THE IAMS CASE.

What Colonel Alex. McClure Has to Say About It.

War is savagery, and military force is simply brute force tempered by discipline. The summons of the military to Homestead was a summons to war. It was not the dress parade picnic that many of the soldiers and all the lawless at first supposed.

It was war; actual war against the lawless usurpation of property rights; against riot and bloodshed; against anarchy; against assassination, and the stern laws of war were invoked to preserve peace, property and life by intimidating the lawless.

The lawless element whose bloody violence called the troops to the field has a large infusion of anarchy; the anarchy that robs, assassinates and uses the bomb as its means of revenge. In the ranks of the military was an element of anarchy; and the only safety to all was in the prompt and sternest suppression of every semblance of anarchy in the military.

When private Iams ostentatiously cheered the assassin who had attempted the murder of Mr. Frick it was an open invitation to mutiny and revolt in the regiment, and no greater inspiration could have been given to the hordes of alien anarchists that surrounded the military ready to get the taste of blood from any less cowardly than themselves.

Colonel Streator exhibited all the wise discretion and generous charity of a true soldier when he called his regiment into line, summoned the mutinous and murdering private in front of the ranks, admonished him of the gravity of his crime and invited him to declare his fault a sudden boyish impulse and retract it. It was met with the defiant repetition of the crime, and the commanding officer doubtless believed that the swiftest and severest punishment was a military necessity to maintain discipline and the public peace.

It is from the standpoint of the laws and exigencies of war that Colonel Streator is to be judged, and unless he wantonly and maliciously abused his authority, he is entitled to commendation from every lover of law and order. He was summoned to war, he was confronted by hidden, treacherous, murderous elements within his command and confronting it, and he can be justly judged only by the laws of war administered in an extreme emergency.

The appeal to the civil courts would bring up only the question whether Colonel Streator honestly exercised his discretion in the performance of his duty as a soldier. If he did he cannot be made answerable to the civil authority. A military court of inquiry could condemn and dismiss him; could reprimand him for abuse of authority or could approve his action; and it would be well for the military service and well for the somewhat confused public opinion, to have a military inquiry into the case.

Above all, let it not be forgotten that the troops at Homestead are in actual war service and that, with anarchy and assassination threatening peace, property and life, the stern laws of war must be paramount to all ordinary theories of sentiment or humanity.

THE RIFLES HIDDEN.

Departure of Troops from Idaho Feared By Citizens.

WARREN, Idaho, July 30.—Of the 200 or more rifles known to have been in the hands of the rioters on the 18th inst., not a single one has been found, though a thorough search has been made. The general belief is that they were taken into Montana upon the advent of the troops. This fact more than any other causes the law-abiding citizens to dread the departure of the troops.

Peter Breen, a citizen of Montana and a member of the Legislature of that State, and who was a prime mover in the recent trouble, is still at large. A new plan of legal procedure against the prisoners is to commence at Wallace. United States Commissioner Hoffman of Cour d'Alene will open court there and issue warrants of arrest as the cases are brought before him.

The report that the United States have decided the union a conspiracy is given color by this move of the authorities. The charge of conspiracy will be entered against all union men, and a separate charge will be entered against those charged with complicity in the Mission affair.

A BOYCOTT IS ON.

Merchants Fighting the Northern Pacific Railroad.

FAROE, N. D., July 30.—The boycott declared against the Northern Pacific railroad is being carried out by the merchants and business men of this place.

It is claimed by the citizens that the Northern Pacific people had repeatedly promised to put in a new depot and erect a $200,000 hotel. It is asserted that the road has violated every promise and has erected fine depots and hotels at other points.

A manifesto has been issued asking merchants to ship their goods over other lines. It is the citizens' intention to keep the warfare up till the Northern Pacific erects a new depot or the several roads running into the city conclude to erect a union depot.

IS HE LOSING HIS MIND?

Col. H. Clay King is Acting Strangely and is Likely to Break Down.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 30.—The action of Judge Howell E. Jackson, of the United States Court, in refusing a writ of habeas corpus in the Col. H. Clay King case, has had a very depressing effect upon the prisoner and it is feared that his mind is giving way.

He acts strangely and imagines that he is being constantly watched by detectives and others. The only hope now is in an appeal to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of error and accompanying stay or an appeal to the executive clemency of Gov. Buchanan, who is being flooded with long petitions appealing for mercy, and others protesting against executive interference with the course of justice.

Fatalities at Buffalo.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 30.—The general humidity yesterday was greater than any other time this week, although at 9 a. m. the thermometer did not indicate as high a temperature as at the same hour on preceding days. The thermometer at that hour registered 87 degrees in the shade, at noon it was 89. Yesterday afternoon two workmen in the Syracuse Tube were overcome by the heat and are in precarious condition. At Lyons, Theodore Clump, a stoker in the Manhattan Silverplate Works, was overcome by the heat yesterday and fell unconscious on the sidewalk. He died an hour afterwards. George Morshimer, a farm laborer, living near Lyons, also died last night from the effects of sunstroke.

An Ashbury Park Visitor Missing.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J., July 30.—Mrs. S. I. Taylor of Richmond, Va., who arrived at the Shelton House, Ocean Grove, on Monday, is missing. She left the hotel on Wednesday evening, saying she would take a walk along the beach. Nothing has been seen of her since. She is about 40 years of age. The hotel proprietor says the woman acted strangely. She was dressed expensively, and was of respectable appearance.

Sale of the Althorp Library.

LONDON, July 30.—The portion of the Althorp library which Lord Spencer has been obliged by his circumstances to dispose of was sold yesterday at private sale to an Englishman, whose name has not been given to the public, and who will, it is understood, dispose of the books at public auction. The portion of the library sold is the better part of the collection, which is said to be unsurpassed in value and excellence.

The Cable House Poisoning Explained.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 30.—Dr. Cooper of this place has made an analysis of water taken from the well at the Cable House, Salisbury, Mass., where the inmates were poisoned. He found that the water contained a large percentage of chloride of ammonia, nitrates and other organic matter. This seems to explain the cause of the wholesale poisoning at the Cable House.

They Resent Jams' Treatment.

VIRGINIA, Nev., July 30.—A number of members of the local companies of the Nevada National Guard have decided to resign on account of the punishment recently inflicted upon Private Iams at Homestead. A large majority of the members of the local militia belong to labor unions, and the resignations are likely to result in the disbanding of two out of the three companies in this vicinity.

The Heat in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The sweltering heat continued yesterday and was more oppressive than on the previous day. At 12 o'clock the mercury registered 106 degrees, while Thursday at the same hour it was 99 degrees. Numerous prostrations are reported but none so far of a fatal character. A number of horses have dropped dead.

To Finish the Panama Canal.
