MEET A TERRIBLE FATE!
AN OLD MAN CRUSHED BE- NEATH CARS.
ANTHONY MCGUIRE THE VICTIM
His Body Turned Into an Almost Unrecognizable Mass by the Wheels of a Locomotive and Loaded Rock Cars.

EATH, and a terrible one, removed Anthony McGuire, of Browns- ville, yesterday after- noon. Mr. McGuire was a feeble man about sixty years of age. He was struck by a loco- motive near the Kohinoor breaker and his body was so badly ground beneath the wheels of the locomotive and the cars that followed loaded with rock that the remains were hardly recognizable.

Mr. McGuire walked up the path that runs along the rock bank of the colliery that is northwest of the borough bridge over which the electric railway runs. As he reached the top end of the path he turned to the left and stepped upon the rock bank track. The train of rock cars was approaching at a rapid pace, which is required on account of the heavy grade that begins at the point where the unfortunate man was struck.

The remains were found in a heap on the track. The legs and arms were crushed and mutilated, one of the arms was pulled out at the socket and the body was terribly mutilated. Employees removed them to the home of the deceased in Brownsville.

PARTIES LAST NIGHT.
How Some Young People of Town Enjoy Themselves.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Annie Gross last evening at the residence of Mrs. George Schoener, on North Jardin street. Among those present were: Misses Emma and Ida Stetler, Maggie Roberts, Annie Hughes, Alice Maher, Ella Higgins, Carrie, Ray and Maria Stetler, Nellie Seltzer, Roy Heftner, and Rob and Francis Stetler, Roy Faust, Delroy Hagenbuch, George Sheeler, Thomas Roberts, Edward Roberts, John Higgins, Harry and Earl Stetler.

FROM GOTHAM.
Registering of Voters Commenced To-day—Heavy Increase Expected.
New York, Oct. 11.—To-day the registra- tion in this city commenced and the indications point to a very large increased list. Both parties will get out every voter, if such a thing is possible. Committeeman Martin, Supervisor Davonport and others are keeping a good watch that none but those rightly en- titled are permitted to register.

Advices from all parts of the state show that the Republicans are alive to the danger of the hour and are registering as they never registered before. Committees in the different cities and towns made a house to house canvass and urged every Republican to register which it seems they have done.

WEST VIRGINIA.
Secretary Elkins has just returned from West Virginia. He brings good news from that state. He is most positive that Harrison will carry that state by a safe majority.

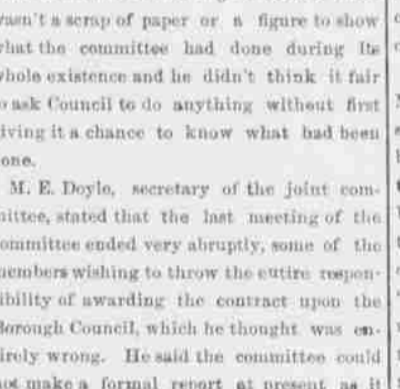

A coal operator, a former Pennsylvanian, arrived from the coal fields of West Virginia and visited headquarters yesterday. He confirms the good news brought by General Elkins. Thousands of Northern miners have settled in West Virginia the past three years, two-thirds being Republicans.

THE TARIFF.
Andrew Carnegie, who is at present on a visit to Scotland, has written a letter to the London Times, which has had the effect of opening the eyes of many "Doubtful Thomases" here. He says that for a country of fully developed resources, like Eng- land, free trade is indispensable, but for a new country like the United States, a protective tariff is necessary to facilitate domestic production.

Mr. Carnegie also argues that in the United States the cost of living is less than in Great Britain, that the American workman can buy more with $5 than can a British work- ingman with a pound, and that the cry of free traders as to the enhanced prices of necessities of life applies to a period which the American people have outgrown. Maine granite is now sold in Scotland for less than Scotch granite, and agricultural machinery made in the United States is driving out similar machinery made in Europe. Mr. Carnegie says that the economic law of sur- plus behind these phenomena will in future have more significance than the tariff.

SAFELY PILLORIED.
The Press of this city says: "No doubt the Democratic tricksters whose cowardly plot to steal the commonwealth of Pennsylv- ania has been detected and frustrated will attempt to pose before the respectable men of their own party as the victims of Republican misrepresentation. But there is no way for them to get rid of the odium they have deliberately incurred. Their tool and accomplice, the Democratic state printer of Pennsylvania, has himself furnished the conclusive proof of their guilt."

THE JOINT COMMITTEE.
MORE DISCUSSIONS ON THE WATER WORKS.
WILL A CONTRACT BE MADE
Solicitor Pomeroy Sounds Not of Warning and Tells the Councilmen to go Slow. Then Franey Speaks.

