RAILROAD DEPOT INCIDENTS

Schemes to Escape the Clutches of the Tax Collector—How They are Operated and Fail.

THE first thing the Polish, Hungarian and Lithuanian people think of when they make up their minds to leave this place is of some means by which they may get away without encountering the tax collector. Some of the schemes are very ingenious enough to reflect credit on a Jay Gould, but a large percentage of them fail.

The old dodge of sending the baggage to Brownsville and Yatesville by wagon, while the owner buys his ticket and boards the train at Shenandoah has long since been played out. A friend fathering a trunk at the depot and showing his tax receipt to the collector, while the real owner of the trunk was waiting to board the train at Yatesville was also a good trick, but this has also outlived its usefulness.

This morning a well known young Polish woman tried a new scheme. She presented a ticket to Baggage-master Golden at the depot and had a trunk checked. She then passed the ticket and check to one of a group of Hungarians who stood at one end of the platform and they were eventually passed around to the man to whom they belonged and who owned the trunk. The train pulled up to the depot and the trunk was placed on it. The owner also boarded the train and his group of friends were laughing and exchanging remarks in the native tongue over the clever manner in which the young woman had helped to trick the tax collector when a party who understood the language gave the collector a tip. Just before the train pulled out the collector and C. L. Policeman Shirey placed the departing man under arrest. He was taken up town, while his trunk went on to New York. The faces of the friends on the depot platform were amusing. The expressions partook of surprise and discouragement. The boot didn't fit well on the other foot. The Hungarian was allowed to depart on the noon train after settling with the tax collector.

There was another incident at the Lehigh Valley depot this morning of quite a different character. It was a case of a narrow escape from loss of life on the railroad, due to the recklessness of drivers. As the 9:08 east bound passenger train was approaching the cut west of the depot two men in butcher wagons driving in opposite directions whipped up their horses and drove on to the crossing before the gates could be lowered. Seeing the butcher wagons make the dash, the driver in charge on a coach containing a wedding party bound for the Polish Catholic church whipped up his horses. The train was now near at hand and the gateman was powerless to act. The engineer reversed his engine and ran upon the crossing just as the carriage cleared the track. Such reckless drivers should be punished in some manner.

The jumping jack who acts as local correspondent for one of the Pottsville papers should not let every Tom-Dick-and-Harry run him up and down the stick. The party who told him that "Harry" wrote the Pastime Park article imposed upon him.

There are little hopes of the company store system being investigated unless the HERALD undertakes the work single handed. If the Reading Company wishes to get at the bottom of the matter it must deputize outside parties for the work, and be sure to not have any brass band accompaniment.

The rain last evening was a God send. As a result, the streets had a clean and fresh appearance. A few more falls of the kind will soon end the drought, if it is not already ended. The hot weather has no effect on railroad travel and the companies are making no complaints.

The Evangelical camp meeting, which was recently held at Lakeside, was a most successful and gratifying success and the members of that association are not sorry they selected that place. They should own the grounds and erect suitable buildings on them before the next meeting.

Partners who came into town this morning were all smiles. The heavy rains last evening was the cause. It was badly needed to save their crops.

An Interesting Budget From a Wide Awake Correspondent.

Editor Harris, of the Courier, who was recently notified that he had become heir to a fortune of $70,000 by the death of an aunt in England, left here to-day for that country to have the estate settled.

Editor Hirsch, of the Recorder, was not quite as fortunate as Editor Harris this week. Last week Hirsch published an essay reports concerning a merry-go-round that was here. The proprietor of the carousel called upon Hirsch with the intention of annihilating him. The editor stood his ground and brought the irate proprietor down off his high horse with the aid of a base ball bat.

The hot spell had a disastrous effect here. The death roll for the week is a large one and many of the deaths are attributed to the heat. Two of the oldest residents of the town died on Monday. One was Mrs. Hannah Adams, who had reached the ripe old age of 92 years. The lady was familiarly known as Granny Adams. The other was Nathan Houser. He was 77 years of age and had been a cripple and invalid for years. Apoplexy was the direct cause of death. Mr. Houser lived on Dutch Hill. One of his sons, David, is employed as an engineer on the Lehigh Valley railroad and resides at Delano.

Mrs. Holden Chester and Charles Allen, manager of the opera house, fell victims of the heat. Mrs. Chester died, but Mr. Allen has recovered.

