ANOTHER CASE OF BARBAROUS NEGLECT

IN AGONY FOR NEARLY TWO HOURS.

DEATH ENDS THE TORTURE

The Distressing Case of a Pole Who Met With an Accident in the Mines—Time for Action.

ANOTHER case of heartless treatment of a mine victim occurred in town yesterday afternoon. The victim was Teofilo Kroljinski, a Pole residing in the First ward. He was employed as a loader in the Knickerbocker colliery and yesterday afternoon he was caught between the bumpers of coal cars.

As a result of the accident Kroljinski's left leg was horribly crushed between the knees. The unfortunate man was placed on a Lobigh Valley train and brought to town. For an hour and fifty minutes the victim lay on a stretcher in the depot with out medical or surgical treatment, and meanwhile his life's blood was steadily flowing away.

Finally the injured man's friends became alarmed over his condition and summoned the Polish priest and it was not until after the arrival of the reverend gentleman that a doctor was called.

Dr. Stein attended the man and tied the mangled leg above the knee to prevent further loss of blood. Kroljinski was already very weak and when he was placed on the 6:35 train for Ashland for his removal to the Miners' Hospital he appeared to be in an almost dying condition. His condition was critical when he arrived at the institution and shortly before 9 o'clock he died. The remains were brought to town this morning.

Kroljinski was 37 years of age and left a wife and three small children.

This case, taken in connection with the recent case of the man who died from injuries received at the South Main street crossing of the Lehigh Valley railroad, has aroused indignation. It does seem disgraceful that in a civilized place of this kind mangled miners, whatever their nationality may be, should be allowed to roll in agony for hours without any medical attendance. It is barbarous treatment and the fact that the countrymen of the victims stand heartlessly by is no justification for the shortcomings of others. It would seem that the best plan for bettering the condition of affairs would be for the P. & R. C. & I. Co. to adopt the plan of the railroads that have supplied their stations with facilities for prompt relief of the injured. A box used under the "first aid to the injured" system could be placed at each colliery at very slight expense. Humanity demands this.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a meeting of Henry Horncastle Camp, No. 40, Sons of Veterans, held on the 22d inst., the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst and Camp our beloved friend and brother, Jacob Kreiger, therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the divine decree, we hereby attest our highest appreciation of our worthy and honored departed brother.

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Jacob Kreiger our Camp has lost a most zealous member, the membership a kind and devoted brother, and his parents a dutiful and loving son.

Resolved, That as a mark of esteem in which our brother was held by all his associates, our charter and badges be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be entered on the minutes of our Camp and a copy be sent to the bereaved parents and that they be published in the EVENING HERALD.

PETER'S PUNGENT PENGIL PUSHING

A BATCH OF VERY INTERESTING COMMENTS.

A BOSAT OF COURT INFLUENCE

Reported Bold Defiance of the Law That Arouses Great Interest in an Assault and Battery Suit.

Reports that come to my ear are true there will become interesting developments in court when one of the criminal cases comes up for trial at the next term of court. According to the story told me two of our townsmen engaged in a fight a few weeks ago over an old sore that arose from the Gibson-Donahoe fight at Mt. Carmel. One of the participants in the supplemental fight was badly beaten and a warrant for the arrest of the other was issued. When the constable went to make the arrest the party wanted grabbed the writ, tore it up in pieces, and then snatched the trigger of a revolver which he presented before the constable's face. Fortunately the weapon was not loaded and it was also fortunate (for the man wanted) that the officer was unarmed. The arrest was eventually made and the constable says that under no circumstances will he consent to a settlement of the case. But the interesting feature of the case is the stand taken by the party prosecuted. It is claimed that he has declared his case will never be brought to trial because the judges are under obligations to him and they will see that the case remains in the shade.

This case will be watched with interest. The people will wait to see if the case will come to trial and if it does not they will be anxious to know if such a result will arise from any obligation the judges may be under to the party who makes the boast.

I do not hesitate to say that the boast is a vacant one. That it is without any support for I do not think there is a judge on the county bench who has placed himself in the power of any man who dare make such a public boast of his power to clog the wheels of justice. However if this confidence in the judiciary is misplaced I would like to know—and the people should know it.

If this boasting man owns the court we will need a new set of judges. If he does not and his boast is an idle one, then the party should be dealt with in such a manner when his case comes that he will never again cast such a slander upon the bench.

Meanwhile the people will await developments.

The cracker factory of town has not been sold after all. One of the interested parties informs me that Mr. Harry Preston, the proprietor, has made an arrangement with the Sheriff by which the creditors are secured and Mr. Preston will proceed to make sales of the stock on hand and close out the business.

A mine boss made a damaging admission in the company store business the other day. He declared boldly that it was useless to try to get the P. & R. Company to investigate the matter and when asked if the stores complained of were conducted on a company store system, he blurted out, "Well, yes—that is indirectly, you know."

