A SUBSCRIBER would like to know, and we share his curiosity, the origin and meaning of the general prevailing custom of oystermen, of decorating exposed piles of oysters and oyster bags with stalks of endive, surmounted by red peppers. It may be for the purpose of giving the bivalves a fresher appearance, but evidently it cannot be because there is any connection or natural relation between the vegetables and the shell fish.

THE Republicans of this district must not allow themselves to be misled by the quietness of the campaign and forget that they have a candidate in the field for the Legislature. In their candidate they have a sincere and straightforward Republican and a man who is fitted in all respects to the position for which he aspires. One of the most important positions in the state is that of a representative in the state Legislature, and in the selection of a man to fill such a position the people should exercise great care. Such positions, we fear, are treated too indifferently by the people, who thereby make themselves responsible for the miscarriages of state administrations so frequently complained of. If the people make a good legislature they can remedy many evils and effect many good works. It rests with them. To do their share the people of this district should elect John J. Coyle.

WILD-OAT BANK DAYS.

It appears that in the good old Democratic days of "wildcat" and "reddog" bank notes, pensioners and other creditors of the Government were compelled to receive their dues in the depreciated and often uncurrent and worthless paper money issued by state banks. Following is a copy of an official letter written by the United States pension agent at Cleveland, Ohio, to a pensioner in Michigan, which copy was furnished to a Tribune correspondent by Deputy Commissioner Davidson, of the Pension Bureau:

United States Pension Agency, Cleveland, Ohio, October 17, 1897. Sir: Enclosed find $100 Michigan money and 20 cents in letter stamps. It being your pension, less of cents for attorney, postage and freight. Also enclosed a blank for drawing your pension next time.

This letter was written about seven months after the inauguration of President Buchanan, and in a month when no less than 1,000 banks failed, according to the editor of "Thomson's Bank-Note Reporter." With banks bursting at the rate of fifty a day, the agent of the United States Government, charged with the duty of paying pensioners at Cleveland, Ohio, was compelled to write to the beneficiaries of the Government that New York exchange "is not to be got" and to express the "hope" that Michigan money, which was the last he could obtain, "will go in Michigan." What would a pensioner of the United States to-day think and say if he should receive such a letter with such inclosures, in lieu of the quarterly payment due him. Of course, it must be assumed that Pension Agent Hesse-muller was an honest man, and yet, as the discount on Michigan bank-notes outside that state in October, 1857, ranged from 5 to 15 and 2) per cent he might have easily compelled the Michigan pensioners to stand a handsome "thave" by buying Michigan notes at the regular Cleveland market rate of discount. If exchange on New York could have been obtained it would have cost the Michigan pensioner about 10 per cent premium, which with the other expenses noted in the pension agent's letter, would have reduced his quarterly pension of $24 to $21.65.

Such was the beautiful system of banking to which the Democratic party in the year 1892 demands that the country shall return.

He is a lawyer by profession; so am I. He was born in this country; so was I. And if he can boast of his Irish parentage, I am equally proud of my German ancestry, and on that we stand with honors even, I think. He has received a common school education; so have I. He has had the experience of 11 years in public life; I have had but eight. He has had six years in Congress in the HOUSE OF HIS FRIENDS. I have never had one. He was there when the Democrats were in the majority. The eight years I was in Congress I never went into a caucus.

"I will cancel every engagement I have made if Mr. Reilly will consent to allow me to go with him and have the joint debates. He need not break one of his engagements. I will go with him. More than that, if Mr. Reilly has made engagements and feels he cannot break them and does not want to meet me on the same platform, I have another proposition, and that is, that the chairman of the Democratic committee may name, whether it be Alexander McClure, or any other man, I will meet him on the stump; provided, however, that Mr. Reilly will be responsible for the result as I will be responsible. Then I am ready. I do not do this in a boastful spirit. I know I am right, and being right on these vital questions of the day, the great protective issue and the great banking and financial issue, I care not who they may send here, I am ready to go ahead, and I dare them to send a man to stop me in my path."

I WILL MEET ANY ONE

Mr. Brumm, after charging Mr. Reilly with voting both ways on the free silver bill, said: "Let any man say that Mr. Reilly has ever answered the invitation of the workmen of this county or state, or any other state, to make one speech, or to open his mouth in the interest of organized labor in or out of Congress, and I will get of this ticket. I have another proposition: Let any man in this county, or anywhere, show that I have received an invitation to address the workmen in the interest of labor or at any workmen's meeting, not only in this county, but in this state or any other state in the Union, and that I didn't do it.

I WILL GET OFF THIS TICKET. And that was not only done once, but scores upon scores of times. I went and always paid my own expenses in this and other states, except one time I had my expenses paid to Ohio."

Mr. Brumm charged that he and Mr. Reilly were called to address an anti-convict labor meeting in Cooper Institute, New York city. Mr. Brumm responded. Mr. Reilly did not put in an appearance. On another occasion Hon. John Wanamaker, now Postmaster General, Mr. Reilly and himself were called upon to address an anti-convict labor meeting in Philadelphia. Messrs. Wanamaker and Brumm responded and spoke.

MR. REILLY FAI ED TO APPEAR. "And you," said Mr. Brumm, "simply because I am determined to show that record in all its truth I find the Democratic newspapers coming out and saying, 'Reilly is beginning to abuse Mr. Brumm.'"
