A WAR SHIP GOES DOWN

The Brazilian Cruiser Solimoes Lost With 123 Men.

FIVE SAVED FROM THE WRECK.

The Vessel Struck a Rock Off the Coast of Uruguay—An Immense Hole Stove in Her Side—Marines and Sailors Drowned Like Rats.

MONTVIDEO (via Galveston, Tex.), May 23.—A fearful disaster has overtaken the Brazilian war ship Solimoes, off this coast. She was dispatched from Rio Janeiro some days since to act as convoy to the flotilla which carried troops to aid in quelling the rebellion in the Brazilian State of Mato Grosso.

The crew of the war ship numbered 137 men. As she was fitted out for active service it is probable that she did not carry any small boats. Owing to the dangerous nature of the low and sandy Uruguayan sea coast she had a pilot aboard.

Just as the Solimoes was off Polono Island, near Point Oegra Castillos, she struck a rock violently bows on. The sea was very rough at the time. All the crew were under hatches, except four sailors and the pilot. Two of the sailors acted as lookouts; the other two were at the wheel.

The scene of the disaster—Polono Island—in the north of Cape Santa Maria, which is near the mouth of the Rio de la Plata. The Solimoes was a two masted monitor, built of iron in England and launched in 1875. Her displacement was 4,700 tons. She had a double bottom, but there were few watertight compartments below the water line, and when the hole was knocked in her hull she went down like a cracked iron pot.

The unfortunate men did not even get a chance to gain the deck. They were drowned like rats in a hole. As the water poured in the victims seemed instantly to recognize their danger, and made a frantic but unavailing effort to dash open the hatches. Their cries were heartrending.

TO WITHDRAW BROTHERHOOD MEN. Train Hands of the Cambria Iron Company Will be Ordered Out. JONKEROWS, Pa., May 23.—E. P. Sargent, Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and President of the Supreme Councils of the United Order of Railway Employes, and P. H. Morrissey, Vice-Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, have carefully examined the grievances which the trainmen in the employ of the Cambria Iron Company presented to General Manager Price.

While this action will not result in any stoppage of the works, it will prevent many of the best trainmen in the country from accepting employment with the company.

"Sympathy" Strikers Paid By the Union. NEW YORK, May 23.—The pavers and ramblers, who went out in sympathy with the locked out granite cutters, were each paid a full Union week's wages Saturday. The Granite Cutters' National Union has guaranteed the payment of $50,000 toward the strike expenses of the pavers and ramblers.

The Florida Train Robbery. SANFORD, Fla., May 23.—People in this neighborhood are still greatly excited over the attempted robbery by four masked men of an express train on the Jacksonville, Tampa & Key West Railroad, a few miles from here, early Saturday morning, during which the express messenger was killed and his assistant seriously wounded.

Had Been Unsafe for a Year. PRESSBURG, May 23.—Contractor Scanlon, who had charge of the work on the First Methodist Protestant Church, the roof of which fell Saturday, probably fatally injuring two laborers and seriously injuring several others, says all of the beams seemed very tough oak outwardly, but were apparently rotten inside the core, and the roof of the church might have fallen in at any time during the last year.

Grant Monument Fund Nearly Completed. NEW YORK, May 23.—General Horace Porter, President of the Grant Monument Association, announces that there remains only $40,000 to be subscribed to complete the $250,000 required for building General Grant's tomb. He appeals to the people of New York to subscribe this sum before Decoration Day.

IN WOMAN'S BEHALF.

A WOMAN'S WORK.

Only the work of today; What of its triumphs and sorrows? Does it not pass over our heads? (Give it a zeal for to-morrow) Where have I broken the thread? What have I left still unattended? True work never was said, "Woman's work never is ended."

Only the work of to-day; Soothing the heart that is broken, Speeding love's message to say, Leaving the evil unspoken, And when the curtains are drawn Over the innocent sleeping, Some one must linger till dawn, Watch for the prodigal keeping.

Only the work of to-day; No one hath guessed half its meaning; None knows the secret, but may May be blessed at the evening, No one hath stayed for her fears, No one hath a helping hand leaped; Only the sover path tears, Over her lonely toll benedict.

Only the work of to-day; Labor but finite and human; Only the task of to-day, Tell me what hath will portray— Upon what infinite pages— Only the work of to-day, At the twilight of ages! —Frank W. Hunt, in Union Signal.

AFTER SCHOOL—WHAT?

How Thousands of Young Women Have Their Ambitions Chained. We have a recollection of having met this query in print before, but as it expresses our own present anxiety, have no hesitation in appropriating it.

