READY TO CELEBRATE!
SCHOOL ARRANGEMENTS FOR COLUMBUS DAY.
HUNDREDS OF CHILDREN READY
Street Parade and Indoor and Outdoor Exercises on the Programme—The Part the Veterans Will Take.

SUPR. FREEMAN and the school teacher met in the High School room yesterday afternoon at 4:30 and remained in session nearly three hours. It was a regular institute, but the meeting was enlivened by the introduction of two important public matters at the close of the regular exercises.

Chief Burgess Smith and School Director Gallagher occupied seats beside the superintendent and Principal Ehrhart as special guests. The Chief Burgess read a list of diphtheria and scarlet fever cases discovered in town, giving the names of the victims, so that the teachers would know what families are afflicted. In reading the names Mr. Smith requested to hold them in confidence, as the physicians from whom he had secured the names had made him promise not to have them published.

The teachers noted the names and there was an understanding that if any children of the afflicted families are attending school they will be notified to remain home until the danger is over.

Superintendent Freeman said he thought it wrong for the physicians to require such secrecy. He thought the names of the afflicted parties should be given all the publicity possible so as to put the public on guard. In some places, he said, physicians are obliged to post notices on houses in which contagious diseases exist.

The Chief Burgess said that there was no law requiring the physicians to do so in this town and that the authorities are powerless to apply the quarantine, except in cases of small pox, which are governed by a special ordinance.

The Burgess suggested the use of carbolic acid and water for disinfecting purposes and Miss Stack, one of the teachers, said that she had learned that the burning of turpentine and tar was a good preventative. Mr. Smith also suggested the burning of sulphur in a room with closed doors.

Superintendent Freeman announced that he had ordered a supply of carbolic acid for each school and gave the following directions: Each school will have a four ounce bottle of carbolic acid; take one-quarter of the contents and dilute it in a quart bottle of water; then sprinkle the solution over the floors, in sinks and other places necessary.

line and does not want some to remain away because their parents may not be able to dress them as well as other children.

The superintendent then announced that he had decided to let the teachers decide whether or not they would parade with the schools. The teachers took up the question and spirited discussions followed. Some did not wish to parade and others wanted to see the male teachers in line. Two ballots by voice were taken and then two rising votes, but the question remained undecided. Finally it was decided to take a vote by roll call and the Chief Burgess, HERALD reporter and secretary of the meeting, M. F. Coury, were made an electoral board.

The result of this ballot was 25 to 10 in favor of the teachers parading with the schools.

Superintendent Freeman announced that forty-four pupils of the High school will represent the schools in the joint parade.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

THEATRE TOPICS.
A Clean Cut Irish Drama on Thursday Evening.
The Philadelphia Item in speaking of "Fairies Well," which is to appear in Ferguson's theatre, Thursday evening, October 20th, says: George Timmons as Teddy O'Neil won all hearts by his simple, natural style of acting. Mr. Timmons thoroughly understands the part, and we can scarcely help thinking that, in his own person, he experiences the vicissitudes of love, fortune and adventure which are the share of the noble warm-hearted Teddy. Mr. Timmons won loud applause for his dancing and singing, and was several times enthusiastically summoned before the curtain, where he met with an ovation.

HORSES WITH A HISTORY.
Among the contributors to the fun and excitement of the "Police Patrol" which will appear in Ferguson's theatre next Wednesday evening, October 20th, are included two famous white horses. This pair of equines enjoy a reputation greater than that of the ordinary animal of the kind and they owe their reputation to an epoch in the history of Chicago. When they first sprang into prominence they were connected with the Chicago police department drawing the patrol wagon for the Desplaines street station. On that fatal day in May, when armlessly sought to rule the world, they, with the assistance of a few brave men were instrumental in saving the lives of some eight officers. When that crowd of excited and half-crazed foreigners gathered at Haymarket square and flouted their flag of red, a detachment of police was sent from one of the stations to guard the unruly mob, and in case of necessity compel peace. The first gathering clans of anarchists soon surrounded the few unfortunate blue coats, who found themselves completely hemmed in by the surging mob, to whom the sight of a policeman's star was like a red handkerchief waving in the face of an enraged bull. Some kind friends on the outside seeing the plight of the few policemen, rang in an alarm for the patrol which sounded in the station where "Jim" and "Frank" were doing service; when the bell pealed forth its call they were soon on their way to the scene of trouble carrying a wagon loaded with well-armed police. As they turned the corner into Haymarket square a crowded mass of struggling humanity which completely packed this open street from wall to wall presented itself. There, in the centre, could be seen the few brave officers vainly struggling to gain shelter. There was but one thing to do the officers drew their revolvers and clubs and the driver lashed his horses straight into the face of the mob, where the plucky animals literally fought their way through by biting and pawing until the brave men were picked up and carried to a point of safety. It was directly after this that the bomb was thrown which cost the lives of so many brave officers as well as the execution of the prime movers in the cause of anarchy. It was from the action of the horses at this time and at the McCormick reaper works a little later that these two intelligent animals gained the title "The White Patrol." They were trained in a wonderfully clever manner and seem to know their cue, too, in the play as well as the actors themselves. Oftentimes opera-houses are found where access to the stage is difficult, but they climb the walk without the least bit of hesitation, requiring but the kind word of their driver to direct their movements.

