THE GRADUATES OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

A LARGE GATHERING IN FERGUSON'S THEATRE.

WELL RENDERED PROGRAMME

Despite the Storm Hundreds Wended Their Way to the Place of Entertainment. Amply Rewarded.

IN spite of the storm last night Ferguson's theatre was crowded by the friends of the High school graduating class of '92 who held their commencement exercises last night.

The exercises were of a distinctive American character and at times the audience was quite enthusiastic. Members of the School Board and Borough Council, and other borough officials occupied seats on the stage, to the right of the platform upon which the graduates were seated. Superintendent Freeman occupied a seat at the left front of the stage and directed the exercises. Principal Ehrhart and Misses Ramage, Cline and Coogan were seated to the left of the graduates.

The theme of the evening was "Liberty" and all the essays and orations were original, entirely the work of the graduates, prepared and written under the direction of the teacher.

The class numbered twenty-nine and but one essay was omitted. Wilbur J. Lewis was to have presented an essay on "Heroic Struggle of the Dutch," but was excused.

- The graduates were:
- | | |
|--------------------|------------------|
| Katie A. Eisenhart | Wilbur J. Lewis |
| Sadie A. Slattery | Philip L. Swank |
| Fanny D. Grubler | Bert T. Mansell |
| Katie M. Conroy | John P. Cogrove |
| Jessie N. Glover | Ed. W. Shoemaker |
| Anna B. Bierman | Jerry P. McAvoy |
| Clara M. Yost | Julia Miles |
| Julia Donohue | Julia A. Creary |
| Sadie L. Bangs | Annie Lymel |
| Annie P. Burko | Matilda Raese |
| Maggie P. Conghlin | Bridget L. Nash |
| Johanna Sanger | Bridget L. Flynn |
| Maud M. Kline | Jean C. Glover |
| Mary H. Crossan | Corra R. Sterner |
| Julia L. Bradigan | |

The subjects of the essays and orations were:

- "The True Conception of Liberty," "Liberty, a Natural Right," "Liberty Under the Patriarchy," "Liberty Under the Hebrew Polity," "Liberty in Ancient Greece," "Liberty Under the Romans," "Magna Charta," "Progress of Liberty in England," "Recent Reforms in England," "Gallant Stand of the Swiss," "The French Revolution," "Madame Roland," "The Irish Struggle for Liberty," "Gallant Fight of the Poles for Liberty," "The New Home of Liberty," "The Pan-Republicans Congress," "The Declaration of Independence," "The Constitution of the United States," "Give me Liberty or Give me Death," "The American Citizen," "Liberty and Union," "Washington and Lincoln," "Religious Liberty," "Rise and Effects of Slavery in the United States," "A Great Hero," "Abolition of Slavery," and "The Future of Liberty."

These were interspersed by choruses, quartettes, trios and solos of appropriate character, all of which were heartily applauded. The High school quartette, comprising Messrs. John Price, John Scheffly, Edward W. Shoemaker and Harry Clauser, won repeated encores.

After Miss Cora R. Sterner delivered the essay and valedictory, S. A. Baddall, president of the School Board, made a few very appropriate remarks and then presented the diplomas. The singing of "Party Song" closed the exercises.

After the fall of the curtain the graduates re-assembled on the stage and received congratulations and gifts from their friends. The ladies and gentlemen who received the patrons and ushered them to seats were Misses Annie Monahan, Mary Rasmier, Annie Stein, Lou Cather, and Messrs. Guy Sterner, Patrick O'Donnell, Guy C. Keiper, John W. Campbell, William James and John Hughes.

THE JUNIOR EXERCISES.

A Large Audience Listened to the '93 Class. The twenty members of the High school class of '93 held their exercises in Ferguson's theatre yesterday afternoon and they were witnessed by a large audience. The stage was neatly decorated for the occasion with plants and flowers of various descriptions.

Revs. William McNally and William Powick occupied seats on the stage. The members of the class were:

- | | |
|-----------------|------------------|
| Alice Lebe | John Scheffly |
| Lizzie Bellis | John Price |
| Maggie Palmer | John H. Hughes |
| Daisy Hess | John W. Campbell |
| Mary Monaghan | Harry Clauser |
| Mary E. Whalen | Guy D. Sterner |
| Lillie Delecamp | Michael Stack |
| Mary Rasmier | Jennie Cooney |
| Mary Byrne | Lillie Bevan |
| Minnie Johnson | Hannah Seaman |

The exercises were of a highly interesting and pleasing character and all the declamations and essays were warmly applauded. The singing, which was under the direction of Miss Jeannette Ramage, was of an excellent character. It consisted of solos, duets, quartettes, double quartettes and choruses. There was also a duet on the piano.

The boys and girls of the grammar school "B" class who so successfully ushered the patrons of the graduating exercises Thursday evening were Maud Keiper, Annie Watson, Katie Sheeby, Laura Powell, Mary Lechleitner, Elizabeth Bainbridge, John Conry, Sanford Shoemaker, James Higgins, John Coughlin, Anthony Monaghan and George Eisenhart.

