SOLDIERS AWE THE MOB

Bloodshed Narrowly Averted at Duquesne.

MECHANICS KEPT OUT OF THE MILLS

A Foreman Knocked Down a Ravine—Several Hurt on Both Sides—The Duquesne Strikers Lose Their Cause—Potter and the Pinkertons Released.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 5.—Chibs and stones took the place of moral suasion in the strike at Duquesne yesterday, and not until the military was called upon was anything like order restored. The trouble began shortly after 7 o'clock, when 30 men employed in the mechanical department put in an appearance. These men were among those who the day previous signed an agreement to return to work at the company's terms.

Superintendent Morrison informed them when the agreement was signed that no attempt would be made to start the mill until next Monday. He then ordered Foreman William Millsage to put 30 men to work making repairs. The men selected for the work were promptly on hand at 7 o'clock, but they did not go to work.

Near the entrance to the mill they were met by a crowd of nearly 300 Duquesne and Homestead strikers, the latter having come from this place during the night. Twelve deputy sheriffs endeavored to keep the mob back in order that the thirty mechanics might pass into the works, but they were soon overpowered and compelled to retreat.

In the struggle, some of the deputies had their masks taken from them. Seeing that to further resist the mob would result in bloodshed, the little band of workmen retreated in good order. This victory encouraged the strikers, and when Foreman Millsage came upon the scene a few minutes later and attempted to reach the mill gate, he found himself surrounded by a howling, lawless mob, but the foreman, with club in hand, defied the strikers.

Near the gate he found himself confronted by a dozen men. They told him that if he did not turn back he would be killed. Half a dozen deputies then ran to his rescue. They begged of Millsage to return to his home.

Reluctantly he consented and started for his residence, which stands on the edge of the hill back of the works. He was followed by three men, one of them a Homestead steel worker. When he reached a narrow pathway, running along the edge of a deep ravine, the Homesteader ran up behind him and dealt him a terrific blow on the back of the head. Millsage was rendered unconscious and rolled to the bottom of the ravine.

He was picked up by friends and taken to his home, where he soon recovered. The assault was witnessed by the mob of strikers, who cheered when they saw Millsage knocked down. The strikers then caught sight of Boss Carpenter Hugh Boyce hastening toward the mill gate. With a wild yell they started for him with upraised clubs. But the deputy sheriffs promptly executed a flank movement, surrounded Boyce and succeeded in getting him in the mill uninjured.

The crowd surged about the gate, which they threatened to break down if Boyce was not brought out. Before they could carry out their threat the strikers caught sight of several companies of militia swooping down upon them in double quick time. The sight of the bluecoats and the glittering bayonets caused the mob to scatter in all directions.

In a few minutes the entire 10th Regiment, under command of Col. Hullings, was in possession of the place, having reached Duquesne on a special train a few minutes after Gen. Wiley had been apprised of the serious situation of affairs. Col. Hullings ordered the captains of the respective companies to place men on all streets leading to the mill, with orders to allow no one to pass without written orders.

Details were also sent to Oliver and Cochran stations, while a full company took possession of the road in front of the works. Finding themselves at bay, the strikers gathered on the hill above the town, where they contented themselves with hurling imprecations on the heads of those below.

Sheriff McHenry will endeavor to double the number of deputies in Duquesne. Direct telegraphic communication will also be established between that point and Gen. Wiley's headquarters in Homestead. Carnegie's employes have lost the strike in Duquesne, as 410 of the men have signed agreements to return to work next Monday. Fully half this number are Amalgamated men, who in order not to lose their places have deserted the organization.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Potter, Dovey and McConnell in Court—Opinions of the Officers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 5.—Supt. Potter and his two assistants, James Dovey and Nevlin McConnell, were released on $10,000 bail each in a brief hearing before Judge Ewing, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Potter surrendered himself to the court the moment it was opened. He entered accompanied by his attorneys Knox and Reed and safely passed constables waiting for him at the door. Mr. Potter spent the night pleasantly with friends in the East End.

Alderman King lodged his docket into the court on the order of Judge Ewing, and Mr. Potter waived a hearing. McConnell and Dovey were brought from the jail, and the three were placed in the prisoners' box, viewed by nearly 500 persons, many of whom were workmen.

On the formal application for bail District Attorney Burleigh addressed the Court: "I am requested to say, your Honor, that the prosecution will make no attempt to prevent the release on bail of these men."

"I am satisfied," the court replied, "Messrs. A. W. and H. B. Mellon, bankers, signed the bonds. Judge Ewing at first objected to these men signing all the bonds, but he said he would accept their personal bond for forty times the amount without hesitation."

they have conceded us everything, except the right to make individual contracts. One of our reasons for preferring to make contracts with each man, rather than with an irresponsible committee, is that it is a matter of protection to ourselves. We think it our right to make our contracts in our own way. The bringing of these suits will not change our policy in the least. Our course is fixed and unalterable."

The Carnegie Company officials plainly indicate that they consider their arrest as the consummation of a threat that they would be arrested unless they agreed to arbitrate.

