MINNEAPOLIS NOT CROWDED.

Room for 10,000 People More—Responsibility Laid Upon St. Paul.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 9.—The number of visitors in the city is variously estimated at from 50,000 to 75,000. The first figure is probably nearer the mark. The city is not crowded. There is room for more. Not a hotel in the city but could accommodate more guests, and as to private accommodations the local committee claims that there is room for 10,000 people more. None of the hotels are filled to overflowing. None of them have single rooms vacant, but there is not one of them which is not prepared to furnish sleeping room to a great many more than were accommodated last night.

The members of the local committee charge that St. Paul is responsible for the smallness of the crowd. Minneapolis has an idea that St. Paul people have been praying for the rain that has fallen for two days, drenching the visitors. The local committee say that the employes of the railroads have been telling passengers that Minneapolis is overflowing and that it is impossible to get anything to eat. On the contrary, the restaurants are very little crowded, and the services up to this time has been eminently satisfactory.

BLAINE DENIES A STORY.

Says It is False That He Offered to Buy His Son's Love Letters.

New York, June 9.—The "World" this morning publishes the following from ex-Secretary Blaine:

"Will you please state in your columns that it is utterly false that I or any one for me, or in my name, ever paid or offered to pay Mary Nevins Blaine, or any one for her, one cent or any other sum for any alleged letters that she holds.

"I have never heard of the subject directly or indirectly except in the newspapers. Respectfully, JAMES G. BLAINE."

THE WARRING COHORTS

No Signs of a Break in the Blaine or Harrison Ranks.

NOT LIKELY THAT A BALLOT WILL BE TAKEN TO-DAY.

DOINGS OF THE SECOND SESSION.

Speedy Adjournment to Give the Credentials Committee Time to Settle Their Troubles—Forecast of the Platform—Charges That the Blaine Men Are Trying to Pack the Convention—Favorable Mention of McKinley as a Compromise Candidate—Some Other Dark Horses—Not so Large a Crowd at Minneapolis as Was Expected—Convention Talk and Rumors.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 9.—The conviction forces itself upon every mind that the convention is to be a long one, and nearly everybody concerned is preparing to spend all the week in Minneapolis. There is no doubt now that the defined policy of the Blaine managers is one of delay, and the very leisurely progress being made by the Committee on Credentials indicates that a report from that committee on the numerous vexatious contests will be slow in coming.

The wildest rumors are afloat as to the action likely to be taken on these contests and the Harrison people are already accusing the Blaine managers of intending to use their majority of that committee in an unscrupulous effort to seat in the convention only those delegates who are favorable to the nomination of the Plumed Knight.

The Blaine people indignantly deny that any such purpose is in contemplation, and insist that every contest will be determined upon its merits, but there appears to be no doubt that the numerous gentlemen of contesting delegations who desire to make prolonged arguments before the committee have received some official assurance that they may be given an opportunity to talk to their fullest capacity. Of course, all this means delay, but whether delay means demoralization of the Harrison forces and the nomination of Blaine is not at all sure.

The last 24 hours has shown no material weakening of the Harrison following, and the hilarious Blaine boom that marked the early stages of the convention appears to have spent itself without gaining any remarkable acquisitions. The press of the country is undoubtedly to have great influence in controlling the result of the convention. Delegates from all sections are making diligent inquiry of news agents for the papers of their particular locality, in order to ascertain the trend of home sentiment.

A delicate compliment to Speaker Reed is the report of the Committee on Credentials adopting the rules of the House of Representatives of the Fifty-first Congress for the government of the convention, and thereby indirectly approving the parliamentary ethics of Mr. Reed.

A question frequently heard is: "Has this convention the courage to make an outspoken platform, sound on all economic questions, and put up on it as a candidate such a man as John Sherman?"

The silver States are trying to defeat such a course, and compromise is all that is looked for. Balloting is not looked for before to-morrow.

THE SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.
Temporary Chairman Fassett was late in putting in an appearance and so in fact was a good many of the delegates. But the band kept things lively. Ex-Speaker Reed's familiar form was looked for and found in the same place as on the first day. Fred Douglass was invited to a seat on the platform. It was 11:45 when Chairman Fassett rapped the convention to order. The Right Rev. H. B. Whipple, Episcopal Bishop of Minnesota, who had been sitting to the left of the chair with his head protected by a little purple skull cap, removed that covering and opened the proceedings with prayer, the delegates and most of the audience standing while.