Superintendent Freeman and Principal Ehrhart were kept busy while the exercises were in progress.

It is worthy of note that there were no disturbances in the theatre during any of the exercises and that Superintendent Freeman was only called upon to make one reprimand, and that was yesterday afternoon when no price of admission was charged.

AN ENGINE BADLY WRECKED.

IT OCCURRED LAST NIGHT ON THE P. & R. ROAD.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN INJURED

The Storm Last Evening Causes Several Wash-Outs, Which Delayed Traffic—All Trains Now Running.

WHILE the High School graduates and their friends and relatives were enjoying the balm of success and happiness in Ferguson's theatre last night the elements were playing havoc on the outside.

Little did the graduates, the anxious friends, or the disinterested spectators who occupied seats in Ferguson's theatre last night know that when the applause was highest a railroad engineer and fireman lay victims, not a mile distant, to the storm that indicated its presence by the heavy taps upon the roof of the theatre.

Whatever the graduates or others thought, at 10 o'clock last night, half an hour before the graduating exercises closed, two men were picked up from a wrecked train near the east end of the West Shenandoah colliery dirt bank and carried to the watch house at the William Penn turnpike crossing.

These two men were Samuel Bailey and William Roeber. The former was engineer and the latter fireman of coal train engine No. 503, and their engine fell a victim to a washout.

Owing to the late hour and the distance of the scene of the accident, coupled with the heavy rain storm, the news did not reach town as quick as it would under more favorable circumstances. But as soon as it did Chief of Police Davis and a HERALD reporter started for the scene of the accident.

It was found between the two great dirt banks of the Turkey Run and West Shenandoah collieries, and at a point about 75 yards east of the William Penn turnpike. There the engine was found topsy-turvy. The front of the engine, with its still burning headlight, was pointed south and its rear end was pointed north. The tender lay the same way, side by side with the engine, and upon the walking plank of the tender rested the front wheels of a loaded gondola. The latter leaned to the north and was off both rails. The remainder of the loaded coal train stood upon the rails, but rested heavily against the derailed gondola and wrecked locomotive.

The story is this: At about 9:45 o'clock last night when the storm was severe, engine No. 503 started out from Indian Ridge colliery with a loaded coal train. The train proceeded cautiously and was running at the rate of about a mile an hour when the bed of the road suddenly gave way. Samuel Bailey, the engineer, at once whistled for all brakes on and dived through the cab windows. Fireman William Roeber did not take in the situation at once. This is accounted for because the engine is a dirt burner and, of course, the fireman is distant from the engine. However, the engineer jumped and sprained his back. The fireman fell in such a position that escaping steam from the over-turned engine scalded the lower part of his legs, his arms and his neck.

The wreck had been caused by a washing out of the road, due to an extraordinary flow of water from the dirt banks on the north side of the road. The place at which the washout occurred looked as if there had been an immense cave-in.

The slow pace at which the train was run prevented a horrible wreck. Engineer Bailey and Fireman Roeber received help from the crew and were taken to the watch house at the William Penn crossing. Shortly after their arrival there P. J. Ferguson and Drs. Stein and Hamilton appeared on the scene and they found Vies President W. F. Sadler, Jr., with an electric car nearby in charge of P. Stack, J. Leckie and Daniel Snyder. Mr. Sadler had been called from the theatre in Shenandoah and was on his way down the road to see what damage the storm had done, but seeing the wreck on the Reading line stopped the car and got off to investigate.

Mr. Sadler at once placed his car at the disposal of Mr. Ferguson and the victims, and proceeded down the electric line with gum boots and rubber coat. Bailey and Roeber were brought to town and the latter was carried on a stretcher from the electric car to the Reading passenger depot. B. J. McGinness, proprietor of the Watson House, at once handed to Policeman McGrall a pitcher of steaming coffee and the beverage was dealt out to the victims and their friends at the depot.

When the HERALD reporter and Chief of Police Davis had walked back from the scene of the washout they found Bailey and Roeber in the depot with the other members of the crew and Mr. Ferguson. Bailey said he was all right and Roeber, who laid upon a stretcher said he felt good. Mr. Ferguson remained with the victims until they were placed upon a train for Mahanoy Plane. Upon their arrival at the Plane the victims were put in a carriage furnished by Superintendent Bertolotto to convey them to their homes in Frackville.

A HERALD reporter saw both injured men just before they started for their homes and they professed and appeared to be but slightly injured. Several other places along the P. & R. and Lehigh Valley railroads between here and Ashland were badly washed out and traffic was considerably delayed to-day in consequence of them.

The storm did considerable damage along the electric railway. There were two washouts below Packer colliery No. 4 and the trestle at No. 5 was considerably damaged. During the first part of to-day the cars could not run further than the upper part of Wm. Penn, but within a few hours the tracks were in condition for traffic as far as the Lost Creek base ball grounds. The whole road is in running condition now.

This morning no early trains could be run on any of the railroads between here and Ashland.
