USTICE of the First ward, J.J. Monaghan, had a peculiar case before him last night. A. case showing a wife's perfidy and a brother's treachery. About two few days ago he returned to town unexpectedly and found his wife nursing a baby resulted from the gangrene and the amputwo weeks old. Rice demanded an explanation, but his wife was silent. The husband abided his time and learned that his disease. Mrs. Brandt was 39 years of age brother was living with the faithless wife, having deserted his own wife,

Rice and his sister-in-law held a consultation and they decided to visit the house occupied by the faithless couple. They did so and bombarded the house. Windows were smashed and doors were damaged. The brother and his mistress appealed to the law, and Rice and his sister-in-law were arrested on charges of assault and battery and disorderly conduct.

Rice had counter warrants issued against his wife and brother, charging them with adultery and keeping a bawdy house. Mrs. Rice admitted that her brother-in-law was the father of the infant child and set up in justification for keeping a bawdy house that she was obliged to seek a means of support.

'Squire Monaghan placed the woman and her paramour under $300 bail for trial. The woman and child went to jail.

DIED AFTER AMPUTATION.

Mrs. Jucob Brandt Submits to a Severe Operation and Does not Survive.

The Wilkes-Barre Record of Monday says Mrs. Celia, wife of Jacob Brandt, whose husband is proprietor of the tobacco store on South Main street, near Public Square, died Sunday morning after the amputation of one of her legs shove the knee. Some time ago a very small sore, not much larger than pin's head, appeared on the foot near the sole and no at-tention was paid to it. It kept on increasing and getting more painful and the family became alarmed and summoned physicians, who saw that something must be done or blood-poisoning, and probably death, would result. They advised amputation as the best course to take. This alternative seemed so hard that Mr. Brandt determined to call on still another physician and surgeon, one from New York and he at once agreed with the physicians of Wilkes-Barre. On Saturday the leg was taken off considerably above the knee and years ago one Louis the sufferer bore up under the shock right Rice left town to seek bravely. But it was too severe, the disease work in the west. A too far advanced, and Sunday morning at 6 o'clock she died. Blood poisoning had tation, although a last resort, probably would not have stayed the progress of the and was a sister of Max Reese, of town, who attended the funeral at that place yesterday.