Our sympathies are called into fullest action by the struggles and discouragements in the path of a certain young woman of our acquaintance. As her case is that of thousands, we will cite it as a text for a very short sermon.

Sara Bartlett's parents are active, energetic, hard-working, ambitious people, whose aims to make money and achieve a certain prominence in their village have been more than usually successful. The mother had some native refinement, but the narrowness of her life and the society of a coarse and vulgar husband have not developed her best qualities.

Sara has inherited the best of both parents, and the education their efforts have enabled her to gain has developed mental faculties to a degree far beyond that of the most of even bright or fortunate young women. Her ambition and that of her parents have led her to seek the society of people above their own social position, and her talents and accomplishments have enabled her to do it successfully.

This satisfies the parents, but not Sara. Ambition, the ruling passion of her parents, is hers also, but its ideals are higher. Her mental vision is as far-sighted as theirs is short. From the height she has already reached, she sees other and greater heights, and she longs to scale them. Her vigorous young nature pants for the efforts it is so able to make.

What can poor Sara do? She is twenty-five years old. The men whom she might marry if left to herself, avoid her, because they would not wish to be associated with her relatives. The men to whom this association would not be objectionable, and whom her parents would not refuse, are not acceptable to the daughter. She is like a bird chained by the foot. The chain is long—for a chain—and she is allowed to take short flights in any direction; but at a certain limit the chain is felt, the flight is checked, and weary, chafed and dejected, the poor bird returns to earth.

What shall be done for the girls thus chained? Much has been said of the selfishness and ingratitude of children who abandon or neglect in their old age the parents who by dint of greatest sacrifices have enabled them to soar far above the parental nest.

WOMEN AS ORATORS. It is Chiefly the Lack of Voice That Handicaps Their Success. It is not everybody who has yet grown up the idea that the female orator is an essential part of the social fabric, and yet we have her suddenly with us and taking the prizes away from the sex that has hitherto enjoyed a practical monopoly of the oratorical arts and grades. It is not worth woman's to question the propriety of woman's appearance on the platform. As a matter of fact she appeared there some time ago, but as a speaker, hardly as an orator, in the proper sense. It has been several years now since the sight of a woman as a public speaker created even a ripple of emotion.

If, however, woman will address her fellow citizens from the stage or the stump, it is better that she should do it acceptably. Even the most ardent friends of advanced woman—those who have kept her in sight in her rapid progress toward "emancipation"—are obliged to confess to a frequent wish that she would not when she essays to electrify the multitude.

DEEMING'S GRAVEN END

He Collapses Completely When the Noose is Adjusted.

HIS DEATH WITHOUT A STRUGGLE.

Utterly Broken Down in His Last Hours—His Conduct a Complete Surprise to All—Doubt as to the Truthfulness of His Autobiography—History of His Crimes.

MELBOURNE, May 23.—Frederick Bayley Deeming was hanged one minute after 10 o'clock this morning. Seventy reporters and physicians gathered in the prison yard to witness the execution, and in front of the outside wall thousands upon thousands waited from 6 o'clock this morning to watch the black flag and wait for the signal that all was over.

When Deeming was led into the yard and up to the gallows, everybody was surprised to see that he was not chained as had been expected. He walked unsteadily between the guards and several times tottered as if about to fall. His face was ashen and he shook like a man with the palsy.

He seemed to be stupified by his approaching death. When his arms were pinned he wavered, and would have fallen had he not been caught by the warder. At first he shook his head when his last opportunity to speak was given him.

"Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." He tried to say more and stood with his mouth half open, but no words came. As the noose was adjusted his knees knocked together, and he would have collapsed had he not been supported until he was swung into mid-air.

While preparations were making to take him out to the scaffold he became a pitiable figure. He cringed and cowered in a corner of his cell, first taking down his bible and then throwing it from him, muttering to himself and then speaking loudly and incoherently to the chaplain. When this was stopped his mind apparently sunk into a stupor.

Frederick Bayley Deeming was one of the most versatile and bloodthirsty wretches in the history of the world's crime. That part of his career which led immediately to his arrest, trial and death at Melbourne began in Ralshill, a suburb of Liverpool, on July 21, 1891.

He rented Dinham Villa, on the outskirts of the village, during his courtship, and there he received a woman and four young children, who disappeared shortly before his marriage to Miss Mather. After the wedding on September 23 he and his wife took a short wedding journey, and on October 17 they sailed for Australia.

They found under the floors, which Deeming himself had cemented, the bodies of the woman and children. The woman was his wife, one James, whom he had married in England in 1881, and the children were his own.