Mr. Webster of Nebraska, asked permission that Mr. Walker of Nebraska, be given the floor to present a gavel to the Convention. The Chair announced that Mr. Walker would have the floor for that purpose. Mr. Walker then took the platform and made a little speech presenting the gavel in the name of the Young Republicans of Nebraska in memory of the Homestead act. Mr. Walker described the wood of which the gavel was made and said that there were two silver coins in the end of it. Mr. Fassett, as Temporary Chairman, returned the thanks of the Convention to the State of "Nevada."

This slip of the tongue caused laughter, which Fassett adroitly turned to account, saying that there was so much silver about the gavel that the mistake was excusable. The temporary Chairman announced the order of business to be the presentation of the Credentials Committee's report.

Mr. Cogswell, Chairman of that Committee, took the floor and said that the committee was not ready to report. He asked permission for the committee to sit continuously until it had completed its labors. Leave to sit continuously was granted.

Mr. Cogswell and Mr. Spooner having taken their seats the Chairman announced that the report of the Committee on a Permanent Organization was next in order.

D. C. Lockwood, of Idaho, chairman of the committee, was recognized and took the platform. He presented the name of Hon. William McKinley of Ohio, for Permanent Chairman.

It was received with tumultuous applause. Charles H. Johnson was named for Secretary, and the Assistant Secretaries of the temporary organization were recommended to be continued.

The Committee also recommended that each delegation appoint an honorary vice-president and secretary. Mr. Lockwood moved the adoption of the report and it was adopted, and the Chairman appointed Samuel Fessenden of Connecticut, ex-Senator Spooner of Wisconsin, and Gen. Mahone of Virginia, a committee to escort Gov. McKinley to the chair.

They came up from the body of the hall and went up the narrow aisle beside the Chairman's platform to the place where Gov. McKinley was seated. Then Mr. Spooner presided and Gen. Mahone followed him down the aisle to the platform. He shook hands with Mr. Fassett, while the Convention rose and cheered again and again.

Mr. Fassett turning from him thanked the Convention for its consideration and kindness to him. Then he introduced the Permanent Chairman. There was another tumult of applause and three cheers. They were given with a will. When the noise had ceased, Gov. McKinley said in part:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION—I thank you for the honor of presiding over the Tenth National Convention of the Republican Party. A Republican Convention means something. They have always meant something. Republican Conventions say what they mean, and mean what they say. They declare principles, and policies, and purposes, and when entrusted with power they execute and enforce them. (Cheers.)

The First National Convention of the Republican Party, thirty-six years ago, met in the city of Philadelphia. The platform of that Convention reads to-day more like an inspiration than the affirmation of a political party. Every provision of that great instrument made by the fathers of our party is on the statutes of our country to-day. (Cheers.)

Every one of them has been embodied into public law, and that cannot be said of the platform of any other political organization in this or any other country in the world. Whenever there is anything to be done in this country and by this country and for this country the Republican party is called upon to do it. (Applause.)

There is one thing that can be said of our organization, which cannot be said of any other. It can look backward without shame or humiliation and it can look forward with cheer and exultation. That cannot be said of any other political organization in the United States.

Gentlemen of the Convention, we are here to-day to make a platform and a ticket that will commend themselves to the conscience and the intelligence and the judgment of the American people, and we will do it. (Loud cheers.)

Whatever is done by this Convention will meet the approval of the American people in November of this year. (Cheers.)

We have already heard some of the notes of victory. This year Republican Rhode Island has spoken. (Applause.) Only yesterday Oregon spoke, electing three Republican Representatives to the Congress of the United States. (Cheers.)

York, when he said he did not know anything about the tariff, until his last one in Rhode Island, and you go away ignorant and uninformed as to what tariff reform means."

At the conclusion of McKinley's speech there were loud cries for Fred Douglass. He was presented and graciously received. The rules of the 51st Congress were adopted as those of the Convention and adjourned.

The report provides that credentials and platform committees must report before the Convention proceeds to ballot. The Chairman then announced that the next order of business was the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

Chairman Foraker took the floor to ask further time. He could not be heard by the Convention for the applause. The Chairman heard him, however, and said that if there was no objection further time would be granted. No objection.

Rolls of States for nomination of National Committeemen was then called. When Iowa announced the name of Clarkson for National Committeeman the Convention cheered, and also cheered the name of Blaine from Maine.

The presentation of candidates for President was announced by the Chair to be in order. Cullom excitedly declared the announcement to be an error, which rule six confirms, and on motion, the Convention at 12:50 adjourned until to-day.

