WILL THE OTHERS HELP

Buffalo Switchmen Must Have Aid, or Fail.

FOUR MASTERS TO CONFER TO-DAY.

The Meeting Set Down for Yesterday Postponed-Switchmen On Two Other Enads Join the Strikers-Their Action Said to Cut Little Figure-A Conflict Between Soldiers and Strikers in Which One of the Latter is Fatally Wounded.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 24.-The "cruel war," as it is now called both by the soldlers and the newspaper correspon dents, is not yet over. On the side of the strikers the material events of yesterday were the accession to the ranks of the switchmen of the Delnware, Lackawanna & Western and the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg men, which completes the tie-up, if such it may be called, of all the roads centering in Buffalo. The men of the latter road who quit work are not numerous, and their action does not cut any figure, as the road terminates at Buffalo on the tracks controlled by the Buffalo Creek Terminal Company, whose men were already out. Its only significance lies in the fact that the Rochester & Pittaburg is the great soft coal carrier for this and the up-lakes territory and with it in the strike all the coal roads centering at the port of Buffalo are involved in the strike.

The Lackawanna addition to the involved roads is of more importance as its tracks and treaties are numerous, and will have to have protection if there is a continuance of the tle-up. In addition to its leading trustle at the mouth of the harbor, and its extensive freight docks at the foot of Main street along the water-front, it has a big storage trestle east of the city line in Cheektowaga.

All reports to the contrary, up to this morning there have been but two cases where strikers or mischief-makers have been actually hit when shot at by the been actually hit when shot at by the troops. Late yesterday afternoon the 22d Regiment, stationed at the Tifft farm, where the Lehigh Valley docks are located, had a brush with strikers, one of whom was shot and so badly wounded by a soldier that he is likely to die. The affairgrew out of assaults on non-union switchmen and several arrests were made. The soldier who did the shooting went with the police to make a statement and was himself made a prisoner.

As may be imagined, Col. Camp was not long in making it evident that the 22d Regiment did not relish such treatment by the civil authorities, and when Gen. Doyle told him to take all the men he wanted to re-capture his soldier and take possession of the police headquarters, if necessary, the order was obeyed with alacrity, and things looked decidedly interesting. A large sized incident was spoiled, however, when the police released the soldier before his comrades arrived to rescue him.

It may be assumed that the troops will all be here until the close of the week, at least, unless the strike is sooner de-clared off. On this phase of the question the expected meeting to-day between Mesers. Sweeney, Sargent, Clark and Wilkinson, representing the switchmen, firemen, conductors and trainmen, is expected to have an important bearing. This meeting was announced to take place yesterday, but was postponed.

There is no ground to change the belief of 24 hours ago—that the three last-named orders will find no reasonable ground for joining in a general strike.

The belief is growing to-day that this action will be an abandonment of the action will be an abandonment of the strike. The plan, it is now said, is to let the strike down easy. The conference will advise peace. Grand Master Sweeney will yield gracefully and the striking switchmen will go back to their places if they can or will seek work elsewhere.

The proposition made to the Sheriff Monday night on behalf of the strikers, will probably not be accepted by him. It is that the Sheriff swear in 400 of the striking switchmen as special deputies, each man to bring a certificate from Muster Moriarity, of the local lodge of switchmen, that he is a responsible person and can be depended on.

The strikers want the troops withdrawn and they promise in return that they will guarantee the safety of the railroad prop-erty and will not go into the yards, but patrol the streets adjoining and keep out idlers from making trouble.

The firemen are reported to be clamor-ing for a strike, but Sargent says that no matter if they voted unanimously to strike he would not approve it if in his judgment he did not consider it prudent. and further more, however much he may be in favor of going out with the switchmen, the firemen will not do so unless all the other railroad labor organizations go out.

A mob harrassed the militis for over two hours during the night, firing shots from revolvers, putting torpedoes on the tracks and otherwise disturbing the tracks and otherwise disturbing the night.

The soldiers turned out several times and the yards were searched but not a stranger could be found. As soon, however, as the guards were returned the trouble began again.

The men who were making all the trouble stayed in the yards. They could easily eccape detection among the shadows of the long string of cars, and every time a soldier saw a skulking figure flash by in the darkness he sent a builet after it. after it.

The shooting was general and hundreds of volleys were fired. of volleys were fired.

The rattle and roar of the arms, the shouts of the sentries giving the alarm, the commands of the officers aroused the people living in the neighborhood of the camps, and only had they settled down into an unessy slumber when those who lived nearest the camp were awakened by the scutries call from out along the silent yards where the signal iamps looked like

After awhile the young man with the white hat and red necktie observed that a friend of his in Chicago had posted him on a new trick, and he took from his pocket the shell of an English walnut which had been cut in two to make two small cups. He also took from his vest pocket a common field pea, and explained:

"I don't say that I can do the trick successfully, but after a little more practice I hope to catch on."

