COLUMBUS DAY IN SHENANDOAH

THE SCHOOL CHILDREN WILL CELEBRATE IT.

ACTION BY THE SCHOOL BOARD

It Has Decided That the Pupils of the Public Schools Shall Observe the 400th Anniversary—The Programme

At the instance of the executive committee of the national public school celebration of Columbus Day, a bill was introduced into Congress instructing President Harrison to issue a proclamation making Columbus Day a general holiday. In the interest of scholarly accuracy, this bill wisely authorized the change in date from October 12th to October 1st. It has passed both branches of Congress and received the President's signature.

Columbus Day will be the 400th anniversary of the Discovery of America and it will be the most important of the centennial observances through which we have passed. It will be marked in Chicago by the dedication of the Columbian Exposition grounds, and will no doubt be celebrated everywhere in America by fitting exercises.

It has been suggested that the public schools throughout the country take the leadership in the celebration of the day and invitations to do so have been sent to every city, town and hamlet in the United States by the National Educational Association.

At the meeting of the School Board on Wednesday evening Superintendent Freeman drew attention to the matter and the board decided unanimously that the children of our public schools be called upon to respond.

In order that our people may better understand the intention an outline of the committee's designs is given. It is proposed to have a uniform program for every locality in America, to be used on Columbus Day, simultaneously with the dedicatory exercises of the World's Exposition grounds. It will give significant unity to America's celebration of its 400th anniversary.

Accordingly the following official programme has been outlined: In the morning the pupils of the public schools will gather in the school houses at the usual hour and instead of the regular recitations the morning will be devoted to exercises befitting the anniversary. These exercises may be simple, or elaborate, according to the resources of the school. The old, familiar, national songs and a few speeches by leading citizens may be added. The features suggested are (1) raising and saluting the flag, (under the direction, wherever possible, of a detail of the veterans of the war); (2) the song of Columbus Day; (3) address (to be declaimed by the best speaker among the boys); (4) the ode (to be read or recited by a young lady); (5) "America" (which will in all cases be the closing song).

The song, the address and the ode will all be original, prepared especially for the celebration by some of the best of American writers and by the first of September this official programme, in a complete form, will be published throughout the country, and will also be sent to all applicants who address the chairman of the executive committee, Francis Bellamy, Boston, Mass.

It is intended that as far as possible, all the rooms in each school house under the same principal shall unite in having the same exercises. "The parents and friends of the pupils should be brought together and family interests should be made to centre in the particular school house where the children attend," the committee urges. It is also urged that the citizens arrange for a demonstration in the afternoon and make a public school review an honored feature of it.

Opening of the Reading Room. The free reading rooms, which have been moved from the Harrington building to the Reflowich, on South Main street, will be formally opened to the public on Friday evening, 26th inst. THE O'ROURKE BOY IDENTIFIED

HIS FOSTER PARENTS FOUND IN COLE'S PATCH.

RAN AWAY TO ESCAPE ABUSE

The Boys' Body Covered With Bruises From Beatings and Kickings—To be Returned to St. John's Home.

THE identity of John O'Rourke, the twelve-year-old boy referred to in the HERALD of the last two days, has been established. Yesterday morning Chief Burgess Smith and Poor Director Tracey took the boy to Mahanoy City, determined to locate his stopping place before he was arrested on the streets of town on Monday night for vagrancy.

The boy wept bitterly at the depot and offered resistance when he was taken on the train to go to Mahanoy City. Burgess Smith consoled the boy by telling him that if it was found that the people he had lived with were his foster parents and that they had abused him he would not be returned to them. On the way to Mahanoy City the boy gave his history. He said that a family named McCall, residing at Cole's patch, took him from St. John's Home in Philadelphia. That they put him at work in a breaker and abused him. They first sent him to the Boston Run breaker, which is about a mile and a half from Mahanoy City, and subsequently got him a place in a breaker nearer the town.

Messrs. Smith and Tracey took the boy before Rev. Hennigan, of St. Canicus church. The priest identified the boy and spoke favorably of him, but did not speak of the McCall's in complimentary terms. A neighbor of the McCalls was next seen and he very reluctantly stated that the boy had received a severe beating on Sunday last.

The foster mother, who is the wife of Patrick McCall, was next seen. She at once upbraided the boy and behaved in such a manner that Burgess Smith was very unfavorably impressed. She wanted to take charge of the youngster, but Smith said that it was evident to him that the boy was not being treated right and that he should be returned to the Home in Philadelphia.

Mrs. McCall then said, "Well, take him along."

"Has he got any clothing besides what he is wearing?"

"Yes, but he is good enough as he is. Take him along."

Burgess Smith insisted upon going to the McCall residence. While the boy was undressing himself to wash positive evidence of ill-treatment made themselves apparent for the first time. There were large black and blue spots on the boy's left side and his legs below the knees were covered with bruises.

The Burgess asked the boy how he became so bruised. The boy said that Mr. McCall kicked him in the side. The boy said, "Papa kicked me." Then turning to Mrs. McCall he added, "Because I had a piece of tobacco you whipped me with a club."

Chief Burgess Smith says that the behavior of the woman was such that he regretted that she and her husband were not within the limits of the town so that he could prosecute both for cruelty.

The boy was brought back to town and is now with the family of Chief Burgess Smith. Several people have offered to adopt the boy, but Mr. Smith is making arrangements to send him back to the Home in Philadelphia so that any one who wishes him must adopt the usual measures.

Three new collieries are to be opened within a radius of three miles of Mt. Carmel. TIMELY TOPICS.

What People Are Talking About These Times.

Fakirs still continue to bamboozle our people. Shenandoah has the name of being a "sucker" town and it well deserves the name, as our people are too easily gulled.

One of our town concerns have engaged the Boiler and Engine as their organ. Their friends will have to look in that sheet for news.

Some people have poor memories—what they know one day they forget the next. A delegation will come to the HERALD office and make complaints, and the very next day they have no recollection of it. People who have no more independence in them than a louse may as well keep away. Hereafter we will not lose any time listening to fairy stories.