The motion to adjourn was received with cries of "no, no," but the motion prevailed.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT.
Much Talk of a Compromise Candidate, However—Sketch of the Platform.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 9.—The second day of the convention has passed without a test of strength of the two factions. The leaders of the forces of both Harrison and Blaine continue to manoeuvre for position with apparently equal gains and losses on both sides. Neither side is at all anxious for a vote upon any question which may betray to the other its actual strength.

It is the unspoken policy of Messrs. Platt, Quay and Clarkson to delay the balloting, not unreasonably, but as long as possible without incurring the appearance of actual filibustering.

The expressions of confidence on both sides are as strong as ever. The only indication of weakness is to be found among the Harrison leaders, who are encouraging the talk of a compromise candidate. The name most frequently suggested is that of McKinley, and the unanimity with which both sides agreed upon his name for permanent chairman of the convention; the overwhelming enthusiasm with which Ohio's Governor has twice been received by the entire body of delegates indicate that his name has more strength than any other yet suggested as a third candidate.

The name of Allison continues to be talked of in this connection. Mr. Quay and the other leaders of the Blaine forces continue to declare in the most emphatic terms that there is no basis for this talk about a third candidate except as it is encouraged by Harrison leaders.

BIG BLAINE DEMONSTRATION.
The Blaine boomers indulged in a grand street parade last night, and the packed condition of the thoroughfares through which the aggregation passed indicated that a large proportion of the population of the Twin Cities had turned out for the occasion. Everybody, boy or man, who wanted to carry a tricolor plume or to wear a Blaine badge, was welcome to fall in behind and so the line stretched out to great length. In the various divisions were Blaine clubs from Iowa, Chicago, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Kansas City, California, North Dakota, South Dakota, and the Pearl Button Club of Eau Claire, Wis.

The Chicago Club made an especially fine appearance, which secured for it an ovation all along the route. There were pictures of Blaine without number, and transparencies declaring that he was the people's choice, the champion of reciprocity and the next President. The Indiana division showed its bitterness by displaying a transparency with the inscription: "If Harrison is nominated he will lose the State by 2,000," and another in this wise: "If Blaine is nominated he will carry Indiana by 10,000."

All along the line a continuous shout of "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine," was kept up and heartily responded to by the crowds on the sidewalks. Plenty of red fire was burned.

CHARGES AGAINST BLAINEITES.
The charge that the Blaine people have been making arrangements to pack the convention in the interests of their candidate is renewed. One of the Harrison organs here says:

"The anti-Harrison leaders are accused, and with much show of fact, of using every means, legitimate and otherwise, to stampede the crowd for Blaine. They have had the machinery of the convention in their hands. Clarkson as chairman of the committee, and Meek as sergeant-at-arms, have had the means of making the spectator element any complexion they desired. Meek is the fountain-head of the tickets of admission and right ably has been worked his prerogative against the Harrison influence.

"The claim is made openly and without reserve that all the Blaine men need to do to get their friends into the convention is to apply to Meek. The assistant sergeant-at-arms, too, has been posted and efforts have been made to keep reporters of the administration papers out of the hall upon the slightest pretext, or without pretext."

PLATFORM FORECAST.
The Committee on Platform was in session for several hours yesterday, and after drawing up a draft of the principal planks referred them to a committee of seven for revision. The full committee gave a hearing to Susan K. Anthony on the Woman Suffrage question. The Committee on Revision was in session until a late hour last night, when it reported the result of its labors to the general body.

The platform will not be a long one. The record of the National Administration will be referred to in approving terms, although, unless the document is revised again, the name of President Harrison will not be mentioned specifically. The tariff plank makes the usual pronouncements of the party upon that issue, but deals lightly with reciprocity.

The silver plank, which was especially in charge of Senator James, of Nevada, declares in brief, that the Republican party shall always be in favor of bimetallicism and believes in dollars of gold and silver, each of which shall be of equal purchasing power. The plank on elections reiterates the party demand for an honest ballot and fair count. On the question of temperance there is a brief plank advocating all proper means tending to lessen the evil of intemperance and to promote morality.

MASSACHUSETTS MEN AND A DARK HORSE.
The Massachusetts delegation got together last evening. Mr. Crapo presided, and in calling the meeting to order said that it was held for the purpose of giving the delegation an opportunity to unite on some Massachusetts of New England man as a favorite son to present to the convention. He called for personal preferences. Some one suggested that the delegation vote as a unit for Reed. Some one else suggested the delegation vote for Blaine. Several delegates said that they were pledged to Harrison and they proposed to vote for him. Then some one moved that the meeting adjourn, and without action of any kind the gathering broke up.

Ex-Senator Platt said last night that he expected the convention to last six or eight days.
