wrote in Scribner's Monthly: he died wrote in Scripher's Monthly: "It is a fact that many of the best pro-prietary medicines of the day are more successful than many physicians, and most of them have been discovered or most of them have been discovered of used in ac u.d. medical practice. When, however, any shrewd person, knowing their virtue and foresseing their popularity, secures and adver-tises them, in the opinion of the big-oted all virtue goes out of them."

Dr. William Robeson of the Royal Navy of England wrote to a London newspaper called the Family Doctor as follows: "Having had more than seventeen years' experience in my profession, I can conscientiously and emphatically state that I have been able to give more relief and effect more cures by the use of Warner's Safe Core than all other medicines ascertainable to the profession." The late Dr. Dio Lewis, who seldom give some assurance that the $95,000 asked for will cover the cost. It would be foolish for the perple to invery reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that it is one of these bappy discoveries which occasionally bring aid to suffering humanity." Dr. R. A. Gunn, dean of the United States Medical College and Editor of members of Council had exercised in-telligence the question of increasing the borough debt for public water works would have been voted upon at medica, and the combination is such as to insure the best possible action on the kidneys and urinary organs." Dr. Andrew Wilson, F. R. S., editor of Health, in replying through his paper to a correspondent who had paper to a correspondent who had written him regarding Warner's Safe Cure, said: "Warner's Safe Cure is perfectly safe and perfectly reliable." These are physicians so skilled, so independent, so honest, so true to the conscientious teachings of their noble perfection that they dare tail thest rath profession, that they dare tell the truth to kings or queens or the whole world. All honor to them.

SMALL ECONOMY. THE

The Mania For Saving Something That Af-fects Almost Everybody.

It is a fact that almost every man and woman is "saving" of something to the He carried them around in a chamois 570.87. very verge of parsimony Economy takes queer freaks. Your generous, free-handed, hospitable mother may be positively mean in her saving of pins. Or your father may be ready at any time to burn his fingers in an ineffectual attempt to use a match a second time, instead of taking a whole one. We once knew a man of wealth and position, who dressed well, kept a carriage and sent his sons to an expensive college, but who invariably opened his letters with great care in order that he might turn the envelopes inside out and use them again. Since this trait is almost universal although its manifestation is so various, every one should endeavor to give it the right direction, both in himself and in any young people under his charge. For sometimes the form which one's economy takes causes not only amuse ment to others, but a distinct loss to himself.

A GAMBLER'S DIAMONDS.

"I have had some peculiar enstomers," said an old Broadway joweler recently; "but there was one case which I believe no one can duplicate. I have a large patronage from the men about town the gamblers and the racing people They are very liberal buyers of jewelry when fortune favors them and they se lect first class goods, and in most in-stances appear to be excellent judges of quality.

"The individual of whom I was about to tell you is a man who first came to my store about four years ago. He was a very shabby looking young fellow, whom I watched cautiously when I passed him a pair of cheap solitaire car rings in compliance with his request. He hardly glanced at them, and asked something better, and I took the to him at one time and dismissed him first pair and brought out a pair that a pourt physician. In her last illness, were a shade higher in price. These he pushed aside also and asked for finer goods, until I had shown him everything in my stock except a pair of earrings worth nine hundred dollars. which I did not care to permit him to hamile.

"I was a little out of patience with the fellow, and pointing to the ear rings in the showcase I told him the price, and he immediatly asked to se them. Thinking that he might make an effort to grab them and run away. lifted them from their velvet case an walked around the counter, holding them up to the light as if my change o position was actuated by a desire to show the stones to the best advantage "He examined both stones very close ly and almost took away my breath when he said he would take them, and at the same time pulled out a large roll after I had wrapped the earrings he bade me good night and hurried away. I was nonplussed. The man was a mys tery to me, and I often thought of him, until one night about a month later when he came again.

"He wore a shiny silk hat and his shabby clothing had been replaced by neat, but very expensive garments. He saw that I recognized him, and after a few words about the weather drew from his pocket the earrings I had sold him, and said that his wife disliked the settings and that he desired new ones. I showed him several other styles and he soon selected one. "Then he told me that he had expected a large amount of money, but had been disappointed, and finally in a very frank, business-like manner asked me if I would lend him five hundred dollars until the earrings would be reset. It looked a little like pawnbroking, but 1 believed that the man was in close quarters financially, and after critically examining the stones to see that they had not been changed I gave him the

"At the time when I had told him the carrings would be ready he came, paid me the amount borrowed and twenty dollars for the settings, but insisted that no allowance should be allowed for the old settings. He thanked me for the favor and went away.

"A week later he came again for new settings and five hundred dollar loan, and he continued baving those stones reset at irregular intervals nearly four years, each time asking for the money and always paying it at the time appointed for the delivery of the earrings "During our long acquaintance I learned that he was an inveterate gambler who played high stakes, and that the diamond earrings had originally been bought as a nest egg for days when luck was against him. He feared that a pawnbroker might change the stones, so instead of raising money on the earrings in the usual way he adopted the novel scheme in which he involved remember that the Norsemen established settlements during early times in Greenland. One off these colonies was entirely cut of from civilization and lost, as is recorded in the sagas and other traditional histories of those people. Winters grew colder, and one precedentedly severe season following another, the little gathering of squatters in that icy region was abut away from the rest of mankind by frozen fields along the shore and the heaping up of mighty ice cliffs, through which there was no passage and over which it was impossible to alimb.

"That was six hundred years ago. Since then expedition after expedition has sought these lost settlers in vain. Owing to geographical indefiniteness in the original accounts written on the subject not even the locality occupied by the colony could be very nearly ascertained. I am not at liberty just now to say more than that Lieut. Peary has apparently discovered the descendants of these vanished Norsemen, somewhat less than two hundred in number, dwelling in a sort of icebound oasis without either entrance or exit, as they themselves have so many generations believed. To all intents and purposes they are so many Rip Van Winkles. Peary is now at Whale sound. Next summer he will strike northward, with the intention to determine the coast line as far as it extends. If the land extends as far as the pole he may attain that long-sought goal."

A ruche of rich satin ribbon about three inches wide, shirred through the center and forming thus a double frill, or one thickly plaited, is set on the edge of dress skirts as a finish in place of the long-popular feather and fur bands. The ribbon ruche is much lighter than the double silk or fringed ruche and it requires no hemming or other finish.