The Council of the Sunday School Union of England, acting in conjunction with the American Sunday School Union, is organizing a World's Sunday school convention, to be held at St. Louis, in September, 1893, and with a view to facilitating the attendance of English visitors is arranging for excursion parties of Sunday school workers and their friends, to leave England about the 19th of August, 1893, proceeding from Liverpool, by way of New York and Niagara, to Chicago, where ample time will be afforded for visiting the World's Fair, and thence to St. Louis, returning by way of Pittsburg, Washington, Philadelphia and New York to Liverpool.

The Columbia Hose Company has its hands full of business now-a-days. In addition to making preparations for the great fair it will hold during the Christmas holidays, it is busy arranging plans to run a special train from town to the World's Fair at Chicago next year. The company proposes to have the train arranged so that all who patronize it will not only have ample traveling and sleeping accommodations during the journey and from the fair, but will also be served with meals on the train from the time they leave town until they return. It is thought that arrangements will be made to have the train leave here on Monday and return here on the following Monday.

The undertakers of town should keep their eyes open for a novel swindler by which a Mauch Chunk undertaker has been victimized. A stranger having the appearance of one suffering a great bereavement called upon the Mauch Chunk man and with tears in his eyes and faltering words stated that heart disease had carried off his wife and the body was in a neighboring patch awaiting burial. The man asked the undertaker to take charge of the remains and all the arrangements for the funeral. He also asked for the bill, which was $30, and gave a check for $42 13 in payment. The undertaker gave the man $9 18 change. In the afternoon he discovered that the corpse was a myth and the check was no good. The stranger cannot be found.

PETER.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. Enoch's Closing Remarks to His Congregation.

The following is a synopsis of Rev. Owen Enoch's farewell sermon on Sunday evening last at the Welsh Congregational church. The text was taken from II Corinthians, 13: xi. "Finally, brethren, farewell. The Apostle Paul cherished an ardent affection for the Corinthian church despite its many imperfections. This accounts for the tenderness of his benediction upon them at the close of the epistle. He would have them set before them God as the ideal perfection of life. The feuds and dissensions which marred the character and life of the Corinthian church arose from their loss of a center of unity. Hence his exhortation in the text 'Be perfected.' This implies not only a state of imperfection, but also a possibility of improvement or progress. The Bible never imposes on man an impossibility. The imperfection of life was realized in Christ the God man and he has left us an example which we are to follow. The Corinthian church was steeped in corruption, a condition produced by the imperfection of the hearts. Let them, therefore, strive to imitate Him who was the ideal perfection. 'Be of good comfort.' As God is the ideal, so is He the source of comfort. The most solid comfort is attained by our endeavor to reach after the divine ideal. These words would seem to contain a slight rebuke to the church for depending too much for its success on God's servants, rather than on God Himself. Though this church is not free from imperfections, do not be cast down, but bend all your energies with greater earnestness and consecration in the performance of your duties. 'Be of the same mind.' No church can succeed if every member insists on the carrying out of his individual opinions. It cannot go far astray if it pays heed to the injunction of the Apostle when he said, 'Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus.' Unless there be respect for the opinion of others as well as our own, discord must necessarily ensue. It is the prayer of my heart that this church may work in unanimity and concord. 'Live in peace.' Peace will follow naturally if the previous exhortation be observed. 'And the God of love and peace shall be with you.' The presence of God in the church depends entirely on the conscientious observance of the foregoing conditions. A church without God is dead. But a church having God in its midst will be a living and mighty force for the uplifting and true development of mankind. I beseech you, therefore, brethren, to have respect for the Apostle's injunctions. Then this church, like the burning bush in Midian, shall be a power that nothing can consume. Learn to bear one another's burdens as well as to cast your burdens upon the Lord. Let this church be the home of peace and harmony. May no quarrelsome spirit drive away the enlightening and purifying and saving spirit of God. Heaven is the land of peace. We all hope to spend eternity within its borders. May God enable us to be so faithful to our spiritual vows that we may all enjoy its unending blessings in the end."

Rev. Enoch will take charge of the Congregational church at Frostburg, Md., on September 11th, next.

A Good Minstrel Show.

There are a number of good minstrel troupes on the road this year and one of these is Emerson's company which appeared at the Academy of Music last night. There was a fair sized audience present and they showed their pleasure and appreciation of the many good things on the program by continued applause. The circle first part was enjoyable and many of the specialties in the olio were well rendered. The musical comedy team Bunnell and Adams with their wonderful performing dog created an immense amount of merriment. The performance concluded with a very comical afterpiece and the audience, after a brief spell, left the hall well pleased. It was an auspicious opening of the season and as a forerunner of the several fine attractions to follow during the year presages an excellent patronage for the pretty little house—Carbondale Leader. Emerson's Minstrels will open the regular season at Ferguson's theatre to-night.

The First Contract.

Messrs. Wm. Smith & Son, the well-known machinists of town, have received the contract to place steam heating fixtures in the store and dwelling of John Hobbin, on North Jardin street. This will be the first connection made to the main pipes of the steam heating company, and the work will undoubtedly be done in first-class style.