Among the deaths of the week were those of Louis Buehler and Mrs. Balzar Oechman. Mr. Buehler was the proprietor of the Union Flour Mill. He died suddenly in a chair in the mill office. He was found there by Daniel Miller, a 14-year-old boy. Mr. Buehler was nearly 80 years of age. He was wealthy at one time, but died a poor man.

Mrs. Oechman was 57 years of age and died of dropsy and a complication of diseases. Four daughters and two sons survive her.

John Jones has given up his residence on Hunter street and has moved his family to Williamsport, where he will secure a position that will be more lucrative than the one he held here.

Miss Jennie Bauer, of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. D. Scudder, of New Brunswick, N. J., have come to town to spend several weeks as the guests of Mrs. George Bauer.

A number of our townsmen have made arrangements by which they will spend their vacations very pleasantly. They are camping out on Shindle's farm, at Barnesville. Among the campers are Harry Stillman, Dan Shepp, Lou Hadesty, John Brooks and Fry Shindle.

Doubleday Post, No. 189, G. A. R., will hold its annual camp fire in Allen's opera house and on the grounds on August 25, 26 and 27.

Company B, N. G., Pa., returned here on Wednesday. They received a hearty welcome at the hands of their relatives and friends.

HERE AND THERE.

Interesting Items Concerning Different Sections of the Region.

A new fire company has been organized at Summit Hill with thirty-seven members, and thirty additional names on the list.

All but about 60 of the 200 or more Italians employed on the new Reading-Lancaster & Baltimore Railroad, who have not been paid for six weeks, have left Reading to seek work elsewhere, with the promise to return when their money comes. Some of the bonds of the road have been taken to London, and cablegram advices say that the English stockholders will provide the cash at once.

The Allentown and Bethlehem electric railroad has forty-nine cars in service and they are run over the road as near to each other as is compatible with safety. People prophesied when the road was first built that it would never pay.

The girls of the telephone exchanges who say "Hello!" when you ring the telephone bell are likely soon to be "out of a job." An electrician named Stromeyer has invented an automatic switchboard which he says will do the connecting without the help of the girls.

The Shamokin teamsters have formed a protective association.

At Gowen, a rattlesnake wriggled its way into a presumably empty beer keg. The keg became the snake's tomb, as the drugs of beer killed it. Some Hungarians afterwards partook of the stale beer, and are now very sick men.

Things have reached such a pass in Hazleton, says the Hazleton Sentinel, that whenever the constables see the Hungarian orchestra starting out with their instruments they immediately fill out warrants, leaving the same blank.

The Carl Funeral.

Lewis Hopkins, Jr., Edward Spears, William and David Daddow, Joseph Malia and J. Kreiger, a delegation from Henry Horncastle Camp, No. 49, Sons of Veterans, left this morning for Reading to attend the funeral of the late John Carl, a former resident of this town.

No Services.

There will be no services in the Trinity Reformed church to-morrow. Rev. O'Boyle has been called away by the death of a near relative.

DANGERS DEFY THE HEAT

The Excelsior Social Club Celebrates its Anniversary in a Very Pleasant Manner—A Large Number of Guests.

HE hot weather has no terrors for pleasure seekers. Last evening seventy-five couples danced until a late hour at a party given in Ferguson's front hall in honor of the seventh anniversary of the Excelsior Social Club. The club is the oldest of its kind in the town and has overcome many obstacles that long since caused other social organizations to fall by the wayside. An excellent orchestra was engaged for the occasion and at midnight a splendid supper was served.

Nothing looking to the welfare of the guests was left undone and when the time for departure arrived the members of the Excelsior Club were declared by vote entertainers of the first water.

The Excelsior promises to celebrate many more anniversaries. It is in a healthy financial condition and has handsomely furnished quarters in the Ferguson theatre building.

Pencilings From a Watchful Correspondent Down the Valley.

The residence of Superintendent William H. Lewis was the scene of a very fashionable and enjoyable affair last evening. It had been intended to have a lawn party and all arrangements had been made for it, but the thunder storms spoiled them, so Mr. Lewis threw his house open to the merry-makers. The Grant Band, of Shenandoah, and the Hayden Choral Union, of this place, who were to have rendered selections on the lawn, made the walls of the residence vibrate with several very beautiful vocal and instrumental selections. Among the guests were prominent people from various parts of the county and they enjoyed the renditions of the band and choir immensely. Mr. Lewis and his daughter extended their usual liberal and delightful hospitality and served refreshments to all.