THE Borough Council and joint committee on water works met in joint session in the Council Chamber last night for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee as to what it had done in regard to putting in the plant. Chairman James said that the idea had been to award the contract for the works at the last meeting of Council, but several of the Councilmen did not feel warranted in doing so because there wasn't a scrap of paper or a figure to show what the committee had done during the whole existence and he didn't think it fair to ask Council to do anything without first giving it a chance to know what had been done.

M. E. Doyle, secretary of the joint committee, stated that the last meeting of the committee ended very abruptly, some of the members wishing to throw the entire responsibility of awarding the contract upon the Borough Council, which he thought was entirely wrong. He said the committee could not make a formal report at present as it would require considerable work to go over all the committee had done and make up a statement of the expenditures.

Chairman James said that Council did not know what the bids were, yet it was supposed to award a contract without knowing whether the works were to cost $75,000 or $100,000 and without a figure or the scratch of a pen from the joint committee.

J. J. Franey said that he, as a member of the joint committee, did not wish to shirk any responsibility. That the reason a report could not be made was that the three bid- ders had failed to put in itemized bids as requested.

Mr. James wanted to know the bids in and Secretary Doyle announced them as follows: Quinn and Kerns, Pottsville, $94,080; A. H. Coons, Kingston, $86,280; Eiebe, Lansford, $85,800.

Shenandoah county has other business to attend to besides the water question; and in the second place the matter only came up just before vacation. The rules of court provide that such matters shall be heard before a full court. They are not going to send all the jurors and witnesses home just to hear this case. And suppose this case is heard, I venture the assertion that you will be met at every step. You will be fought until they have nothing to raise against you. Do you suppose the Shenandoah Water Company is going to surrender a property worth $125,000 for want of fighting? Do you think the Girard Estate is going to allow you to build dams without making a protest. Mr. Baird says the Thomas Coal Company will fight it.

"The answer is simply this: Is the water committee, or the Town Council, prepared to award a contract to anybody until all these questions are determined?"

Mr. Wurm thought a start ought to be made and Mr. Pomeroy asked, "Is the borough of Shenandoah going to contract for $95,000 and then find itself unable to comply with its portion and not only lose the water works, but also stand for damages for breach of contract? You can award a conditional contract."

Mr. Franey entered upon a long reply to Mr. Pomeroy. He expressed surprise. He said he did not see any reason why these hindwicks should be raised now. He did not think that the courts of this county, or the United States Supreme Court, could prevent the people of Shenandoah from owning their own water works if they have the means. "It does not look well to build these arguments now," he continued, "and I say award this contract even on the very statement of the gentleman himself. I don't believe the people of Shenandoah will sit idle and see this committee stopped after spending days and weeks and their money and say 'We will wait until the Girard Estate shall say we can go on, or the old water company says that they will give us the right to go ahead.' I don't see any reason for it unless (turning to Mr. Pomeroy) there is some covert design at the back of it."

Mr. Pomeroy arose deliberately and was evidently restraining his indignation caused by the remarks and the applause and stamping of two or three members of the joint committee after Mr. Franey took his seat.

The Solicitor said, "I don't know what Mr. Franey means by 'covert designs' and he should not talk of covert designs. I don't propose to sit here and assume responsi- bility without a word of warning to the Town Council. I don't propose, two or three years from now, to be damned because I did not tell the Council where it stood. Don't make charges of covert designs (pointing to Franey) because that means that I am not asserting the truth. I state the facts to the Town Council. I want water works and have done everything in my power and have antagonized my friends in doing so. I want every member of the Town Council to understand, and I speak to them as their legal advisor, that whatever you do you cannot charge me with no attempt to put you on your guard and tell you to go slow."

Mr. Pomeroy again referred to the rule in court. He said he perhaps understands the law one way, another lawyer will perhaps interpret in another way, the court at Pottsville another, and the Supreme Court another. He could not say the law is so and so. He could only give his interpretation of it. Mr. Pomeroy said that when the special election was first spoken of the question arose as to whether it should be held under the Act of 1874, or under the Baker ballot law. It was held under the Baker law, not because the lawyers said so, but because the joint committee wanted it held under that law. The Council, he said, could not expect him to say just what the Baker law is when the most eminent jurists of the country are divided on the question.

In closing Mr. Pomeroy said, "I want it understood that I have lifted my voice and told the Town Council precisely where it stands, so they cannot lift their fingers at me and say 'It was your fault.'"

Council finally adjourned to meet on Thursday evening.

Those who fail to see Madeline Merli's "Frou-Frou" at Ferguson's Thursday night, will miss the theatrical event of the season.