A BOARD OF HEALTH!
REASON WHY ONE SHOULD BE ORGANIZED.
SECRECY SURROUNDING PATIENTS
The Authority of the Chief Burgess is Limited and the Sanitary Committee Doesn't Wish to Run Risks.

THE HERALD to-day presents a few reasons why the Borough Council should organize a Board of Health to take charge of the present epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria. We have the statements of physicians that members of families afflicted with one or the other or both diseases have been attending school until their conditions became critical.

We have the statement of the Chief Burgess that he can only advise disinfectants. We have the statements of members of the sanitary committee that they cannot visit the infected places and run the risk of carrying the diseases into their own families.

We find the doctors unwilling to give the names of the afflicted parties for publication, fearing that the patients and parents of patients will be displeased.

PERSONAL.
John R. Jones, of North Jardin street, is suffering from a severe attack of illness. Mrs. E. Anstuck last evening presented a bouncing boy to her husband. The mother and youngster are doing well.

Electric Railway Change.
Hereafter the electric railway cars will leave the corner of Main and Centre streets at 2:30 a. m., daily, and every 25 minutes thereafter until midnight, at which hour the last car will leave.

"BOAST NOT"
Synopsis of Rev. William Powick's Interesting Sermon.
The sermon in the M. E. church on Sunday was from Proverbs 27:1: "Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." Prudence and piety are not antagonistic. We have no right to be indifferent to the future. The scripture enjoins reasonable diligence so far as our temporal future is concerned. There is an ambition which is not only lawful but essential to our welfare. Take away the inspiration of hope and most of the motive power of life is gone. What is forbidden is boasting of to-morrow. We need not utter boastful words about our plans and promises for the future in order to "boast of to-morrow." We do it when we ignore the opportunities and responsibilities of to-day. The pupil at school—the apprentice at the bench—the laborer on the corner—who neglect the opportunities of the present under the vain delusion that all will end well—that a better day is coming are boasting of to-morrow. But the most reckless and conspicuous examples we have are in the religious life. The Savior calls "to-day" and men respond "to-morrow." Who would have desecrated this holy Sabbath had he not boasted himself of another day in which to repent? Would that last hath have been uttered but for the hope that God would grant another day. Many will readily admit that they are living beneath their religious privilege and in neglect of their religious duty and that they cannot hope to be saved unless they amend. Yet they make no attempt to do so at present because they boast to themselves of to-morrow. "Go thy way for this time, when I have convenient season I will call for thee"—as though they were sure of such a season, and as though there was something in the mere lapse of time to effect improvement. Whereas we know not what a day may bring forth and that the tendency of to-morrow is but to confirm and strengthen the habits of to-day. In some respects it is well we do not know what a day may bring forth. It might make us very miserable. Suppose our beloved neighbors had known a week ago that they would tonight be sitting in the shadow of death—that the widowed mother had known in advance of the accident that was to crush the life out of her only son—that the victims of the cyclone and earthquake had known a year ago of the losses they were to sustain, would it have done more than poison their cup of joy a little sooner. On the other hand it might make us presumptuous. To know that we had just so long to live might lead us to neglect that preparation for the future which is needful to our eternal felicity, as indeed many are already doing, until the closing period of life. The uncertainty that hangs over to-morrow is intended to stir us up to a wise and prompt improvement of the present. It is a solemn truth that there are promises for to-morrow. "Now is the accepted time and to-day is the day of salvation." And the use we are making of to-day is determining the use that God will make of us to-morrow.
