THREE HARVEST EXCURSIONS

Half Rates via the Illinois Central Aug. 20, Sept. 27 and Oct. 25th, 1892.

The Central Route will sell excursion tickets to the Agricultural Regions of the West, Southwest and South, at one fare for the round trip, from stations on its lines north of Cairo, on August 20th and September 27th. A third excursion will be run to the South and Southwest on October 25th. Your local ticket agent will give you full particulars in regard to these Harvest Excursions; arrangements can also be made in this connection to visit the desirable Railroad Lands for sale by the Illinois Central in Southern Illinois on obtaining special permission to do so by addressing the Company's Land Commissioner at Chicago, Mr. E. P. Shene. In addition, a few weeks before the first excursion date, your local ticket agent will be able to furnish you with a special folder, issued by the Illinois Central, which will give you particulars of these Harvest Excursions in such form as will enable you to plan your journey at home. Should you not be within call of a railroad ticket agent, address A. H. Hanson, G. P. A., Illinois Central R. R., Chicago, Ill. 2-4-92

OUR "WALKER."

He Tramps All Over Town in Search of News.

Several days ago the HERALD announced that William Gibson, of town, and John Gallagher, of Girardville, had been matched to spar a number of rounds at Allentown for a purse of $100. Since that announcement a change has taken place. The match with Gallagher has fallen through and Gibson has been matched to spar "Jimmy" McHale, of Philadelphia. This match is to take place on the 17th inst., in the Metropolitan skating rink at Ashland, under the auspices of the New Athletic Club of that town. Should this come off it will be a lively contest and Gibson will find a foe worthy of his steel, as McHale is a professional boxer of considerable repute and experience.

A story is going the rounds to the effect that an expert pool player of town had a somewhat sensational experience a few nights ago. Having made a match with a Girardville man the player borrowed a valuable cue of a friend and boarded an electric car for the scene of battle. On the way towards Girardville he fell asleep and slumbered so soundly that he did not awake until the car was safely housed in the power house at Rappahannock for the night. He was evidently a victim of a conspiracy of some people who did not wish to have him meet the Girardville man, and he realized this when he awoke. But his misfortune did not end here. In making his way out of the power house he fell into one of the ash pits, cutting and bruising himself in several places; and, to top the climax, his valuable cue was missing. He eventually got back to town, an exceedingly disconsolate pool expert.

The uncertain condition of electric rail way matters in town is not interfering with the progress of work between Girardville and Ashland. The work of grading that branch is moving ahead rapidly and very satisfactorily to the company. A force of over one hundred men are at work on the road, who are quartered in a big building at Big Mine Run. The people of Ashland are very well satisfied with the progress. Work was begun on Centre street in that town to-day.

One of the conductors on the electric railway was made the victim of a cruel joke a few nights ago. A young man of town got on his car at Girardville and pretended to be so intoxicated that he could not assist himself. The conductor kindly led him to a seat and fixed him comfortably for the ride home. During the trip the conductor paid occasional visits to the young man to see that he was comfortable. The young man carried his end of the joke admirably until the car reached town and he was bounding along Coal street, when he jumped up, shot out the entrance of the car, and alighted as easily as if it was only running at a speed of two miles an hour. "Well, I'll eat my shirt if that ain't heaping insult upon injury," ejaculated the conductor as he turned and shook his fist at the young man.

Alfred Lawler, an English "saw cracker," was discharged from the Pottsville jail on Monday after serving a year for carrying concealed deadly weapons. Before leaving Pottsville he expressed his opinion of several prisoners in the jail, and this is what he said of Harry T. Hall, the one-time photographer of town: "Hall, the Shenandoah incendiary, is a chump. Why, say, I would not let that man associate with me. Yes, I think he is guilty. He told some very silly stories to me."

The language is more forcible than classical, but the opinion fits local sentiment.

One of the Polish business men of town is missing. The news of his absence first leaked out yesterday afternoon when two of his countrymen sought advice as to the services of a lawyer to secure judgments on claims they hold. A HERALD reporter made inquiries and learned from a prominent gentleman that on Monday the merchant complained bitterly of the result of pay day. He expected large payments on his book accounts, but they failed to materialize, and when he closed his store Saturday night he found he did not have enough to meet the claims of the salesmen who were expected to call on Monday. The HERALD's informant says the merchant was almost distracted and finally concluded to go away for a few days in order to avoid meeting the agents before next pay day. The informant said he had not the slightest doubt that the merchant would turn up safe and sound in a few days.

