PALSE THEORIES.

The theory that if the public water works are established the people of the town will have no water rent to pay, is as idiotic as the many other theories some of the enthusiasts harbor. There must be a revenue from the works to pay off the bonds and that revenue must come either by an assessment on the people in the form of water rent, or an assessment by means of taxation. The theory that even should there be an assessment it would fall upon the shoulders of the property owners, and not upon the workingmen is equally feelish. Who pays the water rent to-day? Is it not apparent to all that the reason why the workingmen are paying $6.50, $7,50, $8.50, $9,50 and $10,50 per month rent for their homes is that the "50" goes to pay the water rent? Let the workingmen beware of the false theories. If the property owners are to be assessed for the new water works the increase will come out of the pockets of the toilers-the rent payers. Beware of false prophets.

THE monthly report of the Reading railroad for April, shows a very encouraging outlook. Receipts have increased in much larger proportion than have the expenses, and the reports from the leased lines are most encouraging. No detailed figures are given, but it is stated in a circular that sprinkle blossoms on their comrades' the operations of the Central railroad resting places. They made the same willing sacrifices as those gone, but live of New Jersey, if maintained at the same ratio, will be sufficient to pay the Their number is few, less than when interest guaranteed by the Reading Company, and give the Reading from $300,000 to $500,000 profit per annum. "It is fully expected," the circular continues, "that the showing of the Lehigh Valley will be as good, if not better, than the Jersey Central's."

CHICAGO anarchists must be more thoroughly disgusted with law than ever. They appealed to the law which they profess to despise for the return of the red flags which the police recently confliscated, but a jury has decided that the police were perfectly justified in seizing an emblem which was a menace to law and order. The unhappy Anarchists have tried force with the police of Chicago and now the law. As both have signally failed, perhaps they had better emigrate to some more hospitable country like Central Africa, where anarchy is the only rule.

Do THE people of the United States favor a party and policy that extend American markets abroad, or are they prepared to restore to power a combination of tariff destructionists bent on breaking down the bulwark which protects American labor and the great home market of domestic producers and manufacturers?

As a "pork"-packing center the Fifty-second Congress bids fair to outclass Chicago.

THE NEGLECTED GRAVE.

One evening, after Deceration day, I lingered when the rest had gone away, And sadly errolled among the graves alone, With fresh-cut flowers by loving hands be

How many thoughts within my heart awoke Of keenest memories the roses spoke, The lilles breathed of peace and joy above, And every tiny blassom whispered: "Love."

Then suddenly I felt around me there The presence of the dead, benigm and fair, And in my heart the glad conviction grees That all our earthly love they saw and knew.

I turned away to quit the holy place, When lot a vision of angelle grace, A beauteous picture ne'er to be forgot. Beamed on my eight and held me to the spot.

A little child was standing by a grave;

Here's one that husn't any follon, you see.

SCATTER THE FLOWERS.

Let Us Honor the Soldiers Who Died and Remember the Living. With the return of spring returns the day set apart for strewing with flowers the graves of those who fell to preserve the unity of our country. One day of the year we set apartin commemoration ose, who, for the sake of those left behind, dared the privations and hardships of war; who gave their lives for their country's existence; who went that we might truly live in "the land of the free and the home of the brave.' When we consider the place occupied by our country among the nations of earth, shall we not so observe this day that we and those who follow us, both of our own nation and those who come to us from lands beyond the seas, shall call to mind the principles involved, to sustain which the soldiers pressed to the front, laying down their ambitions, comforts, health and life itself for the good of their country.
"Then cover them over,

These brothers of ours

Deck them with gurlands Of beautiful flowers." But, says the Orange Judd Farmer, to those who sleep, let us not forget the remnant who mingle with us and sprinkle blossoms on their to enjoy the rewards of their patriotism. they last came on this mission; steps are growing more feeble their forms more bent.

HAT does Manorial day mean? Well, if anything, it means eternal peace. There can never again be a civil war in the land now lighted by the stars and bound together with the stripes of America's banner. Two metals cannot be mingled together until subjected to a heat that will melt them. There are metals too hard for the use to which we would put them. There are others too soft; but we fuse them together, and the annigam resists the attrition of time, performs with faultless truth the work we would have it do, and carries its worthy qualities to lands and men of whom we never

In that fierce reshing ctogether of armies in our late war there was the furnace heat of passion which consumed the very cause of hatred. No power on earth but Americans could have invaded the seceding states. No people on earth but Americans could so long have resisted the attacks of victorious armies. But the day when white-winged peace swept past the flaming torch of war, extinguishing its lurid blaze, that day was solidified into one a people who had never before been united. It was little enough that the nation set apart one day for the com-memoration of an event which made us what eyeles of peace could never have accomplished. It is fitting that once a year to the end of time we panse and pay the tribute of regard to the men who made their nation noble. It is fit-ting we teach our children, whose olessed ears have never been disturbed by the reverberations of angry artillery, that to the end of time a perfect peace shall dwell in all our borders.

It is fitting they should know with an acreasing knowledge with each added year that this imperial land can fear no foe: that there is no power on the earth whose arm can stay the wrath of justly roused Columbia; that there is no power whose armed hosts can ever tread the soil baptised at dawn by Atlantio's billows and at evening by the silver surf that whispers of Pacific isles. But there is a lesson still greater.

he triumph of arms was the proof of their uselessness. A million men can-not make right a wrong. All the armies of the east cannot create a virtue. But the mind of man is now open to reason. In the shifting shadow of the flag which commemorates the day, in the memory of the men whose sacrifice made this service possible, let this truth sink into our hearts—that God is with us in the right. The victories reserved for our nation now are the victories of peace. The noblest deeds of all the earth are not the deeds of blood. The purest, strongest, truest souls are those of men whose hands were ever gentle; of womwhose hearts were never stung

Memorial day does not remind of a severed nation cemented, but a single people east into the crucible of affliction and fused—an invincible one. This better metal shall be the standard of excellence for all about us. The nations of the earth shall mark us as their model. The wisdom of all lands shall filled these graves with heroes-if we be privileged to point the way to better things, then "let the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in Thy sight, O, Lord, our strength and our Redeemer!"