"I think it a joke," laughingly remarked a prominent iron manufacturer, "and a move out of which the Homestead men will reap absolutely no benefit whatever. It will help their own cause in no way and the trend of affairs, which is far more to them than murder trials at present, will not be changed."

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Mr. John E. Millholland, on being asked last night if it were true that Hugh O'Donnell leader of the Homestead strikers was staying at his house, said: "The story is a romance. If O'Donnell is in this city I do not know anything about it."

ENGLAND'S NEW PARLIAMENT.

Peer Elected Speaker of the House of Commons—Adjournment.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The new Parliament met yesterday. Although the hour for formal opening was 2 o'clock p. m., groups of spectators assembled about the Palace of Westminster as early as 7 o'clock in the morning.

A crowd at Carlton Terrace watched Mr. Gladstone start for the House of Commons and greeted his appearance with roars of applause. Mr. Gladstone looked much better than was expected and bore himself steadily and firmly.

When Mr. Balfour, the government leader, made his appearance, he received an ovation. John Burns, the labor leader, had a mingled reception of cheers and groans.

At the appointed hour the House of Commons, in accord with the due and ancient form, was summoned to the House of Lords to listen to the royal commission summoning Parliament to meet. The rush to the upper House was not so dense or disorderly as sometimes in the past, and the Commons seemed very glad when the antique ceremony was over.

After the return to the House of Commons Sir Matthew White Ridley, Conservative, of Blackpool, moved the election of the Right Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel as Speaker. Mr. Gladstone seconded the motion in a cordial tone, speaking of Mr. Peel as his life-long friend. The motion was carried without opposition, and the House of Commons then adjourned.

THE CASE OF CONSUL RYDER.

Reported That the Charges Against Him Are Greatly Exaggerated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—It is learned at the Department of State that the telegrams from Europe in connection with the arrest of Consul Ryder at Copenhagen are incorrect.

The American Minister, Mr. Carr, has never reported to the Department that Mr. Ryder was guilty of the charge, nor has he ever recommended his recall.

The charges against Mr. Ryder have been greatly exaggerated in the European press, and some of them are known to be unfounded. He has been for many years in the consular service of the United States; was a gallant soldier, and is now suffering from a wound received in the civil war.

While the Department did not feel warranted in withdrawing him from his post under the circumstances, or evading the results of a legal investigation, his past record called for a suspension of public judgment till the pending trial was concluded.

THE BORDEN MURDER

No Clue to the Slayers of the Aged Couple.

A BROTHER-IN-LAW SUSPECTED.

The Weapon With Which the Millionaire and His Wife Were Mutilated Cannot Be Found—Mr. Borden Was Seen Five Minutes Before the Crime.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 5.—There is absolutely no clue to the murderer or murderers of Andrew J. Borden and his wife, who were found dead in their home on Second street yesterday, both frightfully mutilated about the head and face.

No implements that could have been used in the commission of the crime have been found.

Mr. Borden lay on a sofa in a room on the top floor of the house. His head had been cut, and gashes from four to six inches long were found on his face and neck.

Mrs. Borden was in her own chamber on the upper floor, and the condition of her face and head was the same as that of her husband. She lay face down in the bed, which was a veritable pool of blood.

The police were notified, and immediately an investigation was begun.

The daughter of the unfortunate couple was the first to make the discovery. She went up stairs after finding the body of her father, and saw that of her mother. She thought her mother had fallen in a swoon, but finding that she, too, was murdered, the girl fled down stairs and fainted.

The police have searched in vain for any clue to the murderer. They spent yesterday afternoon searching for a Portuguese hoodlum who runs the Borden farm at Gardiner's Neck, and who, it was said, was in the house at 10:45 a. m., a few minutes before the bodies were discovered.

To-day the police say there is nothing in the Portuguese story.

It is reported that word was sent to Mrs. Borden in the morning that a sick friend desired to see her, but she did not go out. It is said that the servant, Bridget Sullivan, says she went into the room to make some inquiry of Mr. Borden five minutes before Lizzie Borden gave the alarm. He was then sitting on the sofa reading a newspaper.

Mr. Borden was a wealthy real estate owner and a prominent citizen. He was seen on the street half an hour before he was found dead.

Although the police have no clue, yet their suspicions rest upon persons who were in the family circle, particularly John M. Morse, brother-in-law of Mr. Borden by his first marriage; also on the daughter Lizzie, who first discovered the body of the father. John M. Morse is 35 years of age and came here from Hastings, Mass., two years ago. He became very intimate with Mr. Borden and the latter's daughter, and spent a great portion of his time with them.

He came from New Bedford at noon Wednesday and spent the night at the Borden Homestead. He left there yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and was next seen on the premises about 20 minutes after the bodies were discovered. The police say the only motive for murder was gain, else one of the victims might have been spared.

It has been decided to keep Morse under close surveillance until further developments. The murder has caused the greatest sensation here since the Granite mill fire.