First Snow Fall.

The first fall of snow in town occurred to-day at a few minutes before noon. It lasted less than a minute, just long enough to give the streets a light coating.

"THE SABBATH."

An Interesting Discourse by Rev. Fowick Sunday Morning.

The sermon in the M. E. church on Sunday morning was from Mark 2:27: "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." The Jews of our Lord's day made the Sabbath a burden instead of a blessing by their endless and absurd rules governing its observance. But the Pharisees had also a maxim by which they excused themselves from the rigors they imposed upon others. This maxim was quoted by our Lord—in the language of the text—in justifying his Sabbath-day works of mercy. He thus turned it against them and made it thenceforth the law of the Christian Sabbath. It is man's servant but not his master. The Sabbath rests upon no astronomical considerations as do days, months, years. It was made for man. It was made with man. "Remember—word implying previous knowledge—the Sabbath day to keep it holy." It was made for a memorial of creation. God blessed and sanctified it "because in it he rested from all the work he had made." One of its designs was to teach man that God is the proprietor of the universe—another was to keep alive man's sense of responsibility to God. This may sound as though it was made for God instead of man. But we must remember that man will have a hero to worship—a model to imitate—a master to serve. And God seeks to take advantage of this instinct—for our own good—to set before us Himself as the supreme good. We command and restrain our children for their sakes and not our own only. So the religious obligation of the Sabbath was made for man's sake. Another design of the Sabbath was to help man to fulfill his obligation to God by affording a period of rest from toil and a stated opportunity for worship. "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt not do any work." But the age seems to be outgrowing this old-fashioned idea of the Sabbath. The world used to get along without railroads and newspapers altogether but now we are told that we cannot get along without them for one day in seven—we must have them on Sunday. Very often repairs that might as easily be made through the week are reserved for Sunday. The argument for nearly all the work done on Sunday is really based on convenience and profit and not on necessity. The bloated bondholders of soulless corporations and not the toiling masses are the men who in the name of poverty are raising the demand for Sunday trains and open exhibitions—and not because they care for the toilers but the dividends.

But these are only some of the logical results of a weakening regard for the Sabbath in the home life of the nation for the past 25 years. In our boyhood days these things were unknown. When they were first introduced they shocked the Christian conscience. But by degrees we have become accustomed to them. And the danger is that our children will grow up under this loose regard for the Sabbath to know no better. Heads of families need to be more careful, for it is in the home that the controlling hands of the future are being trained. Worldly cares and pleasures should be sacredly laid aside, and as little labor be performed as will suffice. The habit of staying at home, or keeping hired help at home half the day to prepare big dinners is all wrong. Our Sabbath obligations extend to those in our employ and we have no right to require them to profane God's day. The habit of reserving the dead for interment on the Sabbath in order to make a great display is a great insult to the Majesty on High. It may sometimes be necessary to bury the dead on the Sabbath but it ought to be done in a quiet modest manner. Not long ago our town was agitated on account of a Sunday parade at the laying of a corner stone of a church, but was that any worse than the funeral parades that are held Sunday after Sunday? If the Sabbath is to be preserved, more serious thought must be bestowed upon these things. Whatever will contribute to man's real welfare making him better and enhancing his eternal good may properly be done—here the line should be rigidly drawn.

NOTICE TO CONSUMERS.

OFFICE OF THE Shenandoah Water and Gas Co.

On account of the long drought the Shenandoah Water and Gas Company gives notice to its consumers that there must be no more waste of the water supplied by the company. This notice is especially directed to people who use garden hose and wash show windows, pavements, curbs, etc.

The water will be turned off every evening, beginning on Wednesday, October 5th, at seven o'clock, and remain so until 7 a. m. This rule will remain in force until the next rain. A watchman will be stationed at a stop at Fowler's lumber yard, on East Coal street, to turn on the water at a moment's notice in case the fire alarm is sounded.

By order of the company,
S. D. HESS,
Superintendent.
