GEORGE THE GRABBER THE LATEST SCARE

GIRLS SAY HE TRIES TO CATCH THEM.

AN EXPLOIT ON COAL STREET

A Condition of Affairs That Calls for a Reprimand All Around. Flirtation a Contributory Evil.

YESTERDAY afternoon complaint was made at the HERALD office that "some nasty old thing" was making himself a source of great annoyance on the streets of town at night to "young ladies who attend to their own business." The complaint was amended to set forth that "it is too bad the police are not around to arrest such people."

A HERALD reporter was sent out to investigate the matter and ascertained that on Wednesday evening two young girls ran up East Coal street, from White street, screaming for help. They stopped at Mr. Tunnah's house and the older one who was about fifteen years of age, fainted. The younger one, aged about eleven, was not affected so much. The girls claimed that an unknown man had attempted to grab them at the corner of Coal and White streets. They refused to disclose their own indentity and could give no information that would lead to the indentity of the alleged "grabber."

Policeman George Holvey was on hand and gave chase on a scanty clue given him, but was unable to find any trace of the "grabber" or any one who looked like one.

If there is a "grabber" in existence it is only a question of time when he will run to the end of his rope. O'Donnell, the mountain phantom who kept the people of West Line street in a state of excitement for some time, eventually landed behind the bars and, to all accounts, has been cured of his freaks.

But the truth is these mysterious fiends are now wholly to blame. The Coal street alarm of Wednesday night has brought forth stories of repeated insults offered young ladies at the Lehigh Valley depot and the police are censured on all sides for lack of vigilance. Now there is another version which sets forth that there are a number of tenderlings with pretensions to young womanhood who frequently figure in "grabber" scares. They flirt and play the coy game to the top notch and when eventually they appreciate the peril of the situation they alarm the people.

A case in point occurred near the corner of West and Poplar streets, a section of the town known as "the rocks." A young man and woman were in a secluded spot and were behaving in a most disgraceful manner until they discovered they were being watched. Then they ran down the street, the girl giving vent to a scream of surprise and mortification. The people who saw the couple flee at once concluded that a Hungarian was chasing a young woman who was innocently wending her way home and there was another cry of indignation over the laxity of police surveillance.

In this case the HERALD has positive proof that the man who chased the young woman had accompanied her during the evening and had not the couple been surprised the people in the neighborhood would not have been alarmed.

In the Coal street and other cases the circumstances may be different, but a remarkable feature about the majority of such cases is the inability of the parties who create such alarms to give the slightest clue to the offenders and their anxiety to avoid publicity.

A conservative view of the matter would lead to the conclusion that the best method by which "Jack the Ripper," "Kennedy the Kisser," "Hughey the Hugger" and "George the Grabber" can be corraled is for parents or the police to pull some of the stripplings off the streets at night. Meanwhile a sharp lookout can be kept for the alleged offenders.

THE OFFER DECLINED.

And Now the Joint Committee Will Advertise for Bids.

The famous joint committee on public water works held another meeting in the Council Chamber last night and the secretary found upon his desk a note which read substantially as follows:

"To the Joint Committee on Water Works:

"GENTLEMEN: Your communication of the 28th inst., making proposition to the Shenandoah Water and Gas Co., for the purchase of plant at $75,000 received. The price named being entirely too low, the offer is respectfully declined."

The reading of the water company's answer was followed by silence, broken by a motion to put it on file. The motion was carried and was followed by another that the joint committee advertise for bids for the construction of the proposed public water works. This motion was also carried.

THE FOURTH OF JULY QUESTION

STATEMENT IN BEHALF OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE.

NOT TOO LATE TO GET TOGETHER

Secretary Scanlan Explains the Circumstances That Led to the Arrangements for the Joint Parade.

IN an interview to day concerning the article in yesterday's HERALD relative to the Fourth of July parades M. J. Scanlan, the secretary of the joint committee on parade said, "The facts about the parade matter are these: The joint committee was appointed and the notice inviting societies to meet in the A. T. A. B. hall had been published in the HERALD before the flag raising committee invited the St. Patrick's Society and Annunciation T. A. B. Society to participate in their parade. When the committee called upon me with the invitations I told them that they were too late, but that if they would attend the joint committee meeting the next Sunday the matter could be satisfactorily arranged. The fact is, the St. Patrick and Annunciation societies must parade on Fourth of July and the by-laws of the societies provide for a fine of two dollars on each member who fails to parade on that day. Had we received the invitation of the flag raisers in time we would have accepted it, but as it did not come we organized the joint committee, which intends to have a parade in which all the societies of the town will participate. I met one of the flag raising committee this week, told him the circumstances and asked him to have a committee at the meeting of the joint committee next Sunday. He said he would try and have the matter attended to. It is not too late to make arrangements for one large parade and if the flag raisers will send a committee to the meeting next Sunday everything can be satisfactorily arranged."

This not only places attendance upon the convention within the reach of everybody interested in its objects, but it affords an unprecedented opportunity for everybody else to visit New York City. MALONE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

The Timely Interference of a Nurse Thwarts His Purpose.

John Malone, who was removed from his home to the Almshouse at Schuylkill Haven last week by Chief Burgess Smith after having been declared insane by two doctors, made an attempt to take his own life on Tuesday. When Malone arrived at the almshouse he appeared so rational and so well pleased with the surrounding that the officials of the institution concluded to put him in the hospital ward instead of the insane department. Malone secured a pocket knife with a long blade and was about to plunge the blade into his abdoman when a nurse interfered and took the weapon from him. Malone was immediately transferred to the insane department and will be kept there. In justice to the almshouse officials Poor Director Tracey says that Malone did not secure the knife at the institution, but had it in his clothes when he arrived there. Chief Burgess Smith said last night that he searched Malone when he arrested him and he can't see where the weapon was secreted.

ABSENT-MINDED MAN.

His Money Remained Hid in a Bed Tick for Years.

A queer story of the good fortune of an absent-minded man comes from Shamokin. Ten years ago John Heintzsig was a miner employed at the Cameron colliery. He had saved up $400 and one morning left for Hungary, where he intended to visit his brother for a month. When New York city was reached he discovered that through a mistake he had left his large pocket book containing the bulk of his money secreted in a bed tick at Albert Setiskie's, with whom he boarded.

Heintzsig know that Setiskie was honest and as he had enough money to defray expenses to and from Hungary, he concluded not to return. He sailed across the ocean and reached his destination in safety. In the meantime illness removed his mother, and weighed down with grief he did not return to his coal region home. Weeks turned into months and months into years and Heintzsig still remained in Hungary. His brother recently got married and Heintzsig decided to once again return to American soil. He arrived in Shamokin yesterday, and immediately hunted up Albert Setiskie. The latter was found living with his family on Polish hill and gave Heintzsig a hearty greeting. On inquiry Heintzsig learned that the bed tick in which he had left his money was still in use. Heintzsig immediately went up stairs, cut open the tick and there found his pocket book. He was overjoyed at its recovery and last evening in honor of the find invited a number of his friends to participate in a jollification at his expense.

Matthew Perkins, of town, R. T. Lewis, of Mahanoy City, and Isaac Smith, Sr., of Scranton, left to-day for Mayton, Webster Co., West Virginia, for the purpose of looking up the interests and proving coal the Arvon Mining, Manufacturing and Improvement Company, of which they are stockholders. This company owns a large tract of land, part of which is plotted for the village of Arvon, and as a railroad is expected shortly to pass through it, the holdings are appreciating in value. The gentlemen will be away about three weeks.