Half a dozen of us exchanged winks and spotted him at once for a sharper, but there was a middle-aged man from Indianapolis who appeared innocently interested. He was not a green-looking man by any means—but he had a him for a match or the time of day. "What is the trick?" he asked, as he

ROYAL RELICS.

A Reminiscence of Joseph Bonaparte's Residence in America. The death of the old Scotch gardener of Joseph Bonaparte at Bordentown the other day serves to recall the imperial glories of the Bonaparte residence on the out kirts of that little city. The place now is divided up into smaller tracts for the purposes of an age of progress and business, but hardly ties of its royal founder. It was in 1815 that Joseph Bouaparte arrived here, a fugitive from the allied nower. rope. He came as the Count de Survil-liers, and was accompanied by Prince Lucien Murat M. Muillard, who acted as his secretary, and one or two other gentlemen of his regal staff. He was then dominated with the idea that there was no place so secret as to be safe for him. He expected at any time that allied men-of-war might sail up the Hudson or the Delaware and seize him. He was essentially timid, and he declined any but the most modest receptions tendered him by New York city, which felt fully the honor of a royal presence in her precincts. It was guided by this thubling largely that he made for himself this home at Bordentown. The tract of land he bought there contained 1,800 acres, and he laid it out in parks, ram-bles, rustic bridges, lakes, drives, gravelled walks, thickly foliaged arbors, and miniature cascades turning miniature water-wheels. He embellished it also with statuary, but the atrangest part of the purk consisted in his devices for safety from the always possible coming of his allied foca. He built a high tower on one of his highest laws of the Order. He was very sure that the men would remain at work, and declared that a sympathetic strike knolls, in the midst of the thickest foli-

The remains of these passages were visible, a few years ago, iron doorways fallen to pieces, apertures partly filled, and in some cases the upper earth having caved in. Joseph built himself a fine house for that day, the ruins of which are still visible. It was in excellent preservation some years ago. It was of brick, covered with white plaster, with a slanting roof, dormer confiding, childish look which would windows, heavy wooden winter-have authorized any stranger to ask shutters and broad doorways with wooden columns on each side. were grand staircases, reception-rooms, large fireplaces with sculpture work of fine character, bed chambers, the walls this way—so and so—and this way, un- of which were hidden by rare tapestry til you can't tell which cap it's under," and magnificent old paletings. Joseph was a great favorite with the Bordentown people of his time. The New Jersey legislature passed a special act allowing him to acquire the property referred to, and in return he made many valuable gifts to Bordentown. He gave handsome pictures to a small vilinge academy of design, and laid out the highway which runs between the Bonsparte place and the village. He also gave many balls and receptions, at which two daughters, Zenaide and Charlotte, were great attractions. Lucien was returned to the French assembly in 1848, at the time of the smaller Napoleon's entree into French politics, but he never made any great hit. He was chiefly notable in Bordentown for his wild tricks, his excessive girth in waist absently replied. INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 24 .- In giving his decision appointing James F. Balley receiver for the Iron Hall, with a bond of $1,000,000, Judge Taylor said:

"The evidence is clear and there is no question but a receiver should be appointed. The thing has been put into this condition by the management of its officials, the like of which this court never heard of in the course of more than 25 years' practice. It seems as if it were managed mere for the purpose of keeping up the Supreme officials than for the profits of the members of the order. is clearly an institution which must close out even with the best management, and those last in it must come as suffer-

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—The news of the appointment of a receiver at Indian-apolis did not create much surprise among the members of Order of Iron Hall in this city. Judge Taylor was expected to take such action, and the general impression is that the Order will be rehabili-tated and assessments levied to put the organization on a good financial footing. It is said that as a matter of self-preserva-tion the certificate holders of this State and city may apply for a local receiver.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—At a meeting here Monday night 1,500 local members of the Iron Hall adopted resolutions endorsing the order, agreeing to pay all assessments, and to support Chief Justice Somerby. The sensation of the meeting was the speech of Deputy Supreme Just-ice Badger. He charged Supreme Cashier Davis and Supreme Accountant Walker with being the men who were endeavoring to wreck the order. He was especially a recon Davis, charging him with instigating the numerous suits.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 24.—Judge Dennis has appointed Charles J. Wiener and Joseph C. France receivers for the Order of Iron Hali. The supreme officers of the Order, who reside in Baltimore and were made party defendants in the bill brought by Attorney Wiener, came into court and gave their consent to the appointment of receivers.

Another bill for an injunction and re-ceiver has been filed in the City Circuit Court against the Iron Hall. The bill prays that the Iron Hall Savings Bank be restrained from collecting any money due it on mortgages and from parting with any of the funds of the Order now deposited in its vaults. Judge Dennis signed an order granting a preliminary injunc-tion to this effect, and setting August 81 as the day for the Order to show cause why the injunction should not be made
